

In a first, most new prime-age workers are minorities

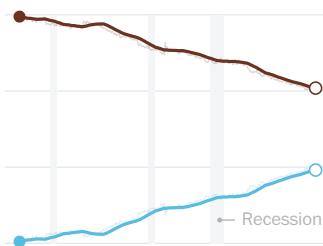

People of color are a far larger share of new hires than they are of the prime-age workforce as a whole.

What new workers from age 25 to 54 were doing a month ago

Entering the workforce

Already in the workforce

Note: Dark line shows the 24-month average.

Source: Labor Department via IPUMS with guidance from Nick Bunker at Indeed, Ernie Tedeschi at Evercore ISI and Marianne Wanamaker at University of Tennessee Knoxville.