MFD receives grant for training

The Monroe Fire Department was recently awarded a $100,110 grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, or FEMA, for additional employee training.

The grant funding would pay for the training of 10 paramedics and 10 advanced EMTs.

According to Monroe Fire Chief Terry Williams, the fire department responded to nearly 4,000 medical-related incidents in the city during 2017.

“These funds will be used to pay for tuition, books, and training for firefighters to receive Paramedic and Advanced EMT training from Delta Community College,” Williams said. “This training will take approximately 1-year to complete. These additional paramedics will be strategically assigned to fire stations around the city, and will enable us to provide advanced life support during medical emergencies throughout the city.”

Mayor Jamie Mayo pointed out the fire department has retained its Class 1 fire rating.

“We are thankful to receive these funds,” Mayo said. “They will help the men and women of our Class 1 Rated Fire Department enhance the level of service we are able to provide the great people of Monroe.”

FEMA extends housing program for 2016 flood survivors

Gov. John Bel Edwards recently announced that his request for a third extension of the federal temporary housing program for survivors of the August 2016 floods has been approved by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) through Jan. 15, 2019.

Gov. Edwards requested that homeowners be given additional time and the low rent for the Mobile Housing Units (MHUs) be retained as survivors rebuild their homes that were either severely damaged or destroyed by the floods. The incremental rent increases on the MHUs remains in place. FEMA has confirmed this will be the final extension to the program.

“We welcome this news from FEMA and thank the agency for recognizing the needs of our people who are putting forth great effort to return home and rebuild their lives,” said Edwards. “The number of families relying on temporary housing is declining but it still remains necessary for many families as they continue to recover. We are committed to helping them work with FEMA on the incremental rent increases as well as helping them find long-term and affordable housing solutions.”

As of July 19, there are 595 homeowners and 19 renters occupying the THUs nearly two years after the disaster.

At the state’s request, FEMA provided the units as a last resort to some survivors who were unable to find temporary housing. The state continues to use various programs to assist homeowners including the Restore Homeowner Assistance Program to help survivors get back into their homes and the Rapid Rehousing Program which provides eligible renters with a three month housing voucher and matches them with available housing resources.

FEMA’s Streamlining Rent Collection Appeals process remains in place to help occupants determine the amount of rent that is within their financial ability by taking into account each household’s income and current housing expenses (including mortgage payments on their pre-disaster residence).

The state’s Rehousing Panel, led by the Governor’s Office of Homeland Security and Emergency Preparedness (GOHSEP), continues to meet and work with FEMA on long-term solutions for MHU occupants. Flood survivors in MHU’s are required to prove they are making progress or home repairs or finding permanent housing. FEMA will allow those who continue to meet FEMA’s eligibility requirements to remain in the program until the new deadline date.

By federal regulation, FEMA’s MHU program ends 18 months after a disaster declaration date. This historic flooding in August 2016 created overwhelming challenges for short-term, interim and permanent housing options.

Those factors have led to the state’s requests for extensions.
