MUSICAL GROUPS A JOY
FOR TEENS, DIRECTORS

CHARIS UBBEN

After a week of often wild weather throughout the U.S., high school students from across Nebraska, their directors and guest clinicians are gathered at Hastings College to continue a long-standing musical tradition.

Participants in the annual Nebraska High School Honor Band, Choir and Orchestra met at HC Thursday night to begin several days of intense rehearsals culminating in a public concert Saturday afternoon.

"In spite of the storm, musicians come to Hastings because they feel it's an important and significant event in their life," said Robin Koozer, HC professor of music and chair of the music department.

For Honor Choir director and Brazil native Daniel Afonso Jr., the 20-degree Nebraska air was a big change from his home in Turlock, Calif., where he is director of choral and vocal studies at

"We get cold weather but it's not too bad. But this winter has been really cooler than a Brazilian would kind of like," Afonso said. "It's not too bad.

But 60, for me, it's a little chilly."

TO REDUCE AMMONIA DISCHARGE

SHAY BURK

Sanitary sewer rates could go up as much as 35 percent in the next few years as Hastings Utilities makes required improvements to the Pollution Control Facility.

On Thursday, the Board of Public Works unanimously approved a nearly $900,000 contract with a firm in Kansas City for design of improvements to the facility.

These modifications are needed based on state and federal regulations that require HU to reduce the amount of ammonia released from the plant.

HDR, the engineering firm, has already presented the board with a preliminary plan for addressing the ammonia issue at a price tag of $12 million.

While those numbers are preliminary and only vague estimates, the real question is how much the annual operational costs will be.

HU manager Marv Schultes presented the board with two options with costs ranging from $126,000 to $306,000.

Based on the cost of the project and the operational costs for one year, Schultes said rates will need to go up anywhere from 29.65 percent to 34.56 percent to cover the costs.

Even with the pending rate increases, the board's biggest issue was approving the contract, which was tabled at the Jan. 13 meeting.

The issue was postponed after Schultes told the board that he had something to share with them in a closed session that wasn't on the meeting's agenda.

The board met in a closed session for nearly an hour Thursday before coming out and eventually approving the contract.

Keystone XL pipeline

WASHINGTON — A proposed oil pipeline from Canada to the U.S. Gulf Coast could substantially reduce U.S. dependency on oil from the Middle East and other regions, according to a report commissioned by the Obama administration.

The study suggests the 1,900-mile pipeline, coupled with a reduction in overall U.S. oil demand, "could essentially eliminate Middle East crude imports longer term." The $7 billion project would carry crude oil extracted from tar sands in Alberta, Canada, to refineries in Texas.

The report, prepared by a Massachusetts firm at the request of the U.S. Energy Department, was completed Dec. 23 and made public this week, as President Barack Obama prepares to meet with Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper today at the White House.

The project's developer, Calgary-based TransCanada, hailed the report by EnSys Energy & Systems Inc. The so-called Keystone XL pipeline — which doubles the capacity of an existing pipeline from Canada — is projected to produce more than 500,000 barrels a day of crude oil derived from formations of sand, clay and water in western Canada.

"This study supports what we have been saying for some time — that Keystone XL will CAIRO — Tens of thousands packed central Cairo today, waving flags and singing the national anthem, emboldened in their campaign to oust President Hosni Mubarak after they repelled pro-regime attackers in two days of bloody street fights. The U.S. was pressing Egypt for an immediate start to democratic transition, including a proposal for Mubarak to step down immediately.

Thousands including families with children flowed over bridges across the Nile into Tahrir Square, a sign that they were not intimidated after fending off everything thrown at them by pro-Mubarak attackers — storms of hurled concrete, metal rebar and fire-bombs, fighters on horses and camels and automatic gunfire barrages.

In the wake of the violence, more detailed scenarios were beginning to emerge for a transition to democratic rule after Mubarak's nearly 30-year authoritarian reign. The Obama administration said it was discussing several possibilities with Cairo — including one for Mubarak to leave office now and hand over power to a military-backed transition.

Protesters in the square held up signs reading "Now!", massing around 100,000 in the largest gathering since the quarter-million who rallied Tuesday. They labeled today's rally the "day of leaving," the day they hope Mubarak will go.

Thousands prostrated themselves in the noon prayers, then immediately after uttering the prayer's concluding "God's peace and blessings be upon you," they began chanting their message to Mubarak: "Leave! Leave! Leave!" A man sitting in a wheelchair was lifted — wheelchair and all — over the heads of the crowd and he pumped his arms in the air.

Those joining in passed through a series of beefed-up checkpoints by the military and the protesters themselves guarding the square. In the afternoon, a group of Mubarak supporters gathered in a square several blocks away and tried to move on Tahrir, banging with sticks on metal fences to raise an intimidating clamor. But protesters throwing rocks pushed them back.

SNAKE ON A TRAIN

BOSTON — Transit officials say a 3-foot-long boa constrictor that slithered away from its owner on a Boston subway car a month ago was found on an adjoining car Thursday. A commuter spotted Penelope the snake and alerted a train attendant at a Red Line station. Transit authority officials took the train out of service to search it. Finally at 8:30 p.m., train attendant Sharon Lynch — a snake owner herself — caught the snake.

Penelope's owner, 30-year-old

Melissa Moorhouse of Allston, had traveled around with the snake around her neck and lost it between two stations Jan. 6. She's thrilled to have her pet back, and says she'll pay more attention the next time she takes Penelope out in public.

JAMES E. MICEK

Former area resident James Edward Micek, 82, of Lincoln died Monday, Jan. 31, 2011, at his home as a result of Mantle Cell Lymphoma.

Micek

Rosary will be 7 p.m. today at Butherus, Maser & Love Funeral Home in Lincoln. Mass of Christian Burial is 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Cathedral of the Risen Christ Catholic Church in Lincoln. Burial will be at Lincoln Memorial Cemetery in Lincoln. Visitation is until 9 p.m. today at the funeral home, and 9:30-10:30 a.m. Saturday at the church.

Memorials may be given to Cathedral of the Risen Christ Catholic Church or Leukemia Lymphoma Society.

Condolences can be sent to www.bmlfh.com

James was born Oct. 21, 1928, to Barney and Dora (Staroscik) Micek in Columbus, Neb. He graduated from Kramer (Columbus) High School in 1946. He served in the U.S. Army from 1946 to 1949. James was united in marriage to Carolyn Smith on July 27, 1953, in North Platte, Neb. James received his Bachelor's Degree in Education from Kearney State College in 1955, and later earned his Master's Degree and Specialist Degree from the University of Wyoming in Laramie.

James was a high school teacher and coach in Campbell, Neb., from 1954-1958. He also taught and coached in North Bend, Neb., from 1958-1965. James was Superintendent of Fairfield Public Schools in Fairfield, Neb., from 1965-1967. He was involved in the consolidation of the Fairfield, Edgar, and Glenvil school districts in 1966 and served as Sandy Creek Public School's first superintendent until 1981. James was Superintendent at Creighton Public Schools from 1981-1991, when he retired. He and Carolyn then moved to Lincoln, Neb.

James was a devoted husband, father and grandfather. His greatest joys in life were spending time with his family, going to Mass, riding his bike, and attending Husker football and volleyball games. He loved family vacations to Colorado, and recently he and his wife completed visiting all of the 50 states together. His motto in life was, "In order to lead a joyous life, you have to work hard, play hard, and pray hard."

James was a member of the Cathedral of the Risen Christ in Lincoln, Knights of Columbus, American Legion, VFW, AARP, and the Nebraska Association of Retired School Administrators. He volunteered as a precinct Inspector at elections. He was a volunteer driver safety instructor and a driver safety trainer for AARP in Lincoln, and he gave tours at the Cathedral of the Risen Christ.

James was preceded in death by his parents; and two brothers, Chester and Frank.

Survivors include his wife, Carolyn of Lincoln; three daughters and sons-in-law, Terri and Roger Tiedeman of Lincoln, Cathie and Mike Kluver of Fairfield, and Susan and Dan Springer of Grand Island; two sons and daughters-in-law, Bob and Mitzi Micek of Blue Springs, Mo., and Daniel and Anita Micek of Las Vegas, Nev.; two brothers, Father Sylvester Micek of Sherman, Ill., and Jerry Micek and wife Sheri, of Columbus; two sisters, Mary Ann Donatelli and husband Ed of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Alice Hoff of Columbus, Neb.; 11 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; two stepgrandchildren; six stepgreat-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

‘Last Tango in Paris’ star Maria Schneider dies at 58

JENNY BARCHFIELD
The Associated Press

PARIS — Maria Schneider, the French actress who was Marlon Brando's young co-star in the steamy 1972 film "Last Tango in Paris," has died at age 58.

Schneider died in Paris on Thursday "following a long illness," a representative of the Act 1 talent agency said, but declined to provide details.

Schneider was 19 when she starred opposite Marlon Brando in Bernardo Bertolucci's racy "Last Tango in Paris." In it, she played Jeanne, a young Parisian woman who takes up with a middle-aged American businessman, played by Brando.

Full of explicit sex scenes, "Last Tango" was banned in Italy for obscenity for nearly two decades, returning to cinemas there only in 1989.

Lena Nyman dies at 66

The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM — Actress Lena Nyman, who starred in sexually explicit movies that defined Swedish cinema in the 1960s, has died. She was 66.

Nyman's manager Mats Nilemar says she died peacefully in a Stockholm hospital early Friday after a long illness.

Nyman starred in more than 50 Swedish films and plays. She won international fame mainly as the lead character in "I Am Curious — Yellow," a 1967 film that was banned in the U.S. for two years, and its sequel, "I Am Curious — Blue."

Directed by Vilgot Sjoman, the movies combined social criticism with frank depictions of nudity and sex, contributing to the Sweden's image in the '60s as sexually liberated.

Nyman also starred in Ingmar Bergman's "Autumn Sonata."

GIFFORDS'

HUSBAND HEADED TO SPACE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.

— The astronaut husband of wounded Rep. Gabrielle Giffords has made his choice. He's headed to space in April.

An official close to the space shuttle program confirmed this morning that astronaut Mark Kelly will be aboard Endeavour for its final flight. The official did not want to be named because the information has not yet been made public.

Kelly is holding a news conference at Johnson Space Center in Houston on Friday afternoon.

He took a leave from training after his wife was gunned down outside a Tucson, Ariz., supermarket on Jan. 8 as she met with constituents on Jan. 8. Six people were killed and 12 others injured. Giffords is now undergoing rehab in Houston.

Kelly, 46, spent the past month debating whether to step down as commander of Endeavour's two-week mission. As he agonized over the decision, NASA named a backup commander, Rick Sturckow, who joined crew training.

BOBBLED BAGLE
RANDOLPH, N.J. —

Authorities say a New Jersey woman hit a 9-year-old on the head with a frying pan after he dropped a bagel and her dog ate it.

Police say the boy told them that 45-year-old Donna Ambrosio-Ruglio yelled at him that the cream cheese on the bagel would kill the dog.

The Daily Record of Parsippany reports Ambrosio-Ruglio was caring for the boy at her Randolph home. A criminal complaint says he sustained an abrasion to his head and bruises on his back.

Ambrosio-Ruglio is being held in the Morris County Jail on $75,000 bail, charged with child endangerment. It was not immediately clear whether she has an attorney.

ICY ROADS

NEW ORLEANS — Icy roads have been blamed for two traffic deaths and dangerous driving conditions across three southern states.

The Louisiana State Police says one person was killed in an early morning accident in Iberville Parish in southern Louisiana involving three 18-wheelers and a pickup truck. Another driver was killed in western Louisiana when his car ran off the highway.

Dozens of schools, businesses and government offices in north Alabama were opening late because of icy roads there. Areas of Mississippi were also coated in ice overnight.

State government offices were closed in 55 of Louisiana's 64 parishes and public school systems from southwest Louisiana to the north told students to stay home.

Forecasters say temperatures should warm up to above freezing later in the day.

MAN TURNS
HIMSELF IN AFTER
KILLING 3

LAKE CITY, Fla. —

Authorities in north Florida say a man killed three people in his home, then drove to a sheriff's station with the 5-year-old daughter of one of the victims to turn himself in.

Alan Lucas Strattan is charged with first-degree murder in the Thursday deaths of 25-year-old Nichole Cervantez, 27-year-old Monica Hudson and 32-year-old Michael Kevin Tucker. Authorities say Cervantez was pregnant and that Hudson was Strattan's sometimes girlfriend.

Columbia County Sheriff's Sgt. Ed Seifert says Strattan confessed but didn't provide a motive.

Seifert says the victims were shot to death. Seifert said early today he didn't yet know who Strattan's attorney was.

Authorities say the surviving child is now staying with her grandmother.

Australia storm litters towns with debris

KRISTEN GELINEAU

CARDWELL, Australia —

The storm was roaring outside Diane Robson's waterfront apartment when she edged onto the balcony to check on her boat in the water below. She swept the beam of her flashlight across the churning black harbor until she caught a flash of white: her yacht, the "Laza Beam" — in her neighbor's yard.

The monstrous cyclone that ripped across Australia's north-east flung boats from the sea like toys, leaving them in jumbled piles. Robson stared down at her battered yacht from the balcony on Friday; she couldn't bring herself to look any closer.

"I don't ever want to get back on the boat again," she said. "I'm too scared."

Residents across Queensland state trickled out of their sodden homes Friday to confront the wreckage left a day earlier by Cyclone Yasi, a fierce storm that flattened dozens of houses and ripped roofs and walls from hundreds more. The storm cut power to thousands of homes and shredded hundreds of millions of dollars worth of banana and sugar cane crops.

Australia marshaled 4,000 troops and sent a supply ship with tons of food to the hardest-hit communities Friday, as authorities confirmed the first death from the cyclone. Police said a 23-year-old man died from asphyxiation after being overwhelmed by fumes from a diesel-powered generator he was using in a closed room during the storm. Two other people were reported missing.

Residents and officials were amazed the death toll was not higher. The storm thrashed the coast with up to 170 mph winds and sent waves crashing ashore two blocks into seaside communities, as tens of thousands of people huddled in evacuation centers.

Electricity and phone service were gradually being restored Friday, and roads cleared of downed trees, power lines and twisted metal roofs torn from homes. But the efforts were hampered by drenching rain in many parts of the disaster zone, prompting the weather bureau to warn of potentially dangerous flash flooding.

Because Australia's far north-east is sparsely populated, Yasi, despite its size, didn't hit any major cities as it charged across the continent. But the isolation was making cleanup more difficult, as authorities struggled to reach out-of-the-way towns.

Germany, France push reforms

GABRIELE STEINHAUSER

The Associated Press

BRUSSELS — France and Germany pushed other eurozone countries to sign up for tough measures to limit debt loads, make their economies more productive and stamp out the government debt crisis that has crippled their currency union over the past year.

In a joint news conference Friday with French President Nicolas Sarkozy, German Chancellor Angela Merkel said governments should decide soon — by the end of March — on a so-called "pact for competitiveness" bringing the 17 countries that use the euro closer together in the way they run their economies.

German and French officials indicate the pact could include calls for putting debt limits in national constitutions, raising retirement ages to match increased life expectancy, and getting rid of salary increases tied to inflation.

They also want countries to set up orderly ways to handle bank failures and agree on a common base for figuring corporate taxation.

The debt crisis that has pushed Greece and Ireland to take international bailout loans has underlined a key vulnerability of the euro — one currency with one central bank, but 17 governments. There's little way to keep individual countries from undermining the shared currency with overspending, banking disasters or growth-choking policies.

The two leaders presented their proposal to their eurozone counterparts over lunch on Friday, as part of a broader discussion over plans to overhaul the region's 440 billion ($600 billion) bailout fund to make it more effective in stemming the crisis.

Within a year, eurozone states should demonstrate on "very concrete points" that they are serious about making their economies more competitive, Merkel said.

Some of the demands already tabled will surely be tough to swallow for some governments. Belgium and Luxembourg would have a hard time taking away automatic salary increases from their citizens, while the Irish — already feeling humiliated after being forced to take a 67.5 billion bailout — are unlikely to make any concessions on their corporate tax rate, one of the lowest in Europe.

WASHINGTON — The unemployment rate dropped sharply last month to 9 percent, based on a government survey that found that more than a half-million people found work.

A separate survey of company payrolls showed a scant increase of 36,000 net jobs as snowstorms likely hampered hiring. That survey doesn't count the self-employed.

Harsh snowstorms last month cut into construction employment, which fell by 32,000, the most since May. Transportation and warehousing was also likely affected and fell by 38,000 — the most in a year.

"The thumbprints of the weather were all over this report," said Neil Dutta, an economist at Bank of America Merrill Lynch. Hiring was suppressed last month and will likely rebound in February, he said.

In one bright spot, manufacturing added 49,000 jobs, the most since August 1998. And retailers added 28,000 jobs, the largest number in a year.

The unemployment rate has fallen by eight-tenths of a percentage point in the past two months. That's the steepest two-month drop in nearly 53 years.

But part of that drop has occurred as many of those out of work gave up on their job searches. When unemployed people stop looking for jobs, the government no longer counts them as unemployed.

The number of people unemployed fell by more than 600,000 in January to 13.9 million. That's still about double the total that were out of work before the recession began in December 2007.

In early trading on Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 15 points, or 0.1 percent, to 12,075. The S&P 500 gained 2 to 1,309. The Nasdaq composite index added 5 to 2,759.

The January jobs report also includes the government's annual revisions to the employment data, which showed that fewer jobs were created in 2010 than previously thought.

RETIREMENT
OPEN HOUSE

BLUE HILL — Donna Rose, longtime manager of the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension office in Webster County, will be honored here Sunday at a reception marking her retirement.

Rose spent 26 years with the extension office, first as an office assistant for several years and then many more as office manager. Her retirement was effective Dec. 31, 2010, but she will be working off and on for a while helping her replacement, Carol Kumke, learn the ropes of the position.

Sunday's open house runs 3-5 p.m. at the Blue Hill Community Center. Organizers hope friends, family, 4-H and FFA families and extension personnel from across the district and state will attend to wish Rose a happy retirement.

Rose and her husband, Norman, live on a diversified farm near Cowles.

Kumke lives in Campbell with her husband, Allen. She has worked previously as a secretary with both the Blue Hill and Red Cloud public schools.

$180K PAYMEMNT

BEATRICE — The state has agreed to pay $180,000 to another one of the six people wrongfully imprisoned for a 1985 southeast Nebraska murder.

Radio station KWBE reports that court documents outline the settlement with Thomas Winslow. Last fall, the state agreed to pay Joseph White $500,000 and Kathleen Gonzalez $350,000.

Two other lawsuits related to the rape and murder of 68-year-old Helen Wilson of Beatrice are pending. One of the six people who was exonerated by DNA evidence, Deb Shelden, has not sued the state.

The six were the first in Nebraska to be cleared by DNA evidence. Winslow served 19 years in prison before being released in 2008.

Officials say the DNA evidence implicated an Oklahoma man who died in 1992.

FORCED LANDING

OMAHA — A Southwest Airlines flight from Denver to Philadelphia made an unscheduled landing in Omaha because of fumes in the cabin.

KETV in Omaha says a Southwest spokeswoman says the crew smelled something, and even though it had dissipated, the crew felt it was necessary to land as a precaution.

Southwest Flight 154 landed safely at Eppley Airfield about 3:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Crystal Lake bill heard by committee

SHAY BURK

sburk@hastingstribune.com

State and local officials spoke out in favor of a legislative bill Thursday that would turn care of a recreation area over to the village of Ayr.

On Thursday, the Natural Resources Committee of the Nebraska Legislature heard testimony on LB563, a bill that would transfer care of the Crystal Lake State Recreation Area from the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission to the village of Ayr.

The 35-acre park, which features a four-acre lake, is located just north of the village of Ayr in southern Adams County.

Sen. Dennis Utter introduced the bill, which he said came about through negotiations between the state commission and the village board.

"I want to express my gratitude to them and my admiration for their willingness to step up and take over this small recreation area and continue to operate it for local residents and visitors," he said of the Ayr Village Board.

This is one of a number of state recreation areas that in the past several years have been considered to be transferred to local government entities to help reduce costs for the parks commission.

On Thursday, the committee also heard testimony regarding the transfer of property to the village of Brownville in southeast Nebraska.

In these situations, Utter said the options are to turn the area into a wildlife area and no longer allow it to be used by the public or turn the responsibility of care over to a local government entity.

Local communities benefit from those park visitors and are often the ones that are asked and choose to take over care of the parks, he said.

Randy Kort, chairman of the Ayr Village Board, said he and the other members of the board support the bill because they know how many people use the park on an annual basis.

"We have seen a lot of repeat visitors from not only Hastings, but also outstate Nebraska," he said. "We felt it would be unfortunate if it was allowed to be closed."

Kort said the board's only concern was the cost of upkeep and the burden that it may pose for the village of 107 residents.

"We don't want it to become a burden for our residents," she said. "We're going to try to manage it as fiscally successful as we can."

At this point, he said the board hopes to continue to depend on the camper fees that people pay on an honor system to help cover some of the costs.

In the past, the parks commission said it received about $5,000 each year in camper fees and spent about $3,700 in utilities.

The campground features cement camper pads with electrical hookups, three water hydrants, two picnic shelters built when the park was created in the 1930s and several storage buildings.

Kort said the board is worried about the consistency of the camper fees and plans to use a lot of volunteers to maintain the park.

The village is also using resources from the Little Blue

Natural Resource District to meet all the requirements set forth in the legislative bill.

Roger Kuhn, director of the Nebraska State Parks System and representative for the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, said he was very happy to see the village wanting to step up and take ownership of the park.

"I think it's a win/win situation for Game and Parks as budgets have gotten tighter," he said.

If at any time the village was no longer able to maintain the park, ownership would revert back to the state.

The committee will now have to make a decision on forwarding the bill to the full Legislature for debate. If approved, ownership of the park would immediately be transferred to the village.

Fun dyeing with Kool-Aid

FIBER ARTS STORE BEGINS
REGULAR ACTIVITIES
FOR ARTISTS

CHARIS UBBEN

cubben@hastingstribune.com

A lesson in using Kool-Aid to dye natural fibers was the first in a new series of fun activities for fiber artists at a downtown Hastings shop.

The Plum Nelly, 731 W. Second St., shares a storefront with Julie's Xpressions. It carries supplies for weaving, spinning, knitting, crochet, felting and tatting and is the meeting place for the Prairie Fibers Weavers & Spinners Guild.

Janey Nottage-Tacey, a Plum Nelly employee and initiator of the Fiber Fun Addicts series, said wool and other natural fibers can be dyed with Kool-Aid powder, vinegar, water and sometimes a microwave.

"It's a very quick, very simple process and it's a fairly safe thing, so we've done it a lot with children," she said.

One method is to soak fibers overnight in a plastic jar, using a mixture of the three products.

"It takes all that color right out of the water, leaves the liquid mostly clear and all the color in the wool," Nottage-Tacey said. "They come back the next day, here's this beautiful wool and water. It's a fun process to do."

Thursday, she and Plum Nelly owner Cheryl Jensen were showing visitors how to dye wool by saturating it in a water-vinegar mixture, wrapping it in plastic wrap and microwaving it for two minutes. The result was a vibrant red, purple, yellow or whatever color the Kool-Aid powder was, which could then be spun into yarn.

Fiber Fun Addicts events will not be held every week, but will be announced on a periodic basis through Facebook to those who "friend" The Plum Nelly on that social networking site. They will include a variety of activities and always be on Thursdays, when the store stays open until 9 p.m. so those who work during the day can participate.

One goal of Fiber Fun Addicts is to draw in fiber artists who do not already stop in to hang out at the store. The events can connect people who weave, spin, crochet, felt, dye, tat and more.

Also, Fiber Fun-Addicts events will be a prime opportunity for artists to bring in their work and ask for help from Jensen, Nottage-Tacey and Maggie Chambers, also a Plum Nelly employee, who have a broad knowledge of all fiber arts.

"They can go online for those kinds of things, but that's so not interactive. The fiber arts are such a visual kind of thing, that it's so important. Sometimes one-on-one, you will get easier and better answers," Nottage-Tacey said.

Malone sentenced for assault on girlfriend

WILL VRASPIR

wvraspir@hastingstribune.com

A 26-year-old Juniata man who broke out three of his girlfriend's teeth and terrorized her with a gun was sentenced to 20 months to five years in prison on Friday in Adams County District Court.

Adams County District Judge Terri Harder sentenced Cole A. Malone to 20 months to five years in prison for terroristic threats and one year domestic assault. Harder ordered that the sentences be served concurrently, or at the same time. The judge gave Malone credit for the 190 days he spent in jail awaiting trial. Malone would be eligible for parole in 10 months and would be released in three years with maximum good time.

Harder also ordered that Malone pay the victim, Stacy Stemper, $6,500 within five years of his release from prison for the estimated cost of dental restoration.

Deputy Adams County Attorney Sarah Hinrichs argued for prison time, noting that Stemper's treatment plan estimates two years of work before her teeth are fully restored.

"This was a very viscous attack," she said. "Mr. Malone is a dangerous person."

Adams County Public Defender Art Toogood said Malone's run-ins with the law have been relatively minor since 2007 and asked for probation.

Malone also apologized in a statement to the judge before sentencing.

"I just want to say 'I'm sorry' to Stacy," Malone said. "I just wish I could take it all back."

But Harder noted that Malone had already been placed on probation in a previous case and it had been revoked.

Malone dodged the most serious charge in the case when he accepted a plea deal on Dec. 1, 2010. He pleaded no contest to terroristic threats and third-degree domestic assault. In exchange for his plea, prosecutors dropped a charge of using a firearm in a felony, punishable by up to 50 years in prison, and agreed not to file additional charges in the case.

According to court records, Malone and Stemper got into an argument on July 17, 2010, as they drove to their residence. After the vehicle was parked, Malone allegedly struck Stemper in the face and knocked out three of her teeth.

The two went inside the residence where Malone's mother was present. Malone reportedly got a gun from a bedroom and started yelling and waving it around. His mother took out a cell phone to call police, but Malone allegedly took the phone and said she wasn't going to call the cops.

After being held inside the house for about an hour, the two women made it outside and went to the hospital where police were contacted.

Terroristic threats is a Class 4 felony punishable by up to five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. Third-degree domestic assault is a Class 1 misdemeanor punishable by up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Legislative measures look at marriage and divorce in state

MARGERY A. BECK

The Associated Press

LINCOLN — Lawmakers would delve into marriages and divorces in Nebraska under two measures heard Thursday by the Judiciary Committee.

One bill (LB408) by Sen. Tony Fulton of Lincoln would give judges presiding over divorce cases leeway to order the divorcing couple to attend marriage counseling. The bill focuses on marriages in which children are involved and where either the husband or wife feels the marriage is not irreparably broken.

More than a dozen people testified in favor of the bill, including former Nebraska football coach and current athletic director Tom Osborne.

"After 36 years of coaching, I saw firsthand the effects of divorce," Osborne said.

The former coach pointed to a bevy of statistics that suggest children of divorce are more prone criminal and anti-social behavior, teen pregnancy and dropping out of school.

The measure did draw some opponents, including the Nebraska Bar Association and the Nebraska Domestic Violence Sexual Assault Coalition.

Among their concerns were the additional costs to the divorcing couple who might be ordered into counseling, as well the possibility that an abusive spouse might try to force his victim into counseling.

A second bill (LB147) by State Sen. Galen Hadley of Kearney would give Nebraska courts discretion to order noncustodial parents to help pay children's college costs.

Honor: Music groups a joy for teens, directors

Wednesday, but re-booked to arrive in Grand Island via Denver when all flights into Chicago were canceled.

In contrast, Victoria Seibert, a senior at Morrill High School and alto in Afonso's choir this week, made the 6 1/2 -hour drive from western Nebraska with her director, Terri Osborn, without incident.

"Last year, we drove through snow most of the way," Osborn said. "Last year, we came a day early just because of weather."

The Honor Choir at HC is special to Osborn, who was selected to participate during her own senior year at Chadron High, after auditioning with a German song. Seibert auditioned in German herself this year, though auditions are now recorded instead of given in person. Osborn said this honor choir, of all those available to her students, is her favorite.

"It's really a top-notch honor choir to get into," she said. "You get the best of the best. The music is very difficult, which is so great."

Fritz Mountford, HC director of choral activities, said about 400 students auditioned for the Honor Choir and just under 100 were selected. With such a select group, the vocalists who attend are both good at what they do and serious about making the most of the experience. And though the schedule looks a bit grueling — beginning with rehearsal at 9:30 p.m. Thursday and continuing through Saturday morning — Seibert said it is enjoyable.

"It is intense, but it's still fun because you have kids who love it as much as you do," Seibert said. "Here, everybody is singing all the time and paying attention, and it's just really cool."

Afonso said that having skilled singers who come already knowing the music makes his job enjoyable as well.

"It's very cool, because you get to go a little bit deeper into musical aspects. You can talk about style more, you can talk about phrasing more, you can explain to them the historical context this music came from or how the composer sets the text to certain music or picks the poem," he said. "So, you get to discuss things, not just teach notes and make sure everybody starts and finishes together."

Afonso has chosen a variety of music for this choir, including a Renaissance motet, songs from two living California composers, a Harry Belafonte piece and one of his own songs, a Brazilian-inspired folk song called "Samba Lelê."

"My piece is in Portuguese, and then there's music in Latin and there's music in English," he said. "A variety of styles. We have music by living composers, we have music by a Renaissance composer. There's sacred music, there's secular music. So, you try to create a very eclectic program to give the students a very diverse and rich experience with materials that they normally would not do."

This marks the 49th annual Honor Band, 41st annual Honor Choir and 32nd annual Honor Orchestra.

More than 600 high school students auditioned for the festival and nearly 200 were chosen to participate in the three groups. Participants from Tribland schools are:

Sewer: Improvements could hike utility rates

The contract, design and changes are needed to meet the new requirements set down by the Environmental Protection Agency forcing HU to release no more than 1.8 milligrams per liter of ammonia into the stream.

According to the current permit, HU needs to meet these new requirements by the expiration of the permit in July 2013.

With all of the planning and construction left to be done, however, HU likely won't meet that deadline.

In order to keep compliant with federal regulations, HU environmental supervisor Marty Stange told the board Jan. 13 that NDEQ needed to know that HU was still moving forward with the project.

He planned to present the NDEQ with the approved agreement at a Jan. 31 meeting.

Since the board wasn't comfortable with approving the agreement at the time, however, Stange said he would tell NDEQ that the board has yet to approve the contract due to questions and concerns.

At Thursday's meeting, board member Jeanette DeWalt said she was ready to approve the contract in light of the potential daily fines of $50,000 to $100,000 if HU doesn't comply with the new ammonia standards.

"We don't really have any other option than to approve this," she said.

Even so, all the board members agreed that they want to move forward with getting city leaders involved in discussing these regulations furthers with the NDEQ and the EPA.

At Thursday's meeting, the board also:

- ◆ Tabled a discussion on hexavalent chromium.
- ◆ Unanimously approved filling a mechanical engineer position vacancy with the move of Lee Vrooman to the electrical production department.
- ◆ Discussed board and staff attendance of a conference on sustainability Feb. 11 in Lincoln.
- ◆ Heard an update on the activities of the Public Power Generation Agency and start-up of Whelan Energy Center Unit Two.

improve U.S. energy security and reduce dependence on foreign oil from the Middle East and Venezuela," TransCanada CEO Russ Girling said in a statement. "Keystone XL will also create 20,000 high-paying jobs for American families and inject $20 billion into the U.S. economy."

Environmental groups pointed to another aspect of the report that said the United States could likely meet its demand for oil even if the pipeline extension is not built. "Why rush a decision to build a giant pipeline that will be with us for the next 50 years?" asked Liz Barratt-Brown, a senior attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council. "Aren't there other alternatives for our fuels that we can, and must, find in this time period?"

The Natural Resources Defense Council and other groups call the pipeline an ecological disaster waiting to happen.

Colleagues suspect forgetful co-worker is battling dementia

DEAR ABBY: Everyone knows the economy has hit hard times and, as a result, more people are working past the age of retirement. This means some in the workplace are beginning to deal with Alzheimer's and other dementia-related illnesses.

Dear Abby

"Anita" is in her late 60s and we are certain she is showing symptoms of dementia. She has worked in our office about three years, after working in this field for more than 30 years elsewhere. But if you saw her in our office today, you would think it was her first week — if not her first day. Anita makes multiple mistakes every day, then sits at her desk and cries her eyes out. Our supervisor insists there is nothing he or HR can do in regards to talking (gently) to her because she could sue the company.

I'm sorry Anita is suffering, but must we let her deteriorate for three more years in our office? That's how long she is planning on staying, even though she's eligible for retirement. Her family lives elsewhere in the state and may not realize she is ill. Were she my mother, I would want someone to do something. What's the right thing to do for everyone involved? — STUMPED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR STUMPED: I discussed your question with Nancy Bertrando, a respected California employment law specialist, who told me: "If a person is unable to perform the essential functions of her job — regardless of the reason — an employer does not have the obligation to keep the person in that position. However, regardless of whether your supervisor or HR thinks it is futile, Anita should be counseled and given the opportunity to fix the problem — if, indeed, it is fixable."

DEAR ABBY: My husband runs an auto body shop and has always warned me to be extra careful in parking lots — "People don't pay attention. They drive too fast. Everyone's always in a hurry," etc. Well, tomorrow I am going to the memorial service for a dear friend, "Mara." She was only 46.

While Mara was putting her granddaughter into a stroller, they were hit. A woman driving too fast hit a car backing out of a parking space, careened off that car and ran over Mara. Mara was pinned underneath the car until the fire department arrived and lifted it off her. Mara's daughter saw it all. The 3-year-old is still in the hospital, but will survive.

I realize my friend died over a parking spot. I hope people reading this will see that we all need to slow down and pay attention. A car can be as lethal as a gun. I didn't "get it" before, but now I do. Because of the reckless actions of a complete stranger, you can kiss your husband goodbye, go shopping and never return! I hope this nightmare can help others. — MISSING THE SISTER OF MY HEART

DEAR MISSING: Please know how sorry I am about the tragic death of your friend. I cannot stress enough how important it is to remain fully present while behind the wheel of a vehicle. Our streets and highways are filled with distractions, as are our cars — billboards, cell phones, stereo buttons, the GPS, etc. I am sure the woman who struck Mara and her grandchild will never get over the fact that she took one life and could have taken another.

Readers, I hope you will review this woman's letter and remember it the next time you're "in a hurry." It could save a life.

Frugal Living — Clean bamboo floors with ease

BY SARA NOEL
United Media

DEAR SARA: Can you clean bamboo flooring with vinegar? I'm sick of using two different things to clean my floors. I use vinegar on the bathrooms and kitchen, which is linoleum and ceramic tile, but Murphy's Oil Soap on my living room and hallway, which is bamboo. Can you use the vinegar on the bamboo also? I also want to use it as a disinfectant property since I have new puppies, and they are pretty good about going on the puppy pads but have the occasional accident. I haven't mopped my floor in here since they were born, because I didn't want the oil soap hurting them, and now it really needs something. Is it possible to use vinegar, since it's the safest floor cleaner I can think of for them and it kills bacteria? —

Mickie, Kentucky
DEAR MICKIE: Yes, you can use vinegar and water (1:4 ratio). I would use a damp microfiber mop. You don't want any type of liquid to remain on the floor for long, so no wet mopping. You can spritz the floor using a spray bottle, if you wipe it up immediately after spraying, but it's better to spray a cloth or wet your mop and wring it out until it's damp and then clean the floor. Be sure to remove all dirt and debris beforehand as these can scratch the floor as you are trying to clean it. You can use a steam mop such as Bissell Steam & Sweep, too.
DEAR SARA: I have purchased several pairs of denim jeans and can't get the smell out of them. They have kind of a petroleum smell. It gets worse when I get warm. I have soaked them in bak-

Your Birthday

SATURDAY, FEB. 5

The year ahead could be an especially good one for putting your artistic, literary or musical talents to constructive uses. That market for your expression of the gifts you possess may be able to be found.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) - That nose of your for sniffing out a bargain for something you want is apt to be much sharper than usual today. If there is a high-ticketed item you need, now may be the time to go shopping for it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) - For reasons known only to you, it will be important for you to operate as freely and independently as you possible can. Avoid getting involved with anything that could restrict your mobility.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) - Those compassionate urges of yours will be easily aroused today by most anybody who needs help. That includes everybody you know and even some strangers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) - You might not be easy to read at first, but when you open up it is easy for others to feel the warm and gracious vibes you give out. Once the world sees you as a pal, friendship is offered.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) - Something that proved to be too much to handle yesterday is apt to be a piece of cake. What you previously saw as obstacles and impediments will now look like stepping-stones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) - Anything that allows you to use your artistic and creative faculties will be what you'll thoroughly enjoy engaging in today. Use your talents and gifts to help make your day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) - Pay heed to your intuitive instincts, even in business matters and with things your logic dictates you to do otherwise. Your hunches could be much smarter than your brain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Someone who is near and dear to you might not be able to be reached through pragmatic means, but approaching this person with tenderness might work. Use emotions, not logic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) - Because you'll take such pride in whatever it is you are doing today, it won't be necessary for anybody to look over your shoulder to keep tabs on your work. You'll do a great job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) - There is nothing wrong with being in love with love, so if that is how you feel, let it out. There are a lot of empty spaces in this world that can be utilized by a romanticist.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) - Even if there are plenty of other work related or fun interests vying for your attention, give family matters top priority. There is nothing more important than those close to your heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - You seem to be on everybody's minds today. Both your computer and/or cell phone could be extremely busy with so many of your friends and family trying to reach you.

Plays make for good reads

When you think about plays, you think about actors on stage performing. Plays can also be read for fun without being performed, however. Hastings Public Library has a great collection of play scripts that are great reads. Besides being great stories, plays read really fast and are great if you don't have that much time to read.

Try "Rabbit Hole" by David Lindsay-Abaire. If this sounds familiar it's because this play was recently turned into a movie starring Nichole Kidman. "Rabbit Hole" tells the story of two grieving parents who recently lost their son due to a car accident. Throughout the play they learn to love each other again and begin to find ways to move on with their lives.

"August: Osage County" by Tracy Letts, a recent Pulitzer Prize winner, is a story about a family who must confront both their past and present.

"The Shape of Things" by Neil Labute is about Evelyn an artist, who tries to change her new boyfriend Adam into a perfect work of art by influencing him to change his appearance and other aspects of his life. This play was also made into a movie starring Rachel Weisz.

Fans of Steve Martin might be interested to know that he has also written several plays. "Picasso at the Lapin Agile and Other Plays" is a collection of several of his shorter plays and will appeal to fans of his books.

If you like Agatha Christie's mystery novels try "The Mousetrap and Other Plays." This collection of her plays includes several that were written specifically for the stage, and a few that are based on some of her more famous novels.

Looking for a good laugh? Then try some plays by Christopher Durang. "Twenty-Seven Short Plays" includes some of his best plays that read quickly and will have you bursting with laughter.

Finally, try "Brighton Beach Memoirs" by Neil Simon. This classic play tells the story of a young Jewish boy and his family and the struggles that they face during World War II.

These are just a few of the plays you can find at the library. Besides being good reads, play will give you a different reading experience that will have you wanting to read more. The library is open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday; and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

The high-or-low decision is back

Bob Thaves in his "Frank and Ernest" comic strip said, "Remember, Ginger Rogers did everything Fred Astaire did, but backwards and in high heels."

Would she have found it easier in low heels?

This week we have been wondering whether to play high or low from the dummy at trick one. In this example, you are in three no-trump. West leads the spade six. What would you do?

You start with eight top tricks: one spade (given the lead), three hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. The extra winner can come from clubs. But if you lose a club trick, the opponents might be able to run spades.

The key play, since there are only two spades in the dummy, is to put up dummy's king. Then, what would you do if the king wins, or if the king loses to East's potential ace and a spade comes back?

Here, the king wins, so you run the club jack, confident that you will win at least nine tricks via one spade, three hearts, two diamonds and three clubs. West cannot continue spades with effect.

If, though, East can take the first trick, you should hold up your spade queen until the third round, then play the ace, king and another club — do not finesse, because you cannot afford to let West win a trick.

Finally, note that if you play low from the dummy at trick one, East will put in his jack. If you win, cross to dummy, and take the club finesse, West wins with his queen and cashes four spades. If you duck completely at trick one, East will return the spade nine, establishing the spade suit while West has an entry in the club queen.

Spokesman: Sheen wants to resume work this month

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Charlie Sheen wants to get back to work this month on "Two and a Half Men," a spokesman said Thursday.

The 45-year-old actor remains in rehab but hopes to return to TV's top-rated comedy by the end of February, publicist Stan Rosenfield said. That's a "target" projection, Rosenfield said.

The series halted production after Sheen sought treatment for undisclosed reasons following a 911 call and brief stay at a Los Angeles-area hospital last week. According to a tape of the 911 call, Sheen was said to be intoxicated and in pain.

CBS and series producer Warner Bros. Television declined comment on Sheen's intentions. But decisions about the show aren't Sheen's alone.

Producers intend to evaluate the situation before deciding whether to resume filming for the season, a person familiar with their plans said Thursday.

‘Working Class’ girl

HUMOR SUSTAINS
MELISSA PETERMAN

CAITLIN R. KING
The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — There are two things that have helped Melissa Peterman get through life: humor and Reba McEntire.

The actress-comedian combines the two in her new sitcom, "Working Class," on CMT (7 p.m.). McEntire guest stars on the episode that airs today.

"You have to have a sense of humor," Peterman said in a recent interview. "That's sort of how I live my life. So that's why I think I was attracted to the character. I'm like, 'OK, that was awful today, but you know what? The house didn't catch on fire. So, success!'"

Peterman stars as Carli Mitchell, a single mom with three kids, two ex-husbands and a freeloading brother, who is trying to give her family a better life by moving them to an upscale suburb. She works at a high-end grocery store alongside a character played by Emmy winner Ed Asner.

Peterman and her character share the same parenting style. In real life, she is married with a 5-year-old son, Riley.

"When Riley's like, 'Well, that's not fair.' I'm like, 'Well, write a letter to your governor, and tell him about it, and if he tells me it's not fair, we'll talk.'"

The 12-episode series was shot in two months of grueling, 12-hour days. Through it all, Peterman was determined to keep spirits high on set. She threw a margarita-karaoke party once they reached the halfway point. Around Thanksgiving, she brought in pies for the entire cast and crew.

After an episode that involved mud wrestling (it didn't taste like chocolate malt as she was told), she kept the pit open and wrestled anyone interested for $10 a go. They raised $450 for Toys for Tots.

Peterman credits McEntire for inspiring her to lead the cast of "Working Class." The two women worked together on the CW sitcom "Reba" from 2001-2007, where Peterman played the new wife of McEntire's ex-husband.

"It was invaluable for me to watch how she was a leader on set, where everyone knew they were appreciated," she said.

Today's episode sees the two women in a role-reversal. McEntire plays the new "sugar mama" of Peterman's ex-husband.

McEntire said she recognized Peterman's same work ethic and natural charisma from her "Reba" days when she arrived on the "Working Class" set.

"She's always been very talented in knowing her material, very prepared, always there, always ready to go, always ready to help," said McEntire. "I saw how she was a leader, friendly, never lost it, never lost control."

No. 4 Hawkettes stunned by Central Catholic

Flat. Slow. Those words aren't often used to describe the St. Cecilia girls basketball team. But those were a couple of words that came to mind for St. Cecilia coach Jahn Kile following the team's disappointing 45-37 loss to Grand Island Central Catholic Thursday night at Chapman Gymnasium.

The Class C-1 No. 4 Hawkettes (14-3) led 13-9 after the first quarter and had forced the Crusaders (12-7) into turning the ball over 10 times in the opening stanza. But, still, Kile was not impressed and was fearful of the way his team was playing

His fears soon came to fruition, as GICC held the usually-potent Hawkettes without a field goal in the second quarter.

Hawkettes.

As a result, GICC held St. Cecilia, which is averaging 61 points per game this year, to a season-low offensive output.

"I thought we were really good defensively in the first half. For them to have 15 points at halftime with as many points as they score per game, I thought it was a really good team defensive effort," GICC coach Andy Anspauch said. "And the thing that I was so proud of defensively was our and length, utilizing 6-foot-1 Katie Brand and 6-0 Maggie Stump at the top of a variety of zone defenses and the team even mixed in some occasional man-to-man defense to frustrate the communication because we played a lot of different defenses tonight and it's really easy for individuals to get lost within the team scheme when you're switching your defenses as often as we did."

St. Cecilia managed just a pair of free throws in the second quarter from Libby Kissinger and turned it over eight times. The team went 0-for-8 from the field as GICC raced out to a 23-15 advantage at halftime — a lead the Crusaders would not relinquish.

"I didn't think we started out that great," Kile said. "We had some turnovers that we shouldn't have had. We missed a lot of free throws early on. And even early, we had the lead, but we weren't our normal self. We just looked slow. We didn't look like ourselves. We have to come to play next time we see them."

SENIOR 160-POUNDER
RUNS CAREER WIN
TOTAL TO 172

HASTINGS TRIBUNE

DAYKIN — Add another record to Austin Wilson's résumé.

Already the holder of multiple state records, the St. Cecilia senior 160-pound wrestler tied the Nebraska high school all-class record for career wins with three wins Thursday at the Turkey Creek Invitational — bringing his total to 172.

"That's a lot of matches," said Wilson, who already holds the all-class state record for wins in a season and near falls in a season. "To be that close to winning more than anyone in the state of Nebraska, that's pretty awesome. There have been quite a few really good wrestlers to come out of Nebraska."

Wilson ties Lincoln East's Drew Etherton, who won 172 matches during his career from 2005-08.

"He's worked really hard to go out and win every match," STC coach Ryan Brand said of Wilson.

"Getting the all-class wins record — yeah, you get more matches now than you used to — it just shows the sustained success he's had throughout his high school career."

It's become the trademark of the Lawrence-Nelson girls basketball team — its 2-3 zone defense. It's frustrated opponents and caused grumbling in the stands for basketball fans seeking high-scoring, fast-paced affairs.

But the bottom line is it's successful and the Raiders win with it.

L-N coach Cathy Biltoft says she first conceived the idea of the team's zone defensive scheme several years ago after watching game film of the North Carolina men's basketball team, coached by Dean Smith. At the time, Biltoft thought she had the players who could execute the defense — namely speedy, athletic guard Kim Faimon, who was the 2006 Tribland girls basketball player of the year and later went on to stand out for the Hastings College women's basketball team.

"It's a 2-3 zone, but there's a lot of junk with it. I started it way, way back when Kim was there because she was always on the ball all of the time," Biltoft said. "And I had other girls who could read what she was doing, so they just adjusted accordingly. It's a zone defense, but if somebody goes into your zone, you make the adjustment and everyone else does, too."

The Raiders have mastered the zone defense this season, which Biltoft admits it usually takes some time each season for the team to adjust to.

Lawrence-Nelson is allowing teams a meager 27.3 points per game this season, having held three opponents

SILVER LAKE ADVANCES TO SEMIFINALS OF CONFERENCE TOURNEY

NICK BLASNITZ
sports@hastingstribune.com

ROSELAND — The Silver Lake boys basketball team defeated the Kenesaw 60-44 in the quarterfinals of the Twin Valley Conference tournament Thursday night.

Senior Sawyer Monroe led the Mustangs with 17 points, including a 3-for-3 effort from 3-point range, to help his team win a physical game against the Blue Devils.

"We have a football team playing basketball," Silver Lake head coach Terry Bauer said. "So physical games are usually in our favor. We have done a good job in the area of battling. It's another conference win for us, so we're very happy about that."

With the win, the fourth-seeded Mustangs (9-5) will play No. 1 seed Shelton in the semifinals Saturday at 2 p.m. at Adams Central.

Experience appeared to be an important factor in Thursday's game, as the senior-heavy Mustangs were in control for much of the game against a young Kenesaw team. The defense by Silver Lake forced several key turnovers and held the Blue Devils (7-9) to 14-of-41 shooting from the floor. Kenesaw especially struggled with its half-court offense.

"As far as our half-court offense, we didn't execute," Kenesaw coach Jack Einrem said. "I don't know if it was their defensive pressure that was doing it or if we just didn't get our kids to the spots. We didn't execute very well in the half court. We haven't done that the last two games very well."

Einrem said the full-court press applied by the Mustangs forced his team to try to play faster than it was able to. When the Blue Devils speed things up, Einrem said, they tend to make mistakes and fail to Minden's Bryce Lewis wrestles Millard North's Connor Matthew in their 160-pound match of the St. Cecilia invitational Saturday.

Lewis looking to go out a state champion

VINCE KUPPIG
vkuppig@hastingstribune.com

A year ago, Bryce Lewis was close to accomplishing his ultimate goal.

This year, the Minden senior wrestler is intent on going out a state champion.

"I was so close last year," Lewis said. "I just want to go back and get the gold this year instead of coming back with silver."

Heading into today's Southwest Conference meet, Lewis certainly has put himself in position to make a run at a state title — one year after finishing runner-up.

The 160-pound Lewis is 30-2 this season and is ranked No. 1 in Class B at 160 pounds by the Nebraska Scholastic Wrestling Coaches Association.

Despite suffering his second loss of the season, Lewis might be coming off one of the more impressive matches of his career — a 9-4 loss to St. Cecilia's Austin Wilson during St. Cecilia's invitational Saturday.

Lewis scored a reversal on Wilson during the match, the first time all season Wilson has been scored on and just the second time in two years Wilson has been scored on.

"(Wilson is) strong. He put me on my back twice. I just kept fighting," Lewis said of Saturday's match. "I'm happy, but I'm still mad that I lost. I'm happy I did so well, but then at the same time I've got to look at it like I lost and I need to go back to practice and get better."

Said Minden coach Jim Andersen: "It went well. Austin obviously is very good. We just wanted to wrestle him, wanted to wrestle with him and see where we're at. I know some people have run from him. Bryce wasn't going to do that. We wanted to wrestle him. Coming out with that score in that match, I think Bryce feels pretty good about things."

Wilson, who has had only one other match go a full three periods this season, called Saturday's match against Lewis "probably the toughest match I've had this year."

"A lot of things can be learned from a loss," Andersen said. "When you wrestle a kid like Austin and wrestle him tough — win, lose or draw — it can be a confidence builder."

Lewis' other loss this season came to Travis Maresh of Central City, but Lewis later avenged that loss. Maresh currently is ranked third in Class B.

Nebraska secondary coach Sanders resigns

Staff and wire
LINCOLN — Marvin Sanders, who coached one of the top pass defenses in the nation, has resigned as Nebraska's secondary coach.
Coach Bo Pelini announced Sanders' departure in a statement Thursday, a day after Indiana coach Kevin Wilson said at his signing-day news conference that Corey Raymond was leaving the Hoosiers' staff to coach Nebraska's secondary.
Raymond would not confirm his move to Nebraska when reached Thursday, referring questions to Pelini.
Pelini said in his statement that he was "working toward finding a replacement for coach Sanders" and that an announcement would be made "when the hiring process is completed."

The secondary coach's job is the second opening on the defensive side. Pelini also is looking to hire a linebackers coach after Mike Ekeler left in December to become co-defensive coordinator at Indiana.
Speculation on the linebackers coach opening has centered on Ohio assistant coach Ross Els, who has been the linebackers coach at Ohio under head coach Frank Solich for the past six seasons. Els, a native of Lincoln, was the head coach at Hastings College from 1997 to 2000.
The Lincoln Journal Star reported that Pelini was to meet with Els on Thursday.
The status of the Huskers' staff overshadowed the signing of Pelini's fourth recruiting class on Wednesday.

Wilson first caused a stir from 650 miles away by announcing Raymond was going to Nebraska. Then it was reported that offensive coordinator Shawn Watson, receivers coach Ted Gilmore and Sanders did not attend the annual recruiting dinner in Omaha where assistant coaches discuss the new class with fans and boosters.
Their absences were conspicuous. Watson's future has been a point of speculation for weeks because of the offenses performance in the second half of the season. Gilmore has been the team's recruiting coordinator since 2007. Both were holdovers from Bill Callahan's staff.
Sanders, Gilmore and Watson have not returned phone messages, and Pelini declined to comment on Gilmore and Watson.

The 43-year-old Sanders played for the Huskers from 1985-89 and was the Huskers' defensive backs coach in 2003. Sanders returned when Pelini took over in 2008.
The Huskers led the nation in pass efficiency defense in 2009 and were third last season with a secondary featuring Big 12 defensive player of the year Prince Amukamara.
"Marvin has decided the most important thing for him at this time is to take a break from coaching and spend more time with his family," Pelini said. "Marvin is an excellent football coach, and he has been a key part of our defensive success here at Nebraska. The success of his secondary speaks for itself, and he has a great rapport with his players and other members of the staff."

execute. According to Einrem, that has haunted his team all year, and it's something he said his team needs to work on if it wants to win games.
Both teams relied on fast-break opportunities to score their points, but it was Silver Lake that really took advantage of those chances. Bauer said he and his Mustangs knew that they would be able to run the floor against Kenesaw.
"First time we played them, we got some fast-break points. When we watch them play, we noticed their posts don't get back so well," said Bauer, whose Mustangs defeated Kenesaw 43-34 in a regular-season contest Dec. 17. "Our big men run the floor really well at times, when they want to, and it seems like that's an obvious advantage when we meet."
Both of the Mustangs' post players finished with double digits in points. Jacob Trausch had 12 points, and Tyler Ostrander finished with 14 points. Bauer said that the Mustangs are playing with great team chemistry, and it couldn't have come at a better time than the conference tournament.
"Looking at it from a team perspective, our kids are finally gelling together as a team," he said. "I couldn't pick out who our leading scorer is right now. We're making extra passes and we're really playing together as

Wilson: Senior ties record; Bluehawks second at invite

Wilson, who last lost during the semifinals of the 2008 state tournament his freshman year, is now 39-0 this season.

Earlier this season, Wilson broke the state record for near falls in a season.

Wilson, who has signed a letter of intent with the Nebraska Huskers to continue his wrestling career there in college, tied the career record for wins in the same manner as he's won so many of the matches during his career, with a technical fall. He won his three matches Thursday with scores of 15-0, 15-0 and 17-0.

"He's really concentrating on turns and really trying to be dominant on top," Brand said. "It's really important at the next level that he's good on top and that he's good on his feet. He's had a really good season. Every match he's wanted to go out and dominate his opponent. That's been his goal."

With a chance to tie the record at the Turkey Creek Invitational, Wilson said he didn't feel any added pressure Thursday.

"I didn't even know really that I had the opportunity to tie it," Wilson said. "I always just go out there and wrestle however I'm going to wrestle and try not to think about any records or anything like that. I always go out there and wrestle how I do."

The two-time state champion said getting this record never really was a goal of his.

"(When I was a freshman), pretty much the only goal I thought about was being a four-time state champion," Wilson said. "And then when I lost, it was like I couldn't do anything that I wanted to do since I was little. (But through) working hard, I've accomplished many, many more goals throughout that next year and then my junior year.

"Yes, I didn't become a four-time state champion. But I've met a lot of goals that I've set for myself otherwise."

Wilson won't get a chance to break the career wins record until districts when the Bluehawks travel St. Paul for the Class C, District 3 tournament Feb. 11 and 12.

Also placing first at the Turkey Creek Invitational on Thursday for St. Cecilia were Joe Tickle (130), Zach Small (135) and Brice Faber (171). Harry McMahon (140) placed second for St. Cecilia.

The Bluehawks placed second as a team with 104.5 points, just behind champion Freeman's 105 points and just ahead of third-place Dorchester's 104.5 points.

The Hawkettes tried to rally in the second half, trimming the deficit to 35-32 at the end of the third quarter and coming to within 38-37 with 2:42 left to play as Kissinger hit a 3-pointer and Charise Farmer scored on a drive to the basket on back-to-back possessions.

But again, the GICC defense responded, holding the Hawkettes scoreless in the final two minutes of the game. The Crusaders went 5-for-6 from the foul line during that stretch to expand their lead.

Kissinger was the only STC player to reach double digits, in scoring as she tallied 11 points on the night. Abby Jackson finished with eight points, while Lexi Schmidt tallied six points and 11 rebounds.

GICC's length and athleticism also made it difficult for the Hawkettes to establish any offensive post presence, as Schmidt and Kaitlyn Ernst combined for nine points on 4-for-14 shooting from the floor.

"I don't think it was necessarily what they were doing, it was how we approached it and attacked it tonight. We were just a step slow here, a pass wasn't good — especially in the first half, I thought our passing was really poor," Kile said. "We've got work to do. We've got to get better. We just didn't play our best ball and when you do that against them, everything's tough because they're long and athletic and they do a nice job on both ends."

Brand led GICC with 20 points and six steals, while Liz McGowan tallied 13 points. Brand scored 14 of her points in the second half, as she was a perfect 6-for-6 from the foul line.

The Crusaders hit 16-of-22 foul shots in the game, while STC was limited to 4-of-9 shooting from the line. GICC also held a 40-35 advantage in rebounding and collected 16 offensive boards.

There's a chance the teams will meet up again, as they're paired up in the Class C-1, Subdistrict 6 tournament that is set to begin Feb. 14 at Hastings High School.

Buderus: Raiders pride themselves on defense to fewer than 20 points .

Entering their Twin Valley Conference tournament game tonight, the Raiders have held each of their last two opponents fewer than 20 points for the game.

"I've had some coaches ask me how we do it and it's just a matter of the girls learning it in practice," Biltoft said. "Each year, it takes us a while to get the hang of it.

"It's not really a set 2-3 zone. We just look at the strengths of the team that we're playing and then we adjust the zone to match what they're doing. It's pretty flexible, and some teams have confused it with a man defense some of the time."

The zone defense has helped the Raiders shorten games this season. And while it doesn't necessarily produce as many turnovers as a full-court pressure defense, it does limit the number of shots an opponent has each possession as well as the number of possessions opponents get each game.

That's because not only are the Raiders patient on offense when they have the ball, but opponents must be patient on their offensive side of the ball in order to try to find a high percentage shot — not always an easy task.

"When we played Blue Hill, they've hit a bunch of 3s against us before, so we adjusted our zone not to give up so many 3-point shots," Biltoft said. "Most of the times, the girls can make the adjustments, but sometimes we get caught. But, as the season goes along, the girls get a little more familiar with each other and what to do and that's when it starts to mesh together."

The Raiders enter the TVC tournament as the top seed overall, sporting a perfect 15-0 record. The Raiders are the No. 1-ranked team in Class D-2 according to the Omaha World-Herald and they are more than a full point ahead of the second-place team in the D-2 wild-card point standings.

But right now, none of that matters. The Raiders are only focused on winning.

"We don't talk about any of that, being undefeated or anything," Biltoft said. "We talk about one game at a time and that's the only way we look at it. You don't want to start focusing on all of that other stuff. If you concentrate too much on your record as opposed to your opponent, you're probably going to lose."

Coach Biltoft said it takes a team mentality to operate the zone defense successfully.

"We have some quick girls and I'm always preaching to them to watch what teams are doing away from the ball. It's the girls who play away from the ball on offense and defense who are going to get the ball and make the plays," she said. "It's not the girls that are on the ball — it's always the girls who are off. I emphasize that a lot and everybody has to buy into it."

The Raiders feature a senior-laden team with plenty of experience operating the unique zone defense, including Kristin Drudik, Marissa Kovanda, Lisa Pohlmeier, Natasha Wehrman and Kelsey Himmelberg.

Juniors Kelsey Biltoft, Kenzee Kucera and Kasandra Fanning also provide plenty of experience for the Raiders.

Offensively, the team isn't lighting up any scoreboards, as it is averaging only 40.5 points per game. Kelsey Biltoft, a 6-foot-1 post player, is the only player averaging double figures in scoring at 14 points per game.

But the team is well rounded, as three players average more than five rebounds per game (Biltoft, Kovanda, Wehrman), three players average more than two assists per game (Drudik, Kovanda and Fanning) and both Biltoft and Fanning are averaging more than two steals per game.

The Raiders are hoping that's the recipe for the ultimate success on the hardwood this season, as the team tries to follow up winning the state volleyball championship in the fall.

The team is looking for its first state championship since Lawrence and Nelson consolidated, although the team has qualified for the state tournament in 2010, '08, '06, '03, and '02. The Raiders finished fourth at state last year after winning its first-ever state tournament game before falling in the semifinals and in the consolation game.

"Right now, we're playing with a lot of confidence," coach Biltoft said. "But you have to play with confidence. The girls, they have to believe and trust in each other and believe in what we're doing.

"We're going to keep taking it one game at a time and see how far we can go."

DOUGHERTY

YORK COUNTY, NEBRASKA LAND AUCTION

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 2011, 10:00 A.M.

Holiday Inn Banquet Room, just south of the I80 and Highway 81 Intersection.

Farm Location is ½ mile south of Interstate 80 Highway at York, Nebraska, then 3 miles east to the northwest corner of the subject property.

LEGAL DESCRIPTION: Northwest Quarter of Section Twenty-seven (27), Township Ten (10) North, Range Two (2) West of the 6th P.M., York County, Nebraska. 160 acres more or less.

This without a doubt is one of the finest York County farms that has or will be offered this season. It's location in the heart of the seed production area make this farm a true gem for the investor or farmer. It's location in close proximity to three major seed production plants, ethanol production facilities as well as major grain terminals adds to the desirability of this property. This property has been well managed and is a property you could claim "Pride in Ownership".

This farm is pivot irrigated from an 8" irrigation well serving a 10 tower Zimmatic pivot system.

Other information such as soils maps, aerial photos, topography map, well data, tax information etc. is available at our PIP (Property Information Packet) by request.

Call either our Hastings office or our York area representative, Mike Foley at (402) 366-6030 or email us at auctions@ruhterauction.com. We can mail or email the PIP.

Sippy cups and your child's teeth

Do you know the dos and don'ts of bottles and sippy cups? What simple steps can you take to make sure your children or grandchildren have strong and healthy teeth? In recognition of National Children's Dental Health Month, South Heartland District Health Department would like to pass on some tips from the American Dental Association.

As soon as teeth appear in the mouth, decay can occur. One of the risk factors for early childhood caries (sometimes called baby bottle tooth decay or nursing mouth syndrome) is frequent and prolonged exposure of a baby's teeth to liquids, such as fruit juice, milk or formula, which all contain sugar.

Tooth decay can occur when a baby is put to bed with a bottle. Infants should finish their naptime or bedtime bottle before going to bed. Because decay can destroy the teeth of an infant or young child, you should encourage your children to drink from a cup by their first birthdays.

Many training cups, also called sippy or tippy cups, are available in stores. Many are "no spill" cups, which are essentially baby bottles in disguise. "No spill" cups include a valve beneath the spout to stop spills. However, cups with valves do not allow your child to sip. Instead the child gets liquid by sucking on the cup, much like a baby bottle. This practice defeats the purpose of using a training cup, as it prevents the child from learning to sip.

Don't let your child carry the training cup around. Toddlers are often unsteady on their feet. They take an unnecessary risk if they try to walk and drink at the same time. Falling while drinking from a cup has the potential to injure the mouth.

A training cup should be used temporarily. Once your child has learned how to sip, the training cup has achieved its purpose. It can and should be set aside when no longer needed.

Tips
For sipping success, carefully choose and use a training cup. As the first birthday approaches, encourage your child to drink from a cup. As this changeover from baby bottle to training cup takes place, be very careful:

- ◆ What kind of training cup you choose
- ◆ What goes into the cup
- ◆ How frequently your child sips from it
- ◆ That your child does not carry the cup around

Talk to your dentist for more information. If your child has not had a dental examination, schedule a "well baby checkup" for his or her teeth. The American Dental Association says that it is beneficial for the first dental visit to occur within six months of the appearance of the first tooth, and no later than the child's first birthday.

Studying in the Medford, Ore. library, Rogue Community College student Tiffani Morrison talks about going to CSL Plasma in Medford to sell her plasma and supplement her unemployment income on Jan. 27. Many college students like Morrison are willing to tolerate a needle in their arm twice a week to supplement their income. After the plasma is separated from the blood, the remaining blood cells are returned to the body.

DONATING PLASMA TO SUPPLEMENT INCOME

MEDFORD, Ore. — Strapped for cash, Tiffani Morrison endured six hours of waiting at CSL Plasma in Medford Monday, hoping to get hooked up to a machine that separates plasma from blood.

"I've been donating plasma to get food," said the 41-year-old Talent resident, who is going through Rogue Community College's nursing program. "With the economy the way it is, it's a creative way to make a little extra cash."

Many college students like Morrison are willing to tolerate a needle in their arm twice a week to supplement their income. After the plasma is separated from the blood, the remaining blood cells are returned to the body.

Morrison said she receives $800 a month in unemployment compensation, and after a $500 rent payment little is left for other expenses. She was a plasma donor when she lived in Arizona, but this was her first time at CSL Plasma in Medford, which saw hundreds of donors show up Monday.

"They're looking for more people," said Morrison, who waited hours while filling out paperwork and sitting in line. "It's been a long morning."

Donors can receive up to $300 for the first month, though that can depend on incentive programs and a sliding scale. If they go twice a week, donors can average about $35 a week.

Business is booming at the Medford CSL center, which plans to add 15 employees to its current total of 75. "For CSL Plasma, it is a large center," said Chris Florentz, spokesman for CSL. An average-sized facility has 45 employees. He said the center's impact on the economy — from wages and donor compensation — exceeds $5 million a year.

Donations were on the increase nationally even before the recession hit. In 2005, plasma donations numbered 10 million, increasing to 12.5 million in 2006 and 15 million in 2007. By 2008, plasma donations hit 18.5 million, Florentz said. Plasma, a yellowish liquid, is extracted from the blood and used for medications and in operations.

Donors are screened, and the plasma is pasteurized as a further precaution to ensure there are no infectious agents in the blood. At the Medford facility, potential donors are asked to show their arms to make sure they aren't using intravenous drugs.

If a person has received a tattoo or piercing during the past year, they are also excluded, said Florentz, adding that he couldn't reveal the type of testing used on a donor's blood.

Todd Morehead, a 38-year-old Medford resident and RCC student, said Monday was the first time he had signed up to give plasma.

"I'm using it for gas money," he said. "Gas prices are getting crazy."

A health and physical education student, Morehead said he doesn't like needles or the long wait.

"It's hectic down here," he said. "I've been here almost three hours reading my books."

Morehead said he wasn't sure how he'd like being hooked up to the machine for about 45 minutes while the plasma is extracted, but thought he could do it twice a week.

"If it's not a painful process, why not?" he said.

The American Red Cross also relies on college students for blood donations.

"Our college students tend to be outstanding donors," said Donna Taylor, donor and sponsor representative for the Red Cross. "One population that has increased donations is college students."

She said she didn't have statistics or any way of measuring the impact the plasma facility is having on Red Cross blood donations.

She did say, however, "We do need more blood donors to keep up with the continuous supply."

Unlike the plasma facility, no money is exchanged for blood donations at the Red Cross.

Taylor said she has friends who have given plasma to get extra money.

"I have friends who are college students, and they are struggling," she said.

The Medford Police Department reports only a minimal number of problems at the CSL center over the past two years.

A total of 41 complaints have been received — none drug related, said Lt. Bob Hanson.

"Two a month — that's not too bad," he said.

Police arrested 16 people for causes ranging from disorderly conduct to outstanding warrants.

The parking lot is often filled with cars and people milling about. Donors often wait for hours at CSL, particularly if it's their first time.

Morrison, who waited six hours at CSL Monday, was finally turned down because she was running a slight temperature. "If you are a little dehydrated or run down, they won't let you donate," she said.

Disappointed, Morrison said she plans to go back later this week.

"If I could think of a different way to make money, I would do it," she said.

Cardiac services with heartfelt care

This month, the nation recognizes American Heart Month. Heart attack, stroke and other diseases of the heart and blood vessels are the #1 cause of death among Americans.

At MLMH and the Hastings Heart Institute, you will find some of the most advanced technology available, along with healthcare providers who truly care about you.

- Respected cardiologists on-site
- An advanced cardiac cath lab located in the Medical Services Building
- Local CT cardiac angiography services available

Cardiac rehabilitation

Cardiac rehabilitation combines monitored exercise, patient assessment and health education. Mary Lanning Memorial HealthCare offers one of the most comprehensive cardiac rehabilitation programs in the region. The program is certified by the American Association of Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation.

One-hour classes are held three times a week to accommodate patient schedules. The group setting provides an atmosphere of support and encouragement.

Please call 402-461-5256 for more information on the Hastings Heart Institute or any MLMH cardiac care services.
