LEARNING THE BASICS

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

Veterans' Day program at Indus School

INDUS SCHOOL REPORT

Indus School staged a Veterans' Day program Nov. 12 to honor local veterans and those who have given their lives to protect our country. The International Falls Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary, along with the Indus National Honor Society, conducted the program which featured Margaret Kostiuk singing and playing patriotic songs, a flag-folding ceremony, recognition of veterans attending, and the Pledge of Allegiance. NHS President Sofia Olesen told about memories of sending a package to the troops when she was in fifth grade and the response her class received. At the end of the program, students and staff filed by the veterans and VFW representatives to thank them for coming and for their support of our country. Kindergarten teacher Miranda Gustafson encourages her students to shake hands and present a paper they have colored as a token of appreciation to each veteran.
