FIELD TRIP

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

Falls High School Family and Consumer Science classes, taught by Marva Fairchild, are pictured with Loni Bright, seated at sewing machine. Students recently took part in a field trip to Bright's business, Top That by Loni. As part of her business, Bright sews projects for customers, including boat covers, cushions, as well as upholstering furniture. She showed students a variety of examples of projects she has done, including costumes for Smokey Bear. Bright's business, which started in her home, is now located in the Rainy Lake One Stop building.

Indus PBIS team wraps up training

INDUS SCHOOL REPORT

The Indus School Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports wrapped up their two-year training process for the implementation of the PBIS program at Indus March 12 in Bemidji.

The first year of the training involves three two-day trainings and the second year consists of three one-day trainings. The trainings take place in St. Cloud, Duluth and Bemidji. A majority of the work is complete through weekly team meetings throughout the school year, however.

At the last training, the Indus PBIS team received a recognition certificate signed by Gov. Mark Dayton and cake in celebration of the completion of their training. Team members include: Jahn Boyd, Sara Wendt, Mike Feininger, Jenny Taylor, Lisa Simon and Chelsey Reinarz.

Sixth grade teacher Sara Wendt notes, "Our team is very proud of the work that has been accomplished and the change that it has made in our school."

The team has developed a common-language "Indus Nation" packet that will serve as a PBIS guide for everyone at Indus, and they have also developed several other promotional pieces to create a positive school climate. Through the behavioral program, student behaviors are monitored and positive interventions and supports are implemented.
