As part of their after school recreation club, Indus students receive instruction about how to golf.

‘IT WAS AWESOME’

INDUS SCHOOL REPORT

Indus Recreation Club recently enjoyed learning about the game of golf at International Falls Country Club for two consecutive weeks. PGA Professional Tom O’Connell instructed the students on both the driving range and putting green, then “turned them loose” to apply their new skills on the course. As third grader Hattie Ulrich stated, “It was awesome.”

Fine Arts Night at Indus School

INDUS SCHOOL REPORT

The annual Fine Arts Night at Indus School April 30 was really fine. It was a tribute to the varied and unique talents of Indus students.

Not only was there a delightful play, “Bottle of Joy,” by Charles E. Bright, but there was a piano recital, a speech performance, an art show, and desserts provided by the ProStart culinary arts classes.

Directed by music teacher Stacy Ottemann, drama students Kierstyn Johnson, Holger Olesen, Isabelle Cress, Maria Leerssen, Nissa Thomas, Bert Dahl, Kaylandra Banner and Irish Malapitan, presented a play that had everyone laughing as they observed the “Kingdom of Happy” and the efforts of some cast members to empty the “bottle of joy.”

Advanced piano students of Ottemann and of Stephanie Schiro — Holger Olesen, Kyle Schiro, Annie Schiro and Nissa Thomas — played piano tunes they had practiced for the occasion.

One member of the Indus speech team, Kierstyn Johnson, presented her poetry performance at the Fine Arts Night with great diction and flair.

Student works of art were displayed by art teacher Lisa Simon in the commons area during the evening. Sculptures of clay and cardboard, paintings, mosaics, and other artwork demonstrated a variety of media and techniques.

The ProStart culinary arts students, Tylor Hanson, Danny Patch and Jace Nelson, prepared “Tasty Treats” for the evening, showcasing eight different sweet and savory samples.
