

Sue Meyer, a paleontologist from the Science Museum of Minnesota, gives kids puzzle pieces resembling dinosaur bones that they pieced together Tuesday at the International Falls Public Library.

Fossil fun

Area youngsters got an up-close and personal look at dinosaur fossils at the International Falls Public Library Tuesday. Sue Meyer, a paleontologist from the Science Museum of Minnesota, visited Borderland to teach kids about dinosaurs, and how they turn into fossils. Meyer brought real dinosaur fossils to show kids what dinosaurs look like after millions of years of being buried underground.

Meyer asks kids to make observations about the fossil by looking at its size, shape and color.

Kids begin putting the skeleton puzzle together starting with the dinosaur's head.

Kids try to put the puzzle pieces of the dinosaur in the correct place with the help of Meyer.

Meyer helps kids look at the difference between bones and fossils with the help of two volunteers.

Meyer shows kids what the dinosaur may have looked like, based on its fossils.
