State Rep. David Dill, Tim Wegner, Margaret Homestead, Troy Mann, Kooch Commissioner Rob Ecklund

Boise X-9 is now in State Office Buildings

Why would the paper used in Minnesota’s state offices not be made in a Minnesota Paper Mill??

That’s the question Margaret Homestead asked Rep. David Dill when Boise employees visited the state Capital last year. It was a question Dill got an answer to when Gov. Mark Dayton toured Borderland during the flood of 2014.

Dill, Koochiching County Commissioner Rob Ecklund and International Falls Mayor Bob Anderson escorted the Governor to flood sites where our local hero’s were sandbagging and protecting homes, businesses and community property. During the drive, the Boise paper issue was discussed. Enroute back to the Falls International Airport the Governor placed a very strategic call to St. Paul and Dill’s push for the required test of the Boise paper in state copy machines.

Each year, Boise employees visit Dill to talk about the wood fiber business, the community, outdoor issues, health care and more. This time, the efforts of the visiting Boise employees, Governor Dayton and Representative Dill resulted in Boise paper now in use at State Office buildings.

These are just a few of the outstanding people from Boise Paper that made International Falls products the standard in St. Paul possible. Each of these people deserve a salute from the community for their heads-up thinking and representation of your interests.
