Graduation changes don't change the need to celebrate

By Amy Duncan
Publisher

It's not the graduation you expected. It wasn't the senior year that you expected. And it seems sort of worthless to praise your resiliency or celebrate your toughness. At a time when you should be celebrating, you're hurting. At a time when you should be planning the future, the future is cloudy.

But maybe the challenges mean you have even more to celebrate. The Class of 2020 faced unknown obstacles this year and weathered them. You were resilient. You've had to be tough.

And you've succeeded.

When you succeed, you celebrate. No, this celebration isn't what you wanted. It's not what you and your parents planned for. But the circumstances don't change how much you deserve the recognition you're receiving. Nothing changes the pride your parents and your community take in you. Nothing can take away the fact that you are now, officially, a graduate of Indianola High School, Class of 2020.

Congratulations!

Arts are close to the hearts of IHS

Indianola High School Symphonic Band members follow each other through the darkness of back stage moments before a performance.

New band uniforms were the highlight of the annual Indianola Homecoming parade.

The audiences at this year's Cabaret got three for one with a dance performance by Terrill Hagener, Eva Gabel and Brooklyn Pottebaum.

Members of the symphonic band performed.

Caleb Nostrala, crash cymbals, performed with the Wind Ensemble.

Side One hit the stage during Cabaret.

Teachers, students form lasting relationships

By Tom Krapfl

The past four years have been the most memorable years of my life; Indianola has provided gateways to relationships and opportunities I didn't think were possible. Initially, I went into high school with a prejudice that all it offered was an education, but it has proven to be so much more. Academically speaking, I have been able to increase my knowledge and capacity to solve complex problems by a substantial amount in all aspects of my education. The teachers and faculty love to help you and encourage students to come in before and after school to ask questions and build a better foundation for their own education. However, I found that you only get out what you put into it. I have worked very hard to evolve my education to where it is today by asking questions, participating in class, going in early, staying late and studying at home.

Through frequent interactions with my teachers in class, clubs or other activities, I have found friends within the faculty rather than just teachers. No teacher in the high school is out to give anyone a bad grade; they all have each student's best interests in mind. Last year I had a few AP tests that I needed to study for and the teachers were able to take time out of their day to personally help me and provide resources to study from. They wrote recommendation letters for me, helped me with personal problems and made me look forward to coming to school each day. It's much easier to go to school when you know there is a person who truly cares about you waiting to greet you with a smile in every class. While I was making my college decision this past winter/spring I had teachers asking me almost every day if I had made my decision yet because they truly cared about where I was going. Whether it was the frequent stops in Mr. Youngs, Herr Clogg's German 'hallo' or the cluster of teachers by Mr. Garrell's room: It's all been great.

Although our senior year was cut short, this virus doesn't take away any of the friends or memories we have formed along the way.

I have also been able to get closer to many friends because of high school. When you walk the halls and work on projects with the same kids for four years you tend to form ongoing relationships with students and professionals alike. I look forward to passing time so I can wave to people in the halls. Through football games, basketball and even golf, I have met some amazing people. Indianola has given me the chance to form lasting relationships with people I love and will always share a connection with: Home.

Although our senior year was cut short, this virus doesn't take away any of the friends or memories we have formed along the way. Sure our Prom was cancelled and graduation is still up in the air, but at the end of the day, we are blessed with a supportive community, the opportunity to have received an excellent education and an overwhelming number of people that love us. We can't allow ourselves to focus on the negative events of today's world. Take a step back, put it into perspective and SMILE. I want to thank Indianola for nurturing a culture of love and continuous support for its citizens. Indianola isn't just a place to live; it's a place to call home!

Proud traditions; unlimited possibilities

By Heather Willmott

During my time at Indianola, I've seen the phrase "Proud Traditions... Unlimited Possibilities" countless times. It's part of our school's motto, and appears throughout the district and community. And despite this, I'd never given it much thought. Now, as I reflect on my time at IHS, this phrase has become both a point of sadness and hope.

Indianola certainly has many "Proud Traditions" that I've enjoyed taking part in over the years. I remember being so excited to finally be able to participate in them during my freshman year. I couldn't wait to paint windows on the Square and get dressed up for the dance during Homecoming week. I was anxious to join the high school orchestra, since I'd watched them perform for years and always looked up to them. I wanted to leave my mark on the community, so I joined service clubs and signed up to volunteer. Taking part in these traditions have made my high school experience memorable and helped me to grow as a person.

However, as my senior year is being cut short, these "Proud Traditions" have become a source of sadness. For years, my classmates and I watched and supported other senior classes as they participated in these traditions and prepared to graduate. As I watched, my excitement grew because I knew that one day, it would be our turn. I was looking forward to my last orchestra concert, walking through the halls of our elementary schools, senior awards assemblies and enjoying my last few days of school with my friends. The realization that I won't be able to participate in these traditions is heartbreaking. After years of playing "Pomp and Circumstance" for everyone else, it's likely no one will be playing it for me.

Despite the current disappointment, it is the second part of the phrase,

"Unlimited Possibilities," that gives me hope for the future. Even though I won't be able to finish my senior year, the things I've experienced up until this point have helped to build me into who I am today. My classes have given me the skills and knowledge I'll need to be successful in life. My activities have enriched my learning, given me opportunities to become a leader and allowed me to explore my interests. As I continue on to college in the fall, I am confident that my time at IHS has prepared me to pursue any possible career path or interest.

So, as I finish up my last days as an Indian, I am truly glad to have been part of IHS. I have learned and grown so much during the past four years. My experiences here have been extraordinary and I wouldn't change them for anything. I am so grateful to have been able to participate in some of our "Proud Traditions" and to have a school that ensures we are able to achieve "Unlimited Possibilities". Thank you, IHS, for everything!

Culture, community shape young people

By Alivia Bauer

My family moved to Indianola in 2014 because of my dad's new job. We had wanted a town similar in size to Spencer, Iowa, where we were moving from. I, a 12-year-old at the time, liked that the school colors were the same so I didn't have to retire my old purple and gold gear. With that information, my family decided to move here. I was unaware of what my new life in this new town would look like; I had no idea what to expect. What I was met with was much more than I ever would've imagined.

Kindness and community are two words that come to mind when I think of Indianola. "Iowa Nice" is real and can be felt by nearly everyone here. I believe that this town and community help to raise good-hearted children. This is something that I have seen in my time at Indianola schools. I have loved growing up with my peers and seeing them turn into the people they are today. This is especially true for my friends, who I have had the privilege to see go through thick & thin, become their own people, and who have made me grow to become who I am. They truly are all special people, with hearts to match.

Indianola's teachers, coaches and community members are the same way. Throughout my time, I have gotten to know the compassionate, intelligent and loving minds and souls of mentors who have shaped me into the person I am today.

Someone who has made his intentions obvious for many years about how seriously he takes his impact on his students and athletes is Coach Halstead. I have had the privilege to be under his guidance for five years as an athlete for both volleyball and softball. Something that I have repeatedly heard from him each season was his philosophy of being a coach. He believed that coaching was about more than just the sport; he felt that it was his responsibility to turn us into great young people. He always wanted to know about our lives, our health and our plans because he cared about us outside of the gym and beyond our years as an athlete of his. To this day, he sends out cards to graduates, just to let them know he is still thinking of them and that he genuinely misses them. This is a testament to what Indianola is about.

It is people like Coach Halstead that have helped to create a culture and sense of community that will stay with us for the rest of our lives. Whether they have invested their energy, time or money to support others in town, they have helped to build our community. It is with their help that Indianola feels like home to me and many others throughout the town. Throughout my time in Indianola growing up, in athletics and academics, there have always been a large number of supporters who wanted my success and who helped me to get to where I am. I would just like to say thank you.

Indianola senior athletes lead the way

Grant Hixson was selected for the Iowa Shrine Bowl. During his senior year, Hixson recorded 22 solo tackles and 5.5 assists. He had three interceptions and two fumble recoveries. He was a two-time first-team all-district corner.

Tom Krapfl took second in the district meet for boys golf, earning a bid to the state golf tournament.

Bailey Blake was the only senior on the girls basketball team that captured the Little Hawkeye conference title this season.

Miles Berg of Indianola was one of six Indianola wrestlers to make the State wrestling tournament in February.

Brennan Meacham competed at the Iowa State Duals in February. Indianola took eighth in the tournament.

Team spirit bonds students, athletes

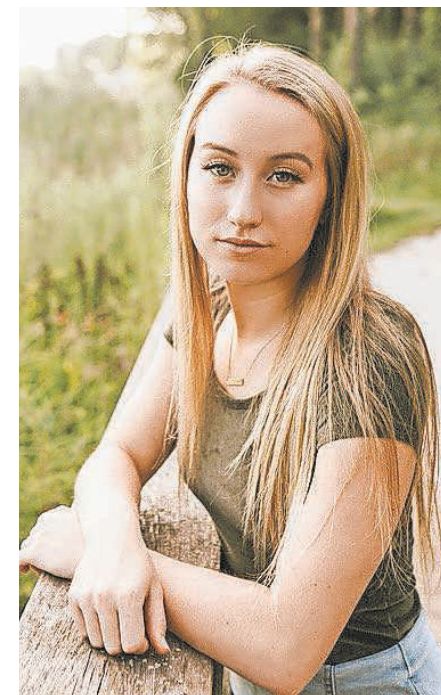

By Elly Flaherty

Friday Night Lights and being a part of our student section are experiences that have had the best impact on me throughout high school. Throughout the school day and after, there are cliques and drama, but when we are supporting our school teams we all come together. My senior year we played Norwalk at home in a conference volleyball match. I will always remember that game because we had the biggest student section, and there was so much energy in the gym. We went to five sets, and when we won the match our student section was waiting for us on the other side of the net to celebrate. That is one of my favorite memories from my high school volleyball career.

Another student section experience I will always remember is when our football team beat Johnston my senior year. We had the biggest student section that I had seen in my time at IHS and it was so fun to be able to support our boys and be there for that big win.

Throughout my time at Indianola going to sporting events and being a part of the student section was one of my very favorite things. Football, volleyball and basketball games were always something to look forward to for me. Being at these events showed me that regardless of what you're involved in, who you're friends with, or what your social status may be, we can all come together to support each other at the end of the day. That is an idea that will stick with me beyond high school, and that I will keep with me in the future.

Being at these events showed me that regardless of what you're involved in, who you're friends with, or what your social status may be, we can all come together to support each other at the end of the day.

Work ethic pays off

By Isabella DeVito

One thing I will take with me after graduation is an improved work ethic. I have always strived to take as many opportunities as I could and be a great student. Indianola High School has provided me with many opportunities that in turn have helped me better myself – whether that be in my academic life or in extracurriculars.

Each opportunity I took made me work harder to produce the best outcome. I was always encouraged to work hard, not just for school but for myself as well.

One lasting experience I will take with me is being in the Drama Club. I joined my sophomore year when I moved to Indianola and am now the President during my senior year. I worked incredibly hard to earn my position and seeing that hard work pay off was amazing. With that hard work came even more rewards. All of it has helped me better myself. I have learned the very important skill of time management and balancing all the activities in my life. As I move onto college, I will bring all those skills and values with me. They will continue to improve and aid me in future endeavors.

I will always be grateful for what Indianola has given me these past few years and I am excited to see what comes next.”

A year to remember

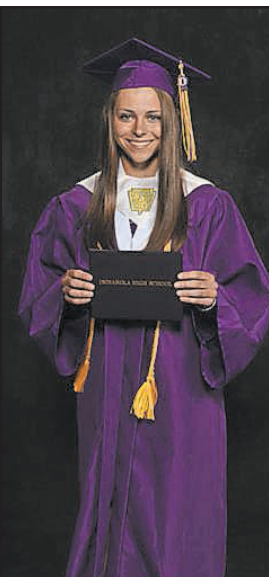

Jori Coghlan distributed caps, gowns and commemorative signs to seniors — all while wearing gloves.

Senior Blake Kennedy looks for his shot during a game against Mount Pleasant this season.

Indianola Class of 2020 gathered at the Indianola High School Stadium one night in April. Lights at the stadium were turned on for 20 minutes and 20 seconds in honor of the seniors, whose school year ended unexpectedly back in March.

Good Luck Indianola Class of 2020!
