hanukkah art contest

JENNIFER GOLDBERG | Special Content Editor

From menorahs and dreidels to latkes and gifts, local children choose to depict Hanukkah in many different ways.

Nearly 200 young artists from more than a dozen schools and synagogues participated in this year's Jewish News Hanukkah art contest and, as always, the JN staff enjoyed seeing all the ways the contestants painted, colored and drew the joys of the holiday. Congratulations to Noa Wein, a first-grader at Pardes Jewish Day School, for her winning piece of artwork, featured on Page 1.

In addition to the art, we also asked this year's participants what their favorite aspect of Hanukkah is; you can see some of the results on Page 2.

Visit jewishaz.com and facebook.com/jewishaz to see even more selections from this year's contest.
