Bureau of Reclamation – Annual Operations Meeting

The Bureau of Reclamation will hold its annual operations meeting to share updated information on the upper Snake River basin. Topics include runoff forecasts, water supply outlook, projected operations for Jackson Lake Dam and other reservoirs, river flow management, and current snowpack conditions.

Date: Thursday, May 14, 2026
Time: 1:30–3:30 p.m. Mountain Time
Location: Teton County Library, Ordway Auditorium,
125 Virginian Lane, Jackson, Wyoming
(A virtual attendance option is available. Details are provided

Representatives from the National Weather Service, the Natural Resources Conservation Service, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will join Reclamation to present hydrologic and operational updates.

The runoff forecast for the Snake River near Heise, Idaho, is 70 percent of average. Jackson Lake is at 79 percent of capacity and is expected to reach near full pool in late May (elevation 6,769 feet). High irrigation demand is anticipated this summer. By fall, lake levels may decline to about 15 percent full (elevation 6,737 feet).

Year-to-date water precipitation in the Snake River headwaters above Heise is 101 percent of average. Snowpack in the same area is 57 percent of average.

Given current snowpack conditions, the potential for flooding along the Snake River in Teton County is low. This assessment considers possible Jackson Lake Dam releases and downstream tributary inflows. Tributaries may still experience high flows during snowmelt, and caution is advised. Flood operations are coordinated jointly by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Reclamation, and flood potential will be discussed during the meeting.

Jackson Lake Dam, part of the Minidoka Project, is located on the Snake River within Grand Teton National Park near Moran, Wyoming. The dam was built in 1911, and components were replaced in 1989 under the Safety of Dams Act. Current river and reservoir data are available at: <https://www.usbr.gov/pn/hydromet/uppersnake/>.
