Mike Kelly Declares Candidacy for State Senate Seat, Offering a Fiscally Conservative Choice

Spokane Valley, WA – Candidate and businessman Mike Kelly has filed with the Washington Secretary of State’s office for the open Senate seat in District 4. Voters will be able to cast their votes for Kelly in the upcoming primary taking place on August 6th.

"I’ve talked to many citizens and business owners in District 4, and they share the same concerns that I have: increasing crime, homelessness, property taxes, and living costs, along with burdensome business regulations," says Kelly. "They are tired of being pushed around by Olympia, and want the power to determine for themselves what is best for their community. This means stopping the ever-increasing mandates coming from the other side of the state, and returning to our school boards and city council the ability to make the important policy decisions.

"Addressing these challenges requires determination and dedication to passing legislation favoring limited government and local decision-making. I will continue the tradition of the 4th Senate Seat by being a common-sense, conservative voice for the people in the 4th District. I believe by fostering relationships with like-minded legislators, I can effectively advocate for our shared values and we can bring about meaningful results," states Kelly

Mike Kelly’s campaign started in early April and has garnered increasing support from the community. Kelly has received endorsements from elected public servants, including Senator Mike Padden, Spokane Valley Councilwoman Laura Padden, Spokane Valley Councilwoman Jessica Yaeger, County Treasurer Michael Baumgartner, as well as Former State Reps. Bob McCaslin, Rob Chase, and Larry Crouse.
