ST. JOE — A trip to the newly-opened Millie's Diner in St. Joe is a trip filled with nostalgia.

The restaurant, owned by Billy and Alison Roark, opened at 209 Washington St. in November.

Inside, diners will walk into a retro environment, featuring black-and-white tile flooring, a jukebox, 45 records, album covers and posters, and tables decorated with 50s-era nostalgia.

For the grand opening, the Roarks were dressed to fit the theme: Billy wore a black leather jacket over a white T-shirt and jeans while Alison had her hair in ribbons with a poodle skirt and black top.

The Roarks acquired the building in August and immediately went to work.

"It's such a fun era, the 50s is, and we're like, 'Let's do it,'" she said.

Millie's is a brand-new startup for the place, with help from friends here and there, the Roarks completely remodeled the diner inside and out by themselves in a few months.

Millie came from family members: Alison has a great-grandmother and Billy has an aunt with the name.

The menu includes breakfast options as well as milk shakes, malts, baskets, sides and desserts.

Breakfast specials include a Breakfast Sammie with choice of bread, meat, egg and cheese with coffee for $6.50. Or try a breakfast quesadilla with coffee for $7.50. Kids menu available.

Other favs include their tenderloin, double smashburger and chicken sandwiches or make it a basket with fries and coleslaw. Top off your day with a milkshake or malt, soda float or fried ice cream.

Kids menu available.

The Roarks pride themselves on using local and state sources, such as Grabill Meats and pies from Dutch Heritage, Kuehnert Dairy Farm and a farm in Fishers.

Pricing is reasonable with the cost for two at about $20.
