

Version 1

In 1776, a couple of patriotic guys created a new country which was based on freedom and equal rights. Now, there's so much war and fighting between us Americans. When we reached Gettysburg, we went there to remember who died which was the right thing for the people.

We can't remember everyone who died but keeping more soldiers alive was the Army's duty. But, it's just too hard to keep every soldier moving forward. The world can't remember everything we said but what we did is what represents us.

We also have to keep fighting for our nation. If we don't fight, we'll lose our freedom!

Version 2

87 years ago, which is mad long ago, our old fellow Americans said bye... we're done with you England! We want freedom! We want a new country based on equal rights. Now we're squaring up and it's questionable whether we'll make it.

We are meeting up in Gettysburg to remember those who died. We honor the 51,000 people we lost. The Earth won't remember our words but our actions will make an imprint on this world forever. The dead and tears makes us one again. It won't be for nothing. Everyone left has to bleed and sweat to make America one again, if not, America will burn.

Version 3

In 1776, a bunch of savages created one nation where everything is equal. Now, we are in a war and do not know if we will make it out alive...

In Gettysburg, we are honoring those who have died and survived. Without them, we would be uncivilized and have no equality. As Americans, our jobs are to continue to keep our nation as one. We have to stick together to earn our freedom! Without team work, we would suffer. "Where there is no vision, the people will perish"

Version 4

87 years back then, old people created a new country to give freedom to the people so it could be constitutional. Now, we're battling to defend it but we are not sure if we will survive or not...

We're gathering in Gettysburg to remember the people who died and it was the right thing to do. Those still alive cannot bring back the people who died.

Everybody won't remember what we told them but remember what we have done. We have a lot of work to do to bring everyone in the country together. Everyone would have to agree to fight together so everybody can reunite again...

Because if we don't, the passion of love for this country will fall down – our freedom will be locked down – and we will die as a nation.

Version 5

87 years back in the day, the old dudes created a new country based on freedom and that everyone is equal. Now we're fighting and it's questionable whether we'll make it....

We're meeting in Gettysburg to remember those who died and it's the right thing to do. But we cannot 100% only remember them; those still kicking cannot bring back the dead.

The world won't remember what we say but what we do. We have a big task as Americans to keep the country together. Everybody left has to fight together to make us one again.... Because if we don't the USA and freedom will die!

Version 6

Ayo B, 87 years ago, 4 white guys formed a nation for a new constitution to help the brave, the savages – to fight these freak boys. Now there's a civil war testing whether they can take it or not. We met on the battlefield of the war. We dedicated some of the field as a death spot to those who gave their lives. To understand this, we can't let them steal our loyalty. We can't be faithful to our enemies. We can't let it stay with us. We need to remember the brave people who fought and died for us. These words will be forgotten but the phrases will be imprinted forever in history. Together our strength is unbearable against enemies and those that were lost are still existent to provide confidence. Adapt to these confidence suppliers and fight more vigorously for our great nation and for the sake of Freedom.

Version 7

87 years ago, our fathers formed the US made for freedom and done for that the black and white people are equal. Now we are in a Civil War and the North and South will battle for control. We have come to give some time to all the men who gave their life to protect us. We can't say anything more important than what the soldiers for this country. We can't do more change than what these men have done. The fearless soldiers now fought in the war and had to overcome many impossible challenges and always gave their all. My people we want remember about what we said here but we will remember our brothers who died for us.
