Charge dropped against woman who cut teen girl

By Mark Thornton
editor@leader-call.com

The case against a Jones County woman who cut her teen girl with a box blade was dismissed, but not before the woman got an earful from the judge. Ashia Lindsey, 32, was charged with felonious child abuse in September 2023 after cutting the then-14-year-old family member's leg during an argument in a car, but now the victim wants to drop the case, Assistant District Attorney Kristen Martin told Judge Dal Williamson in Jones County Circuit Court in Ellisville. "I was approached by (Child Protective Services), and they said she didn't want to proceed," Martin said.

The girl, now 15, has been a patient in two men-

'Straight-up idiots' did this

Laurel Parks and Recreation supervisor Jason Arrington, below, sprays down a bathroom at the Laurel Sportsplex on Thursday afternoon after vandals completely discharged a fire extinguisher that had been ripped off the wall of an adjacent concession stand. Vandals also destroyed bathrooms and the Laurel police are asking for the public's help in identifying the vandals. (Top photo submitted/ bottom photo by Josh "Guru" Nichols)

Laurel police Chief Tommy Cox isn't holding his feelings back regarding vandals who destroyed bathrooms and a hospitality room at the Sportsplex on Highway 84 West on Wednesday night. "Whoever did this is a straight-up idiot," Cox said. "There's no sense in this. This is destruction for the sake of destruction." Vandalism at the Susan B.

Anyone with any information on the vandalism is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 601-428-7867, or the LPD at 601-425-4711.

Vincent-Sportsplex has been a recurring incident, with vandals striking on Jan. 2 and again on Feb. 1 before the most recent act.

Laurel Parks and Recreation Director Elvin Ulmer is also frustrated with the vandals

Mayor, council getting raises; bids to be taken for paving project

By Kevan Lindsey
reporter@leader-call.com

Beginning July 1, several city positions will be receiving raises, which includes the mayor's seat and the city council's seats.

Ward 4 Councilman George Carmichael shared his thoughts on the raises, which were approved unanimously.

"Over the last 16 years that I've worked with Johnny Magee, and since I came on in 2005, we have not had a CFO (chief financial officer) since he became mayor," Carmichael said. "He is the mayor and CFO, so I think it is deserving. He is proven to be a good steward of the taxpayers' money."

Magee, who is seeking a fourth term as mayor, will have competition for the seat as Travares Comegys, Steven Brian Griffin and Anthony Hudson have all qualified for the April 1 primary. The general election is June 3. Magee, Griffin and Comegys are scheduled to appear on SuperTalk Laurel (99.3 FM) in a Leader-Call/SuperTalk mayoral debate March 26. (Details on Page A10).

The mayor currently earns $78,750 per year and that will increase to $125,000 annually. Each city council member will see a slight increase as well, moving to $25,000 annually, an increase from $19,950 annually. The council president will have $1,000 added to his or her annual salary, moving it to $26,000. Ward 3's Tony Thaxton serves as president, but will not seek re-election in the upcoming race. Thaxton's salary is $20,950, having the $1,000 bump for being

COOKING WITH Robert St. John

The weight of a wedding

Life tends to deliver milestones in clusters, never spreading them out at a leisurely pace, but stacking them up all at once. This week is no exception. Today (Saturday), my daughter is getting married — a once-in-a-lifetime event. Then, two days later, I board a plane to spend the next eight weeks working overseas. It's not ideal timing, but that's the nature of my life. In the coming months, I'll host six trips across Europe — Spain, Tuscany (twice) — a Tuscany trip I call Tuscany 2.0 where I host guests who have already traveled with me in Tuscany but with all new adventures — Holland/Belgium and England/Scotland. Some of these trips I've done before, some are newer variations, but I love what I do, no matter how many times I do it. And while those familiar streets, piazzas and villages bring me joy, my mind isn't on travel at the moment. It's on something far bigger.

The most common question I get these days is about the wedding. The second most common? "How did you lose all that weight?" Let's go ahead and clear that one up. No, I'm not sick. No, I didn't do it just for wedding pictures. It's been a multi-year journey. Three years ago, I was tipping the scales at 285 pounds. That's on a 5-foot, 10-inch frame — there's nothing healthy about that. I was 60 years old and still eating like a college freshman. I was shopping in the big-and-tall section and they knew as soon as I walked into the store that I wasn't tall. Something had to change. I tried one of those packaged food diets (the food was terrible), took one of those shots for a while, and worked overseas for months at a time — where I inevitably lost weight just by living differently. The Mediterranean lifestyle, the daily walks, the fresh, unprocessed food — it's not magic; it's just a better way to eat and move. Then I took I took a different shot for a while. Some say the weight-loss shots are "cheating." I say it's not a competition — it's my life. If losing the weight means I get to see my grandkids graduate one day, then I'll take whatever edge I can get.

Some might say this is a long-winded diversion from what's really on my mind, and they wouldn't be wrong. The truth is, my daughter is getting married and I'm doing everything I can to keep myself from falling apart. She's 27 years old, in love and ready. She and her fiancé actually dated in eighth grade, but that was the same year we packed up for a six-month trip across Europe. There was a tearful breakup on the front porch before we left, two boyfriends in between, and then — a decade later — Robert was welcomed back into the picture. Her mom and I couldn't have been happier. He's everything a father could hope for in the man who will stand beside his daughter. He loves her, protects her and respects her. And, maybe most importantly, he makes her laugh. He's the kind of man who will be a great husband and an even better father. He checks all the boxes.

If there's one thing I've learned in the past year, it's that planning a wedding is an entirely different beast. My wife has been in full planning mode since the day after the engagement and our friend Justin has been right there beside her every step of the way. I've learned that when it comes to wedding prep, there are two kinds of people — the doers and the check-writers. I landed firmly in the second category. But while I've done very little besides paying for it all, I have watched in amazement as they have poured every ounce of energy into making sure this day is nothing short of perfect.

And then there's my restaurant family — our team of 450 talented, hardworking people who make the impossible happen daily. Many of them are stepping up to handle the culinary aspects, bar and floral elements of the wedding, and I couldn't be more grateful. And the timing? Not exactly ideal. We just wrapped up Mardi Gras season, which meant hosting several large-scale events, cranking out thousands of king cakes and keeping up with the sheer chaos that comes with the season. They didn't miss a beat then, and they won't miss a beat now. I know how lucky I am to have a team that works this hard and cares this much.

My experience with weddings is mostly from the catering side. My experience with being the father of the bride — well, I'm a rookie. This is my first... and last. No do-overs. No practice runs. And I'm not handling it particularly well. I can be driving down the road, a song comes on the radio and, suddenly, I'm blubbering for four blocks.

The time comes for a father to do the hardest thing he'll ever have to do — stand back and let go. Not in sorrow, but in awe. Because what a privilege it has been to love her, to watch her grow into the woman she was always meant to be. She was once a little girl who fit perfectly in my arms, her tiny head resting on my shoulder, trusting me to hold her steady.

And now, she stands beside the man who will hold her steady from here. My role shifts, my place changes, but one thing never will — she will always be my daughter, my greatest joy, my proudest moment. No matter how far she goes, no matter what life brings, she will always have a place to rest her head.

Is it too soon to say that I am ready for some grandbabies?

Some weeks in life feel heavier than others. This is one of those weeks. But what a beautiful weight to carry.

Onward.

The Southern Heritage Garden Club Yard of the Month for March in Laurel is the home of Sally and Terry Caves. While several areas of the yard are just peeping out for spring, Japanese magnolias are sprouting magenta blooms and begging the beds of ornamental grasses and Pokeberry to show their style. Planters on the porch filled with colorful ivy, pansies and snapdragons welcome the warmer weather. Well-established holly trees, gem magnolias and various evergreens maintain throughout the seasons and provide a magnificent presence for the well-cared-for "Southern Living" home. (Photo submitted)

Shifting gears to beat deadline

Read more, react less

For 33 years, I've spent so many days and nights staring at a blank screen, blinking cursor and ticking clock, trying to wind down my mind enough to express a few cogent thoughts. For the last few years, I've fantasized about and feared this particular column. The finale. The farewell.

Even though I have been responsible for pumping millions of words into the public sphere for longer than Selena Gomez and Cardi B have been alive, my career is best summed up with the famous words of someone else: "What a long, strange trip it's been." I'm just grateful to not be dead after so many decades in a profession that has given me everything ... and taken a little, too.

I am so overwhelmed with gratitude after hearing kind words from people I respect and admire in this community at my farewell ceremony. This man who makes his living with words is at a complete loss for finding the right ones. I don't know where to begin, other than at the beginning. This is where I lighten the mood with some irreverence ... and it involves mood lighting. This is an interesting fact about me that I have never revealed in print, but it is noteworthy, at least from my twisted point of view.

(STOP READING HERE, MOM!)

I grew up just down the road from Madison-Ridgeland Academy. I didn't go to school there, but I did learn some valuable lessons on that campus. For it was there, in a press box on a crisp autumn evening in the mid-'80s, that I ... umm, well ... lost my virginity. At the time, I couldn't have imagined that milestone night was a prelude to my profession. For it was only a few years later that I began a career that took me to press boxes across the state, where I continued to fumble around, trying to figure out what I was doing, usually leaving half of the participants disappointed. It prepared me.

(START BACK READING HERE, MOM.)

There's no way I could sum up my career — or even the first couple of years at The ReView of Jones County — in one column. I went from being a near burnout the first two years of high school to having a senior English teacher (Marilyn McMillan at Madison-Ridgeland High School) who encouraged me and even let me write my term paper about Woodstock. Then I began writing papers for a few friends in college, and after finding out that they got good grades, it gave me the confidence to apply for a sports editor/general reporter position that was in the classified ads of my mom's hometown paper, The Star-Herald in Kosciusko, after she pointed it out.

Mark Thornton

I was raised in Madison ... I now consider Laurel my hometown, and I always will.

I did my best presentation, even offering to do the job for no pay in order to prove myself. The editor (Jack Weatherly) of the corporate-owned community paper almost took me up on it, offering minimum wage and capping my hours at 55. The commute was two-plus hours, roundtrip, but it didn't matter to me, even though I was working on all sorts of community happenings starting at 8 a.m., then covering games and interviewing coaches until 9:30-10 p.m.

After a few months, when it appeared that I was determined to stick with it, mom made a moocher family member move out of her childhood home in Possumneck (five miles east of West) to make way for her moocher baby boy. That free housing was crucial to surviving those low-wage, long-hour early years so I could learn on the job and work hard to prove I could do it. And my, what an adventure it has been.

My career spanned 1992-2025. That dash represents more sweat, sleeplessness, stories and sacrifices (for my loved ones, not just me) than I could possibly calculate. The word-count is almost two million in weekly columns alone, if that gives you an idea. The quantity isn't what matters, though. It's the quality of life it's given me and, hopefully, to the communities I've been entrusted to cover.

'New' guys grease wheels for new plan

I've had the privilege and the sometimes-unenviable responsibility of chronicling history as it happens in the communities I've worked in. I've seen blood and guts on fields and courts, and on roadways and in courtrooms, the glory and the gory. Some of the images can't be deleted from my mind, for better or worse.

For a community journalist, the workday is never over, and every day is a workday. The grind has gotten to me the last couple of years, and that's shown in my work. I haven't felt good about that. The people of this community need and deserve real go-getters at their paper, and I think they're in place now.

Kevan Lindsey brings experience in every phase of the publishing business, and he's seen firsthand what works — and what doesn't — and he can crank out a lot of copy in a short time and take great photos. On top of that, he's a great guy. Josh "Guru"

Nichols is a proven leader and go-getter, and having him back in the office for my last few days just feels right, like he's back where he's supposed to be. Jack Fairchilds has contacts and many years of media experience, in radio/podcast, which just needs to be translated to the publishing medium (which, interestingly, is what he started in as an intern with Sean Murphy and me at The Vicksburg Post in the late '90s). The three of them have the potential to bring some new ideas and approaches into a media landscape that is changing at warp speed, and I hope the people here will embrace that and be patient as they find their footing for those next steps.

Murph is the backbone (and backside) of the paper, handling so many things behind the scenes in the production of all our print products and website while also cranking out the majority of the editorials and many, many other things that he can do from his home in Cajun Country. He once had a heart attack in the office but was waiting until after deadline to go to the doctor. I nearly gave him a dozen heart attacks in Vicksburg by busting deadlines. But we've had more great times and crazy times than I can remember, and one of the great honors of my working life was to have him come join us here. He fit right in. Murph will always be "Class Favorite" wherever he goes. But he's a pro, too. The paper was at its absolute best when he lived here because we had a friendly competition going for top story in each edition. Those were the days.

Lakyn Prince is our all-around office go-to for just about anything to do with the business, from tech support to proofreading to placing signs in strategic locations to remind guys to close doors and to not pee on the floor. Handling business is part of the legacy she received from her mother Robin Bice, who was part of the "core four" who got our startup paper, The ReView of Jones County, off the ground in 2007 as ad director even though she was only "selling air," as she used to say. She later got us to the next level by landing national accounts after we became the Leader-Call. We wouldn't have made it without her, God rest her soul.

Kristin Carter has been keeping the registers ringing and the advertisers singing her praises after taking over that side of the business, juggling ad sales in the paper and all of our other publications, and Kim McKinnon has proven to be a nice and needed addition, too, particularly with her ties to Jasper and Smith counties.

Having the "new" guys in place played a big part in my decision to shift gears — literally — in careers. The next phase of my life will be cross-country trucking. It sounds like the middle-ager's equivalent of running away from home, but I am, in fact, running to something. That has been my "retirement" plan for a couple of years now — selling everything, saving money and scouting the country to find the perfect place for a stream- or lake-side cabin to spend my non-working years. Perhaps there will even be time to write every once in a while. Maybe even a book that I've always wanted to do that digs deeper into a notorious crime that happened here, sprinkling in a few stories about our struggles and how we beat impossible odds to succeed.

A farewell video for the ages

Shining the light on others is what I've done for 33 years, so having the spotlight directed at me this week has been ... uncomfortable. I deal with complaints much better than compliments. That's not just bravado. That's my cynical wiring after so many years of doing this. Complainers can be obnoxious and idiotic, but at least they're sincere. When someone compliments me, my mind instantly (and, perhaps, insanely) goes, "Uh-oh, what does this person want?"

But during the farewell ceremony at our office on Wednesday, as I was being showered with kind words and gifts that I will forever treasure, something dawned on me, and it softened my hardened heart: I'm no longer in a position to hurt or help them, yet they're still saying and doing these nice things. It was a Sally Field-like epiphany. "You like me; you really like me!" (Of course, that was followed by the cynic whispering, "No, they're just happy to see you go, you moron." He's always lurking somewhere, the little devil.)

It also dawned on me how fortunate I was to get to be at what seemed like my own funeral, to hear all of those nice things. It was overwhelming, but oh so appreciated since my mom got to hear them, too, as did my amazing cousin Susie (aka mom's niece/chauffeur). Jim made sure of that, and it was a big surprise. They even got to have dinner with us at The Loft, which featured a farewell video that was so amazing, I can't even describe it. It was a compilation of childhood photos and videos from our many years together that was hilarious and heart-tugging. The voice of Morgan Freeman followed by video messages from Ellen Griswold (Beverly D'Angelo), singer Lisa Loeb, Jackie "The Jokeman" Martling, mentors/friends Karen Gamble and husband Jimmy Mullen, and even ex-Sheriff Alex Hodge, whose mere presence may have been more amazing than any of those celebrities, plus his presentation was funny and encouraging.

A small act of kindness is all it takes to make me feel a deep sense of appreciation for anyone. But to see what all of these people, particularly my co-worker friends, did to put together this sendoff ... it left me at a loss for how to properly express my gratitude.

There's no way I could mention all of the people who have been meaningful in this part of my life, and frankly, if you're the type of person who would care about being thanked publicly, we probably weren't that close. But there's no way I can't focus on a couple of super special people who will forever hold a place in my heart.

Fight then flight

Jim Cegielski is the best boss and best friend I've ever had, plus he's the most generous person I've ever known. He often compliments Kassie Rowell and me for staying with him after his original partner decided to take the money and run, leaving behind flaming bags of dog poop in the place of a stable business foundation. Jim credits us for being willing to stay and fight our way through the seemingly impossible situation that was caused by the betrayal of the man he believed to be his best friend. No one would have blamed him if he'd just said, "To hell with this. Sorry, guys, we tried." He was more of a victim than we were, but he stood up and accepted responsibility for actions that were 100 percent the fault of a lying, cheating, grifting thief.

Jim could have cut his losses, moved on and been fine financially, and that probably would have been the smartest thing to do, but he let us decide. We chose to stay and fight, vowing to let our success be the ultimate retribution. And against impossible odds, we beat down the 100-year-old Leader-Call, which was backed by a multibillion-dollar corporation, and took its name ... then had to get right back in the ring against a new paper that was backed by a multimillion-dollar company, and we eventually won that one by TKO.

In between and after, there was chaos and drama, within the office and from outsiders, countless all-nighters, boycotts and death threats, lawsuits and investigations, and a whole lot of functional alcoholism — with an emphasis on "fun."

For the best and worst days of my life, personally and professionally, Jim and Kassie were there. The death of my baby Ava, my divorce, my death-defying but devastating motorcycle wreck (with Jim taking me to and from rehab every day for weeks), my dad's death and ... well, so much, dealing with the struggles of single fatherhood and a demanding job. They were always there to help or to just listen.

That's what made this decision so difficult. It took me months to muster up the courage to say the words to him ... not because I fear him but because I don't want to let him down. I love and respect him, just like I love, respect (and sorta fear) Kassie, who is so amazingly talented and driven in everything she does — whether it's designing a book, magazine, newspaper page or ad, making a better meal than you can buy anywhere in the Pine Belt, decorating for an office party with a flair that any area venue would envy or just being the best mother and grandmother.

Jim works way harder than he has to, says what's on his mind and will put himself in the crosshairs if it means standing for what's right, and those qualities are worthy of admiration, regardless of whether you like him. That's something he has in common with our president. He's the funniest and best all-around guy I know, too ... which made my decision even more crushing.

In my defense, I didn't leave during any of our down times — and believe me, there were many. I waited until the timing was right to activate my plan. My child is now a 20-year-old independent adult, the paper is in good hands, the housing market seems strong for sellers in Jones County (thanks, Ben and Erin!) and spring is the time to put it on the market. And I have a solid, albeit somewhat unconventional, plan to follow. I turned 55 last year, so my clock is ticking. I'm going to beat deadline this time.

I was raised in Madison, lived in Kosciusko for five years, Vicksburg for five years and back to Kosciusko for another five years before taking the leap of faith to Laurel 18 years ago. I now consider Laurel my hometown, and I always will. I won't be a stranger.

I appreciate the outpouring of kindness I've received over the last couple of weeks, but I'm especially thankful that you let me into your lives to tell your stories or trusted me to tell the stories that were of interest to you. If I made you happy, sad or mad sometimes, that's OK. Just know that I always tried to do it right, even if I didn't do it well ... just like in that press box 40 or so years ago.

Russia is not our enemy

So, President Trump threw a tiny actor-turned-dictator out of the Oval Office and Democrats and the left-wing media went apocalyptic. Who cares? And what's new? If you watched Trump's address on Tuesday night and were not disgusted by the lack of respect from every Democrat, not even standing to applaud a 13-year-old brain-cancer survivor, nor the mother of a slain 12-year-old at the hands of an illegal migrant, then you are as evil as they seem to be.

By now, if you haven't realized, it's the Democrats and their propaganda media arm that are the real threat to this nation (not Russia or China), then you haven't been paying much attention.

Volodymyr Zelenskyy is a corrupt tyrant who was devastated when Donald Trump took office because he knew that the never-ending flow of our tax dollars that the Biden Administration, Democrats and the war-loving arm of the Republican Party were willing to send him was finally over. Zelenskyy, and many others, were profiting off of the war that has now gone on for more than three years and cost American taxpayers a whopping $180 billion.

Do we have $180 billion to give anyone? We are $36 trillion in debt. If you listen to the Democrats and war mongers, they are ready to keep funding the war in Ukraine for no matter how long it takes and no matter what it costs. Sending money to Ukraine was the only thing Democrats applauded on Tuesday night, which should tell you they couldn't care less about tax-paying Americans.

Think about this because there is no difference. Let's say you were personally $50,000 in debt and were unable to even keep up with the interest payments on your credit card, thus sinking you even further into debt each month. Then you had a distant cousin, someone who you didn't really know, doesn't live anywhere near you, and you have little to no personal history with, come and ask you for $5,000. Would you give it? You would only do so if you were a complete idiot. Unfortunately, we had an idiot as our last president and the entire Democrat party is loaded with them.

All those people on Facebook who posted "I stand with Ukraine" memes after Trump kicked Zelenskyy's butt to the curb are dumber than rocks, and anti-American to boot. President Trump and JD Vance were correct in telling Zelenskyy to come back when he was ready for peace, because three years, $180 billion of American taxpayer dollars and nearly 500,000 dead people are enough. When have enough people been slaughtered to satisfy the corrupt politicians who are in favor of continuing to fund a bloodbath?

The only explanation for Zelenskyy, and American and European politicians wanting to keep this war alive, is that they are willing to sacrifice human lives in exchange for kickbacks. More than $60 billion of the $180 billion of American taxpayer dollars are missing. Where did that money go? How are so many American politicians worth millions upon millions of dollars? Nancy Pelosi's net worth is $267.6 million. Mitch McConnell's net worth is $52 million. Chuck Schumer's net worth is $82 million. Barack Obama's net worth is $70 million. Hillary Clinton's net worth is $120 million. The salary of a U.S. senator is $174,000 per year. What kind of "investments" did lifelong politicians like Pelosi, Schumer and McConnell have to make to end up with that kind of money?

The people who are mad about Trump trying to end the war with Ukraine are the same people who are mad that Elon Musk is uncovering billions of dollars in waste, fraud and corruption with DOGE. The only people who could be against either are the same people who want the country to fail ... they are the enemy ... they are called Democrats.

As for the claim that Donald Trump is a puppet of Vladimir Putin, that argument is a pretty simple one to counter. Under Donald Trump, Putin behaved himself. There were no Russian invasions or wars during Trump's first term. Under Barack Obama, Russia invaded Georgia, Crimea and Donbas. Under Joe Biden, Russia invaded Ukraine, leading to a three-year war. Under Donald Trump, Russia sought nothing but peace. If anyone is a puppet to the other, this would prove that Putin is a puppet of Trump, not vice versa. But the reality is, Putin respects Trump. He respects strength and he knows that Trump isn't to be trifled with. Whereas Biden showed the entire world that he was a bumbling, stumbling dementia-ridden fool with his ill-fated and disastrous withdrawal from Afghanistan. We should count our lucky stars that China didn't attack us during the Biden years.

The Democrats and left-wing media's push to turn Putin and Russia into the evil empire that is intent on world domination is not only a faulty one but it is also a foolish one. Yes, Putin may long for the days of the old Soviet Union but Russia isn't even in the Top 10 when it comes to GDP. Heck, Russia's economy is behind both Canada and Brazil.

The only way that Russia is a dominant force in the world is through the threat of nuclear war and/or teaming up with China. So why in the world would we push Putin into the arms of China like the Biden Administration has done? Why wouldn't we want Russia as a friend? If you are of unsound mind and say that "we can't team up with Putin because he is a dictator," well you don't know American history very well.

One of the worst dictators in world history was a man named Josef Stalin. He was not only the leader of Russia, but we wouldn't have won World War II without him.

Trump gets attacked constantly (by stupid people, of course) for wanting to get along with the likes of Putin, Kim Jong Un and Xi Jinping, but why would we want to cut off the lines of communication with other world leaders, especially those that pose a threat? It makes no sense.

Trump's strategy of wanting to end the war in Ukraine by signing a mineral investment deal that makes some of our $180 billion back is putting America first. It is also a good deal for Ukraine, as the United States having a vested interest in Ukraine, is the absolute best way to make sure that no one messes with your country. The people who don't like the deal are simply Trump-degraded to the point of being anti-American. Of course, these are the same people who think men should compete in women's sports, that we shouldn't deport illegal criminals and that MSNBC is a real news outlet.

If people would simply sit back and let Trump be Trump, you will see peace in Ukraine, a friendly Russia and China, smaller government, less taxes, a stronger economy, a secure border, safer streets and a "Golden Age of America." Remember, the people who are against these things are our real enemy.

Another big week behind us

On Tuesday morning, I was flipping channels and stopped to see what the left's own dying CNN was squawking about (I do that regularly to hear the "other side"). There it was, despite their wanting so badly for it to be different, an "unconfirmed" report that Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy had made a statement regretting his pitiful performance the previous Friday when meeting with President Donald Trump and Vice President JD Vance.

He said he regretted the way the meeting unfolded and hoped to return and sign the rare earth minerals agreement and restart the chance for ending the fighting and bloodletting in their no-win war brought to them courtesy of Russian aggression, helped along by the foreign policy idiocy of the Obama/Biden presidency and furthered by the Biden/Harris presidency. Trump's "Art of the Deal" sounded like it was playing out to me, but I knew this was only half of the equation. If true, the ball will be in Russia's Putin's court to secure a ceasefire. I figured I'd have to wait until later that night when I watched the president's address to the joint session of Congress to hear it from him, if he brought it up, to believe it. I'll "circle back" to this as Biden's press secretary used to say.

That night, I stayed up past my bedtime, put a bag of popcorn in the "nuker" and sat down and tuned to Newsmax. What I watched was amazing. For you readers who skipped it, you missed a historic, eye-opening, optimistic and uplifting speech by the president. He commanded the room. It also might be remembered as the most singularly disgusting, disrespectful display ever by the Democrats. That's saying a lot, because I don't hide that my opinion of them is pretty damn low. I never actually expected to see the reasons for my disdain put on such an open display like was done by this mob. As I've compared them to before, they're truly a real life "the Borg" of Star Trek fame, and everything I saw only validated my view. I only pray there might be a few of their indoctrinated Kool-Aid swillers left with a couple of functioning neurons, a few ounces of remaining common sense and some small, tattered remnant of American patriotism remaining who finally saw that party for the loser it truly is.

Here sat the Democrat warhawks, wearing ties the colors of the Ukraine flag, dutifully putting Trump over the barrel as a Putin "puppet." Oh man, how they seem to want an endless war. Or maybe they'd prefer a shortcut and lob a couple of nuclear missiles.

That will require a willingness — and some vestige of a moral core — to take a good hard look inside themselves and reject the ideological lunacy of that party. Maybe they'll open their eyes and ears, and by the mid-terms decide to vote for their freedom and possibly their very lives. Because what I saw confirmed the American Democrats haven't any place in control of anything, anywhere... and they especially need to be kept away from our kids. And if they ever get any power again, my opinion is the good-old U.S. of A. will be S.O.L.

First, these leftist idiots alienated me out the gate. Those who showed up and didn't boycott this important session of Congress either remained seated as the president entered the chamber or, for the few who did stand, not one applauded as is customary. For a bunch who demanded "respect for the office" when their guy spoke, they all came with paddles or signs with words like "liar" and other anti-Trump accusations.

Here's what I saw and heard unfold by those Democrats who attended, while others boycotted the event, including Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-Virginia) on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, and a guy who you'd think would have enough interest in hearing how Elon Musk and the DOGE Boys have the goods on the waste and fraud in government.

But he sat out because he says he's "in solidarity" with federal government employees who've been terminated as part of Trump's push to downsize the government and cut waste. That's amazing. I thought a representative's job was to be in solidarity with his constituency and taxpayers paying the freight. Over the years, I've sadly concluded Congress had become a circus, but if it's collectively Barnum and Bailey, the progressive Democrats are the freak show. Thirty Democrat women came wearing pink or fuchsia because, as Rep. Judy Chu (D-California) wrote on X, "Pink is a color of protest and power. We're sending a message: Trump's policies are devastating women."

I got a great laugh out of that piece of hypocrisy. After all, it was just a day after every Democrat senator voted against protecting women in sports from men competing in their athletic events. And, up in the mezzanine, sat Riley Gaines, one of Trump's ardent supporters. She didn't need pink because Trump had already empowered her and all women athletes through an executive order. Wow.

But pink dresses, white boards and paddles were benign compared with the display put on by Rep. Al Green of Texas. That guy stood up and waved his walking cane around, called the president a liar and ranted about Medicaid, Medicare and their old stand-by bugaboo — Social Security cuts. Green's been ardently against Trump since he was first elected his last term. He was the dude who put forward the first articles of impeachment, and has done it again already this go around.

He looked like a damn fool and a caricature of some old pimp haranguing "his girls." He's not the first representative to heckle a president. There were others from both parties. But he made history as the first one to get himself hauled off by the House sergeant at arms. A censure followed. Good. Too bad he got tossed too early to hear the president enumerate the billions of Social Security dollars being paid out to dead people. Stopping that will go a long way toward making that system solvent. Wouldn't have ever come out if not for Trump and DOGE. And only the braindead thinks Medicare and Medicaid aren't being abused and being run into the ground with fraud and inflated or unnecessary charges.

So here's where I circle back and end. Because the CNN report was true. Trump read the letter from Zelenskyy aloud. He wants the deal. But here sat the Democrat warhawks wearing ties the colors of the Ukraine flag, dutifully putting Trump over the barrel as a Putin "puppet." Oh man, how they seem to want an endless war. Or maybe they'd prefer a shortcut and lob a couple of nuclear missiles. I dunno. I'm no fan of Russia. As a Navy sailor, I faced them at sea and in the air when they called themselves Soviets. Maybe that nation's name's changed, but not its character, bellicosity or the threat it poses.

I think Ukraine's fought heroically, and although they're no bastion of democracy, they're still the victim. But, based solely on available manpower, the Russians will run out of bodies long after the last Ukrainian warrior is dead. But moreover, it's not our war, and not Trump's war, but he's sure as hell had it handed off on him. We've spent $350 billion — a lot of it unaccounted for — and we've depleted our stockpiles of weapons and ammo to help a country we've no treaty or alliance to help. But I know if we don't intercede, broker a deal the war will continue, and I don't trust NATO to not screw this right into World War III.

The war must end because I don't want our kids bleeding and dying for them, and I think most of you moms and dads don't, either. As it stands right now, unless a ceasefire is brokered, we'll be dragged into it because they'll fall if we don't. We'll be broke, the Ukrainians enslaved and Russia more powerful and dangerous. We've got our hands full, folks. There's Chinese aggression, narco- and Islamic terror, Iran and its proxies and rogue North Korea. That's just a taste. Trump says he wants peace in Ukraine for good reason. We can't mess around and Trump isn't. I think he'll make a deal that works.

Student AP participation rate continues to rise in Mississippi

By Jeremy Pittari
Magnolia Tribune

A report produced by the College Board, called the Advanced Placement Cohort Report, shows that more of Mississippi's students are participating in advanced placement courses.

The rise in participation was highlighted in the 2025 report, which includes findings from the 2024 school year as compared to the prior year.

"The 7,063 students represent 25.8 percent of all 2024 Mississippi high school graduates who took 14,900 AP exams during their high school experience. Among the class of 2023, 6,804 or 24.8 percent of graduates took a total of 14,423 AP exams during high school and had a 36.5 percent qualifying score," a statement from the Mississippi Department of Education described.

The results show that Mississippi students are taking AP courses and passing AP exams at double the rate of 2013. Mississippi, Illinois, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island had the largest 10-year growth in the percentage of graduates taking an AP exam during high school.

House Education Chairman State Rep. Rob Roberson (R-Starkville) said it is very exciting to see an increase in advanced placement participation.

"It suggests that we aren't merely achieving better in Mississippi but sustaining better results year after year," said Roberson. "I am very proud of the teachers and students who are working hard to accomplish their goals."

Advanced placement courses are taught by high school teachers but include a curriculum that is on a college level. Students who take and pass the exams offered during the courses earn college credit.

MDE noted that 3 percent of public high schools in Mississippi offer students at least one AP course, and 29.6 percent offer 5 or more AP courses.

Within Mississippi, which is one of 37 states to have a statewide AP credit system, students who score three points or more on AP exams can translate those points to three college credits at a public university or community college within the state.

MDE said in 2024, 8.5 percent of the state's high school graduates earned a score of 3 or higher on their AP exam, the lowest in the nation. The national average is 22.6 percent.

Through the AP program, Mississippi's high school graduates have reportedly been able to save $8.9 million in college tuition and fees.

NEW BRIDGE

JUDGE THE SKILL OF YOUR OPPONENTS

Sun Tzu, an ancient Chinese general and strategist, wrote, "To win 100 victories in 100 battles is not the acme of skill. To subdue the enemy without fighting is the acme of skill."

At the bridge table, sometimes your judgment of the opponents' skill will influence your play -- as in this deal. South is in four hearts. West leads the diamond 10. East takes the first two tricks in the suit, then shifts to the club six. Declarer wins on the board and plays a trump to his king. West takes the trick and returns a diamond. How should South continue?

North's transfer bid followed by three no-trump showed five hearts and game values.

South starts with three top losers and only nine winners (one spade, four hearts and four clubs). He seems to need the spade finesse to work. However, after West's diamond lead at trick five, if hearts are splitting 3-2, declarer could discard a spade from the dummy, ruff in his hand, cash his last trump, cross to dummy with a club, draw trumps and claim. Note, though, that this fails here because West gains a second trump trick.

If West is a beginner, South must guess what to do. But if East and West are experts, West cannot have the spade king. If he did, he would have dropped the diamond nine at trick two as a suit-preference signal and East would have shifted to spades, subduing the contract.

West's defense strongly suggests that hearts are 4-1. Declarer should ruff on the board, cash his two top hearts, return to dummy with a club, draw the last trump, and take the spade finesse.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

Relatives' penchant for tall tales is driving sibling away

DEAR ABBY: I find myself increasingly less patient with my oldest brother and older sister. They lie incessantly about things they have accomplished, always making themselves out to be the best. It frustrates me to hear them say things that are not true.

she meant was each relationship was different, but they were all loving and enjoyable. With luck, this may happen for you as well if you allow it. You are still a young woman and have your life ahead of you. It is within your power to make it a happy one.

For example, while dining in a restaurant, my brother told a group of guys that he was a Top Gun instructor. In reality, he retired in the Air Force, NOT the Navy. My sister claims she paid 100% of her college expenses, even though my parents actually paid two or three years of her tuition, room and board.

only man I have ever been deeply in love with. He died unexpectedly from a heart attack, and I am still traumatized. I often relive that day in my mind. We were so deeply in love.

DEAR READERS: This is my timely reminder for all of you who live where daylight saving time is observed: Don't forget to turn your clocks FORWARD one hour tonight at bedtime. Daylight saving time begins at 2 a.m. Sunday. I look forward to it each year because it signals longer, brighter days and warmer weather. I find the extra light to be a mood elevator and an energizer. Spring has almost sprung! -- LOVE, ABBY

My husband says I should let it go because I see them only a few weeks a year. I don't want to spend time with them because of their ridiculous stories. What is the best response when they say things that are simply not true? -- CRINGING IN COLORADO

After that loss, I don't see how anyone can ever compare to that. We were so comfortable with each other. He was gone too soon, and I cannot get past the pain. How do I move on, or will I ever? -- SAD SURVIVOR IN MICHIGAN

DEAR SURVIVOR: Please accept my sympathy for the loss of your fiancé. You may need to talk with a therapist or join a grief support group to help you with the trauma of his death. Once you have done that, start socializing. If you open yourself to new relationships, you may meet someone with whom you are also comfortable and can trust.

DEAR CRINGING: A way to deal with this would be to take your siblings aside individually and ask privately why they feel the need to do this. Tell them it makes you uncomfortable when you hear them lie, and that they will be seeing even less of you if they continue doing it in your presence.

I remember, years ago, a friend of my mother who was widowed twice and in a long-term relationship after that. One day, she commented, "I can't get over it. My husbands were each so different!" What

South Jones star senior Ashton Magee commits to play for Wildcats

reporter@leader-call.com

From Jones County to Manhattan ... Kansas. In front of family, friends, teammates and others, South Jones Braves hoops phenom Ashton Magee made things official, signing with Kansas State University to further his athletic and academic career.

"It is a great fit for me, and I've built a great relationship with the coaching staff. I think it is all a perfect fit," Magee said.

Magee, a 6-foot, 7-inch 205-pound senior, is listed as a small forward and is a three-star prospect according to 247Sports, ranking as the third best player in the state and 51st ranked small forward in the country. He had multiple offers, and plenty of interest from teams around the country. Drawing recruiters to Ellisville to see him in action.

He had received offers from Stetson, Georgia State, Norfolk State, Bethune-Cookman, Monmouth, College of Charleston, Georgia Southern, New Mexico State, USF, Mississippi State, Ole Miss, UAB and Duquesne, according to 247Sports.

Magee said the decision to sign with the Kansas State Wildcats was fairly easy. He is the first Wildcats' high school commit of the 2025 recruiting cycle, and second commit overall.

"From the time I had my first interaction with the coaching staff and head coach Jerome Tang, it was great. Once I got up there and was able to be around them, it was an unbelievable experience," Magee said.

He continued by saying he believed he could compete at the highest level possible with their roster talent and staff, adding that the Wildcats have been competitive and are building a solid foundation, noting wins over Kansas (then Top 25-ranked) and Iowa State (currently ranked No. 10) this season, and KSU's 2023 Elite Eight run.

"I believe I can go out there and compete (against top competition)," he said.

Magee averaged 23.5 points per game, 8.3 rebounds and 3.2 blocks while shooting 57 percent from the field and 33 percent from three-point range in his senior season in leading

Conference tourney starts the 'madness' for the SEC

We have flipped the calendar to March, and in the sports world, that only means one thing — "March Madness."

The madness has already begun across the country as 12 conferences have begun conference tournaments. The Ohio Valley and Summit League are both slated to play their conference championship games today (Saturday). Also, in the Sun Belt, which started its tourney March 4, the Southern Miss Golden Eagles season came to an end in the opening round falling 78-64 to Georgia Southern.

However, the other two schools in the Magnolia State (Miss. State and Ole Miss) each have one regular-season game left to play today (Saturday) before moving on to next week's SEC Tournament at Bridgestone Arena in Nashville.

The Bulldogs and Rebels have hovered around, or in, the AP Top 25 nearly all season. Currently Miss. State is ranked No. 25 and Ole Miss sits just outside the Top 25 rankings at No. 32.

The 2024-25 version of SEC men's basketball is already being called one of the best conferences in the history of the sport. That shows as eight teams from the SEC are currently ranked.

Also, 12 teams are, as of now, projected to make the Big Dance. Texas and Oklahoma are currently sitting as two of the first four out, ESPN's Joe Lunardi reported in his latest version of Bracketology. Note, the record for the most teams selected from one confer-

Piper paces Mustangs past Tigers

By Jack Fairchilds
jack@leader-call.com

West Jones (5-4, 1-0 Region 3-6A) starter Dash Piper threw a complete game and drove in a run to help the Mustangs secure the win in their first 6A Region 3 game over Hattiesburg, 2-1. The Tigers fell to 4-5 overall and 0-1 in region play.

Piper gave up three hits and recorded seven strikeouts and yielded one unearned run in the victory.

Hattiesburg's Andrew Jordan gave up three hits and two runs, only one earned, and eight strikeouts in six innings.

Piper, who went 2-for-3 at the plate, helped his own cause in the first inning with an RBI double that scored Carson Green.

The Mustangs scored their second run with an RBI single down the right field line from Luke Everwine that brought in Brody Chandler.

Hattiesburg cut the lead in half after Jacob Polk hit into a fielder's choice. An error on Green allowed the unearned run to score in the top of the third inning.

From there, Piper shut down the Tigers the rest of the way.

West Jones was scheduled to play at Hattiesburg Friday night before traveling to South Jones on Tuesday at 7 p.m.

NE Jones 17, Mendenhall 0

Northeast Jones (7-2, 1-0 Region 5-4A) used an 11-run first inning to down Mendenhall (1-4, 0-1 Region 5-4A) 17-0 to open Region 5-4A play.

Carter Wiginton hit a grand slam in the first inning, the first of his two home runs on the night. Wiginton went 2-for-2 with two home runs and seven RBIs.

Cruz Sullins, Kade Mazingo and Brayden Hayes each drove in a pair of runs. Jax Sullins, Kaden Padgett and Jasper Herrington all drove in one run.

The game was mercy-ruled after three innings and gave the Tigers their fourth straight win.

Ryne Herrington got the win giving up no hits, no walks and striking out three.

The Tigers were scheduled to return to action Friday night at Mendenhall and are slated to host Kosciusko (8-2) today (Saturday) at 1 p.m. NEJ is then scheduled to host Oak Grove (7-3) Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Miss. House rolls the dice on mobile sports betting, amending two Senate bills

A House committee is rolling the dice that language inserted into two Senate bills to allow mobile sports betting will make its way through the legislative process. However, it's a game of chance that is not likely to win over senators.

House Gaming Chairman Casey Eure (R-Saucier) tucked the language into SB 2510 and SB 2381 after the Senate Gaming Committee killed his House bill which overwhelmingly passed earlier this session.

The measure does not have the support of Senate Gaming Committee

Jones College's Makynlie Jones has been selected MACCC Softball Player of the Week.

Jones, a redshirt sophomore outfielder from Vardaman, helped the top-ranked Bobcats to a sweep over No. 16 North Iowa Area Community College in the team's only competition of the week. It is the second time in her career to be selected MACCC POTW.

She went 6-for-7 (.857) with three home runs, four RBIs and five runs scored in the double-header. In Game 1, Jones homered and singled in an 11-3, six-inning victory. In Game 2, she homered twice and doubled twice as the Bobcats won, 5-4, in 10 innings.

Jones, who transferred to JC from McNeese State, currently has 13 home runs, which leads NJCAA Division II.

The Bobcats, 22-3 overall, open MACCC with a 1 p.m. double-header today (Saturday) at East Central.

the Braves to the Class 5A state semifinals. He was also selected as Region 3-5A Most Valuable Player along with being recognized as a part of the All-Region and All-District teams.

"There have been ups and downs," Magee said when discussing his high school career. "Overall, it has been great and I can't ask for anything better than this today. Some people don't get this opportunity, to be able to check out college towns and universities. Sometimes, it gets boring at the airports, though, but, other than that, it's been amazing."

Magee helped lead South Jones to the "Big House" in Jackson, where they fell in the Class 5A semifinal contest to Holmes County Central, 47-32.

"Despite falling short, the season was great," Magee said. "My teammates and I put in work every day. Coach (Rashidi) McCormick demanded a lot out of us and we did whatever it took."

Magee said he would miss being around his family and friends, not being able to see them every day, and he would miss the administration at South Jones. He also praised McCormick.

"Coach McCormick welcomed me with open arms. He took me under his wing and he means a lot to me," he said.

McCormick heaped praise on Magee.

"He is, honestly, a coach's dream," McCormick said. "Not just from a physical standpoint or with his athletic ability, but from a mental standpoint and work ethic. He is the first guy you see in the gym, and he is the first guy doing drills. He is even the first to cheer for his teammates. He is just an exceptional young man off and on the court."

McCormick also shared how mature Magee has been handling the pressure of being highly recruited and distractions that come with it.

"I can only say that it was God-given humbleness," he said. "He has every reason to have a big head and say 'it's all about me,' but he never did that. He always deferred to his teammates," McCormick said. "Even though the lights were heavy on him, he always shone it on his teammates to give them the spotlight. He has handled this process with great elegance and humbleness."

"Kansas State is getting a great athlete and an even greater person."

Chairman David Blount. The Jackson Democrat points to growing consumer protection and economic impact concerns, particularly raised by gambling establishments, in states where the mobile wagering has been approved.

"This is a different industry than any other industry because it is subject to forces outside of the control of the folks who are in this business," Blount told reporters.

Eure, a representative from the Coast, said the House bill was re-worked from prior session attempts aimed at addressing concerns raised by the Senate.

As previously reported, of the 38 states in the nation with sports betting, 31 allow online sports betting. Eure told the House in February that neighboring states such as Tennessee saw $97 million in tax revenue, while Kentucky brought in $35 million and Louisiana collected $64 million. North Carolina, which started allowing online sports betting in 2024, collected $96 million from March through December.

Eure's bill – HB 1302 – included a 12 percent tax to be applied to online sports wagers and a $6 million fund to be established to support smaller brick-and-mortar casinos in the state. Eure said he believes if the bill becomes law, it would add $40 million to $80 million annually to the state's coffers. Those funds would be evenly distributed between all 82 counties for roads and bridges.

Both amended Senate bills have passed out of the assigned House committees and await floor action in the chamber.

the tourney in Nashville still up for grabs.

This year's version of the SEC tourney will be the first of its kind for the storied conference as all 16 members will be playing

First-round matchups will include seeds nine through 16 playing each other with the No. 9 seed playing the 16 seed, the 10 seed playing the 15 seed and so on. The second round will feature teams seeded No. 5 through No. 8, which received a first-round bye, playing the winners of the first round games.

The quarterfinals will pit seeds one through four, which received a double-bye, playing the winners of the second-round games, with the winners advancing to the conference tourney semifinals. The semifinal winners are slated to meet in the championship game on Sunday, March 16 at noon on ESPN. The winner of the SEC title game receives an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

Miss. State, currently tied for ninth in the conference, is scheduled to tip off at 11 a.m. today on the SEC Network on the road at Arkansas (the Hogs are one game behind the Dawgs). Meanwhile, Ole Miss (tied for fifth in the SEC) will be on the road, as well, in Gainesville to battle the Florida Gators (currently second in the conference) at 5 p.m., also on the SEC Network.

All eight games played among SEC teams today will determine how the SEC tourney field is set. The only exceptions, win or lose, Auburn will be the No. 1 seed and Florida the No. 2 seed.

The 2025 NCAA tournament selection show is scheduled to air March 16 at 5 p.m. on CBS when all 68 teams who have made the tourney will be unveiled. The biggest question for the SEC is not if it will be well represented in the Big Dance, but just how many teams it will place in the tourney?

As a man who has made many predictions in this paper over the years, I am going to go with a baker's dozen of SEC teams will be picked to participate in one of the greatest spectacles in the world of sports — March Madness.

Chicken houses in Wayne County were severely damaged by Tuesday's severe weather. This photo, taken from an airplane by Keith Boyles, was sent to the LL-C by Ken Keyes.

A clucking disaster

By Kevan Lindsey
reporter@leader-call.com

Wayne County was hit yet again by another tornado Tuesday night, this time leaving four people hospitalized with injuries and multiple homes destroyed.

EMA Director Angela Atchison said three homes were destroyed, with a fourth home receiving damage. Six chicken houses also received major damage.

G and P Farm Road and Gravel Pit Road took the brunt of the storm, Atchison said, adding that four people were injured and were hospitalized.

Tuesday's tornado comes on the heels of two previous tornadoes in the county, with all on eerily similar paths. The first tornado happened on Dec. 27, which left properties damaged.

The December tornado traveled 11.94 miles, reaching wind speeds of 110 mph, registering as an EF-1 tornado by the National Weather Service.

On Feb. 12, a registered EF-3 tornado traveled 26.1 miles, ripping through the Whistler community in the county, destroying multiple homes and leaving residents with injuries.

Atchison said Tuesday night's tornado traveled 3.99 miles and was recorded as an EF-2 by the NWS.

"Tuesday's tornado was 150 yards wide," Atchison said. "The last one was 910 yards wide with winds over 150 miles per hour."

She said the wind speed from Tuesday night's tornado peaked at 127 mph.

Friday morning, the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency released a statement that three deaths occurred from the storms, with Clarke County reporting a death and Madison County reporting two deaths. MEMA also reported that there were a total of seven injuries, with Madison County having three and Wayne County having four.

"Statewide, counties have reported that 14 homes, and six farms received damage," MEMA officials said. Atchison said Wayne County victims need totes to store belongings.

"If residents would like to purchase gift cards so individuals can buy underclothes and pajamas, that would be great," Atchison added.

Paul Sheffield with Jones County Emergency Management said there was no structure damage reported, but there were power lines and some trees down across the county Tuesday.

In Jasper County, EMA Director Hudson Jenkins said they had no reported structure damage, but did have reports of trees down.

A fun, honkin' time at 'Touch-a-Truck'

By Kevan Lindsey
reporter@leader-call.com

Sounds of horns and sirens blared through The Backlot in downtown Laurel on Saturday afternoon as Nurture Our Future hosted "Touch-A-Truck."

"It is a child- and family-focused event," said Elizabeth Harris of Nurture Our Future. "Families can come with their children, but anyone who loves trucks and big equipment is always welcome."

Touch-A-Truck featured police cars, fire trucks and many other large rigs and equipment — about 40 in all — that allowed children to explore inside vehicles, beep horns and turn on sirens while operators explained how everything works.

"We've had so many people come through having fun, and the weather is perfect," Harris said. "I would say we had more people come through than ever. It has been a great day."

Nurture Our Future is a child-focused non-profit that promotes early literacy and school readiness, she said.

"We host and fund Imagination Library," Harris said. "We have about 2,000 children who receive books in the mail once a month. Dolly Parton does it, but we fund it."

Imagination Library was founded in 1995 by Parton, which began in her hometown of Sevier County, Tenn. It became such a success that in 2000, a national replication effort was underway. By 2003, Parton's Imagination Library had mailed one million books, proving to be the first of many millions of books sent to children around the world.

Nurture Our Future officials have seen firsthand how many books have made their way into children's hands locally.

"So far, we have given over 62,000 books to children over the past few years," Harris said.

Touch-A-Truck is not only a fundraiser for the organization, thanks to "generous businesses who sponsor the event," she said, but it helps bring the community together.

This was the fourth annual Touch-A-Truck hosted by Nurture Our Future, which the Laurel Sertoma Club sponsored.

Feed truck overturns Tuesday on Poole Creek Road

Outside of downed trees and other traffic hazards, Jones County was largely spared during the severe weather that passed through the area Tuesday afternoon.

However, at approximately 8:39 p.m., Rustin, M&M, Powers and Sandersville volunteer fire departments responded to a collision involving an 18-wheeler on Poole Creek Road near the intersection of Jeff Byrd Road. On arrival, firefighters found several Dixie Electric trucks on the edge of the road and an 18-wheeler on its side off the road, opposite of the Dixie Electric vehicles.

The power company had been in the area repairing damaged power lines from falling trees when the 18-wheeler approached and attempted to pass, and shortly thereafter overturned, witnesses said. Large ruts from its tires were visible where the tires sank into the ground, which was soggy due to the weather.

The driver declined transport to the hospital by EMServ Ambulance Service.

The Mar-Jac 18-wheeler was fully loaded with feed and was also leaking diesel after the incident. Firefighters assisted with traffic control until the scene was cleared.

The Jones County Sheriff's Department and emergency management officials also responded to the scene. No injuries were reported.

LPD probes suspicious death

LPD Capt. Michael Reaves prepares to enter a hotel room at the Executive Inn and Suites on Sawmill Road in Laurel shortly after noon on Thursday. Officers from the LPD, EMServ and the Jones County Coroner's Office responded to a call from the hotel (located across the street from McAlister's Deli) of an unresponsive man found in one of the hotel's rooms. According to a press release from the LPD, officers discovered a deceased white man in the room. The unidentified man's body has been sent to the state crime lab and the case is being investigated by the LPD as a "suspicious death." LPD Investigator Brad Anderson is leading the case. "At this time, I cannot add anything other than what was in the press release," Anderson said on Friday morning and the LPD said it would not release more information until after an autopsy is performed. Anyone with information regarding this investigation is encouraged to contact Jones County Crime Stoppers at 601-428-7867 or call the LPD at 601-425-4711. (Photo by Josh "Guru" Nichols) tal-health facilities since the incident and was just released on Jan. 31. She was in the courtroom last week and the judge asked to hear from her.

"I was disrespectful ... I'm now at home and we've been doing good," the teen said. Williamson asked her if she had been threatened or promised anything in exchange for saying that, and she said, "No, sir."

He then asked about the extent of her injury, which was described as a 2-1/2-inch deep cut that required nine staples at the time of the incident.

"Who takes a box-cutter to deal with a child?" Williamson asked.

Lindsey then chuckled as she stood beside attorney Jeannene Pacific, and the judge quickly called her out.

"You're laughing ... Is that funny?" Williamson snapped. "What was in your head?"

Lindsey said, "I don't know; I wasn't going to cut her." She has the box-cutter in her car for her job and it was in her hand when she went to hit the girl after she said something disrespectful, Lindsey said.

"Goodness gracious," Williamson said. "I'm reluctant to do this. You can be mad at a child, but who gets a box-cutter?"

While he was contemplating, he scolded Lindsey for her countenance in court, saying, "Look up here!"

He then warned her that if another similar incident involving her comes before him that he won't dismiss it.

When Lindsey was arrested, it was reported that she dropped off the teen at South Central Regional Medical Center for treatment and didn't stay with her. The teen was in CPS custody for a while after that because other family members described her as "out of control" and refused to take custody of her, according to the Jones County Sheriff's Department report.

VANDALS

targeting the Sportsplex.

"I think they are pitiful people, pathetic really," Ulmer said. "They've hit us like this several times this year now. This latest one is by far the worst. They vandalized our restrooms, our concession stand, our hospitality room and all down at the soccer field as well.

"They've destroyed toilets, mirrors, paper-towel machines, light switches, they tore down most of our security cameras and the wiring as well. They ripped a fire extinguisher off of a wall and then discharged the whole thing in one of our restrooms.

"Man, they are just pitiful, and I hope we catch them."

Cox is asking for help in finding the vandals.

"Somebody knows who did this," Cox said. "What I'm looking for is some help. There are a lot of people with a vested interest in those facilities. I'm looking for some help finding out who did this so we can prosecute them. Anybody that knows something can call us. They can call Crime Stoppers. I mean, what happens next time when they damage something worse and the fields aren't available as a result?"

Ulmer also expressed his concern about what could happen if the vandalism continues.

"These facilities are for the community to enjoy for various types of reasons, and the worst part is it hurts the kids in the community the most," Ulmer said. "It's just a disgrace to be honest and a waste of taxpayers' money to fix it."

While Ulmer said they don't know what the motive is behind the vandalism, he did have a message for the vandals once they are caught.

"I do know this, when we catch them we are going to make an example out of them," Ulmer said. "And, whatever the maximum charges are that they can be given, we will fight to make sure that is exactly what they get. Period."

CITY

Thaxton added to Carmichael's comments.

"One of the responsibilities of the council is to set the salary of the mayor and council seats," he said. "We've given a great deal of thought to this. We took this with a sincere effort to what was fair and to compensate the people involved, while thinking of the residents. We are proud of Laurel and the progress the city has made."

Thaxton said the council felt like it was time to adjust the salaries due to the responsibilities within the city.

"There are many people who work for the city and department heads who make good money. We are in a position where those department heads make significantly more than what the mayor makes," Thaxton said. "We needed to make an adjustment where the mayor is the top-paid position in the city. That was a significant reason to adjust."

Thaxton explained that the raise was for the next term and the existing council cannot give itself a raise.

"This takes effect for the next four years, and when you think about it, it has been four years since the mayor's salary has been adjusted," he said. "So it will be four years before the salaries can be adjusted again, so it is really for an eight-year period that we are looking at."

Other members of the council explained that not having a CFO has saved the city $1.6 million since that position was absorbed by Magee.

City poll workers, managers, count-center workers and election commissioners also will receive a pay bump. The state Legislature allows the raises every four years.

In other news, the board adopted a resolution to advertise for bids for the 2025 citywide paving project.

Thaxton said that four mills are set aside and the money from the mills is distributed evenly between the wards so that each ward can have certain streets paved. Thaxton estimated the total was more than $600,000 to be distributed evenly. He said this was the second time it has been done, and a list of streets would be provided later.

The council approved an order to enter into a contract with Water Company of America for services related to water department collections.

WCA specializes in locating, assessing and correcting problem conditions in the field related to water metering, wastewater collection and storm water, as well as utility billing database discrepancies.

Thaxton said the company would test the city's water distribution to see if all of the water being distributed is being billed correctly. Similar cities such as McComb have entered into agreements with the company to find any leaks or discrepancies in water distribution with success.

Documents were also approved to be signed for the West Drive bridge project after the city received approximately $800,000 to replace the bridge after it was closed. Construction on the project is expected later in the spring.

Long shadow of the past

Darkness encroaches in new season of 'The Wheel of Time'

By Sarah Passingham
TV Media

He's got the whole world in his hands. In the much-anticipated third season of the expansive fantasy series "The Wheel of Time," premiering Thursday, March 13, on Prime Video, the Dragon Reborn contends with dark threats against the light as the last battle looms on the path ahead.

The first three episodes of the new season will be available to stream on premiere day, with new episodes following each week. The season wraps up with a thrilling finale on Thursday, April 17.

Once simply a shepherd from the village of Emond's Field, Rand al'Thor (Joshua Stradowski, "Gran Turismo," 2023) has proven himself to be the prophesied Dragon Reborn, a powerful figure with the ability to either save the world from the Dark One or break it again.

Rand was discovered by Moiraine Damodred (Rosamund Pike, "Saltburn," 2023), an Aes Sedai of the Blue Ajah, a matriarchal order committed to protecting humanity and healing it from the devastation brought on by the last Dark One. Broken by men, the world has been repaired by the women of the order, but now the future is out of even their powerful hands.

This season, Moiraine and Rand, tragically tethered in every timeline that lies ahead of them, must face an agonizing reality.

"I have seen a thousand thousand futures. In every future where I lived, Rand dies," Moiraine narrates over a montage of possible ends in the official teaser trailer for the upcoming season. "The only way he lives is if I don't," she makes very clear.

The future of humanity rests on Rand's survival and the choice he must make between darkness and light. As he grows stronger, the darkness begins to turn his head away from the light and his allies, Moiraine and Egwene al'Vere (Madeleine Madden, "Pine Gap").

Per Prime Video, "These powerful women, who started the series as teacher and student, must now work together to prevent the Dragon from turning to the Dark ... no matter the cost." Those who crave power are just as interested in Rand as those who want humanity to flourish.

Also starring in "The Wheel of Time" are Daniel Henney ("Criminal Minds") as al'Lan Mandragoran; Zoe Robins ("Black Christmas," 2019) as Nynaeve al'Meara; Marcus Rutherford ("Funny Woman") as Perrin Aybara; Donal Finn ("Rogue Heroes") as Mat Cauthon; Ceara Coveney ("Young Wallander") as Elayne Trakand; Kate Fleetwood ("Scoop," 2024) as Lian-drin Guirale; Natasha O'Keefe ("Peaky Blinders") as Lanfear; Ayoola Smart ("Juliet, Naked," 2018) as Aviendha; and Kae Alexander ("Collateral") as Min Farshaw.

Joining the cast this season are Isabella Buccieri ("Finally Me," 2023) as Faile Bashere, a Saldaean relic hunter; Nukaka Coster-Waldau ("Agent") as Blair, a wise elder member of the Taardad Aiel; Salome Gunnarsdottir ("Pennyworth") as Melaine, a Wise One of the Taardad Aiel with mystical powers; Bjorn Landberg ("Unter uns") as Taardad Aiel clan chief Rhuarc; and Synnove Macody Lund ("Ragnarok") as Melindhra, a Malkieri raised by the Taardad Aiel.

Based on the bestselling fantasy book series of the same name, this latest season jumps into the fourth installment, "The Shadow Rising," by author Robert Jordan. The visual manifestation of the magical powers rendered by the series' characters has more than lived up to readers' imaginations, with the show having been nominated for a BAFTA in 2024 for visual effects.

Expanding on the already incredible sets and effects of its first two seasons, the official trailer for the upcoming season highlights the terrifying beauty of the "Wheel of Time" world. The White Tower is being literally and figuratively torn apart, Moiraine conjures power in a desolate desert and battles are waged over all kinds of terrain.

In a description from Prime Video, the upcoming season "will take viewers to many new regions and cities across the fictional continent of the Westlands, including the vast deserts of the Aiel Waste, the intoxicating and dangerous port city of Tanchico, and the forbidden and fog-shrouded ancient city of Rhuidean, where Rand and Moiraine will both experience life-changing revelations."

The action-packed season is split between a journey toward open-ended prophecy fulfillment and the wars that are waged as a result. "We don't win battles with politics and prophecies. We win with armies," Alanna Mosvani (Priyanka Bose, "Lion," 2016) preaches in the official trailer. Meanwhile, Moiraine receives torturous visions in the rings.

"The Wheel of Time" book series, initially authored by Jordan then by Brandon Sanderson after Jordan's passing in 2007, rivals J.R.R. Tolkien's "The Lord of the Rings" for the title of most beloved fantasy epic. The series has sold over 90 million copies since its first book, "The Eye of the World," was published in 1990. Known for their doorstopper length, the series includes 14 installments, a prequel and three companion books, and its popularity has inspired comics; card, video and role-playing games; and even a soundtrack.

Don't miss the continuation of the epic story of "The Wheel of Time" when its third season premieres Thursday, March 13, on Prime Video.

John Wick

AMC 7:00 p.m.

If there's one thing to not do, it's killing John Wick's (Keanu Reeves) dog. When mobsters take the one thing he holds dear, the legendary assassin does everything in his power to get justice — even turning New York into his bullet-riddled playground.

Shane Rimmer and Slim Pickens in "Dr. Strangelove Or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb"
