

Keeping homes safe, secure, beautifully illuminated

Safety. Security. Aesthetics. There are a lot of good reasons to install architectural and landscape lighting – and a lot of decisions to be made when you do. But the first and best decision you can make is to enlist the help of an outdoor lighting company with the knowledge and experience to do the job right.

"We are a full service company," explained Tim Sostak, owner of Outdoor Lighting Perspectives (OLP). "My guys are lighting designers and lighting technicians, who pride themselves on being masters of our craft.

"I always tell people, 'We can make your house look better at night than it does during the day.' That's because we understand exactly what type of lights will work best with your home's aesthetics and where to place them. But looking fantastic is only part of the equation. Outdoor lighting should also make your home safer and more secure. That step coming up your front walk that you don't think about in the daytime suddenly becomes a tripping hazard in the dark."

Customers who work with OLP also receive lifetime maintenance of their lighting system.

"We're with you for the long haul," Tim said. "With our Shine 365 program, homeowners can count on us to come out annually and make sure everything is working the way it's supposed to, and if there are issues or problems between quality checks, of course, we come out and resolve them as well."

In addition to architectural and landscape lighting, OLP also offers a custom outdoor holiday lighting service that includes set up, take down and storage.

"We can do anything from a classic white Christmas to a full on Clark Griswold and anything in between," Tim said, but he did caution not to wait too late.
