

Everything is better in good company ... even dentistry

That philosophy is what inspired Dr. Tanner Brown to rebrand Cottleville Smiles as Good Company Dental as an expansion of the Cottleville office gets underway, and a new location opens in Troy, Mo.

"The Cottleville Smiles name has stood for exceptional dental care from a team that genuinely cares about the people it serves. As we've grown, it made sense to bring our offices together under one name," Dr. Brown said. "A name that captures what we've always believed: that good care starts with good people. We are bringing together good doctors, good teams, and good patients.

"How we treat each other shows up in how we care for our patients. We're a people business, first and foremost. We take the time to build real relationships, listen closely, educate our patients, and show up for our communities."

That commitment to community is what's driving Good Company Dental's growth. The expanded Cottleville office and the new Troy location both aim to widen access to quality care in areas where patients need it most.

"Patients in Troy needed better access to quality dental care, so we made it happen," said Dr. Brown, who lives in Cottleville. "We're seeing that same need grow right here in Cottleville, too. Expanding our home office lets us meet it — bringing that same level of care to even more families close to home."

In an age when so many dental practices are being absorbed by large corporations, Dr. Brown is proud that Good Company Dental remains privately owned. Patients across all locations can rely on the expertise of Dr. Beau Butzirus, Dr. Sarah Murphy, Dr. T.J. Grybinas, Dr. Eric Fritsche and Dr. Thierry Papazian.
