

Providing business financing you can count on

For business and commercial real estate lending, small business owners need a partner they can count on. In St. Charles County, that partner is MRV Banks.

"We work hard to help some of St. Charles County's hardest workers – its small business owners," said loan officer Patrick O'Connor. "These are the men and women who start their days early and stay up late nurturing not only their businesses but also the local economy. We're honored that so many local businesses in St. Charles County and across Missouri rely on MRV Banks' comprehensive product line and personalized services, financing that's simple and easy to understand."

Business clients can count on fast and attentive service from a knowledgeable, credit-trained Relationship Manager, a quick and easy prequalification process, a wide variety of loan options with flexible repayment terms and consultative lending based on individual needs.

Commercial real estate clients can count on dedicated support from experienced loan officers, competitive interest rates tailored for commercial real estate, flexible loan terms to suit their financial needs, a streamlined application and approval process, local expertise and understanding of market dynamics.

"At MRV Banks, we believe in supporting local economies, organizations and businesses to create strong communities in which to live, work, shop, dine and raise families. Our branch office is staffed with knowledgeable, local employees," Patrick said. "When business and retail customers come in they know they can count on fast, friendly service from someone who cares about St. Charles County as much as they do."
