

Quality flooring built on trust

The O'Fallon Family Floors team brings years of experience, trust and care to every home and business they serve.

Brian Amon doesn't just run a flooring business—he has built a family. As the owner of O'Fallon Family Floors, Brian has spent more than 25 years in the flooring industry, guiding customers through one of the most important decisions they make for their homes and businesses. Over the decades, his reputation has been shaped not only by beautiful floors, but by trust, consistency and genuine care.

What truly sets O'Fallon Family Floors apart is the team behind the work. Many of the installers have been with Brian for over 17 years, and most employees have worked by his side for more than 15 years. That kind of loyalty speaks volumes. It reflects a workplace built on respect, shared pride and a commitment to doing things the right way. Together, this experienced team approaches every project with craftsmanship, attention to detail, and the same goal in mind: making sure every customer is happy.

Brian believes strongly in selling the value of every product he offers. Customers are guided with honesty and expertise, and they're treated to amazing deals without sacrificing quality. Just as important, Brian and his team stand firmly behind every product and every installation. If it bears the O'Fallon Family Floors's name, it comes with accountability and care.

Warm, inviting and dependable, Brian Amon has created more than a successful business. He has created a place where customers feel confident, supported and truly satisfied—long after the final plank is laid.
