

Seasoned expert helps seniors find their perfect fit

Change can be challenging, especially when it comes to finding the right senior living community for yourself or a family member. You want to be sure you select the right one, but where do you begin? The answer is a local expert, not a Google search.

Shona McIntyre, owner

"My goal is to reach families before they begin searching so I can help them search smarter and with more success," explains Shona McIntyre, owner of Senior Community Connections. Shona has 17 years of experience as a social worker and certified dementia practitioner. "This is my purpose in life. I love helping seniors and their families find communities that meet their needs and will allow them to thrive!"

The first thing Shona does is sit down with the family and compile a comprehensive report of wants and needs.

"We get real," Shona said. "We laugh, we cry, we talk about things like budgets and future care. Then, I find two to three locations that specifically fit their needs. I schedule the appointment and go on the tour with them. It's a very personalized approach – and my services are free."

Shona is paid a percentage of an agreed rate contracted with the chosen community. But that doesn't mean her search is not thorough.

"I really dig in and vet each community. I pull state reviews," Shona said. "I go the extra mile to make sure that every community I recommend is going to be a good fit. I also follow up with my clients quarterly for a full year, following their or their family member's move."

If you or a loved one needs to start thinking about a new, more convenient place to live, call Shona to set up a consultation.
