

Your local, family-owned bike shop

For nearly 50 years, Granada Bicycles has been more than just a bicycle shop—it has been a cornerstone of the St. Louis cycling community. Today, as the largest bicycle shop in the Midwest, Granada has earned a reputation for its unmatched selection of bicycles, expert service, and a customer experience built on genuine relationships.

From a child's first bike to a seasoned cyclist's next adventure, every customer is welcomed with a smile, treated with respect, and given the time and attention they deserve. Whether someone is training for a race, commuting to work, exploring local trails, or bringing in a trusted bike for a tune-up, Granada's knowledgeable team is committed to building lasting relationships—not just completing transactions.

"Our mission is simple," says owner Brad Blackwood. "We want to serve our community with integrity through high-quality bikes, expert service, and a welcoming experience. Every rider should feel like part of the Granada family." That family-first philosophy extends far beyond the showroom. Guided by integrity, expertise, and a passion for cycling, Granada's team is dedicated to providing honest advice, exceptional service, and support for riders at every stage of their cycling journey. For nearly five decades, Granada Bicycles has helped people of all ages discover the joy of cycling while creating a welcoming place where every customer truly feels like family.
