Jane had tried several different hearing aids and never did get hearing in both ears. We were recommended to Beltone and decided to go there at the Danville location. Jennifer gave her a hearing test and she could hear out of both ears on the machine. We decided to purchase them. When they came in and she tried them out, a big smile came on Jane's face and tears were flowing down her cheeks. It was the first time she could hear out of both ears. She has had her aids for 8 years now. Beltone has supplied batteries and kept her hearing aids in top notch service through quarterly check ups at no cost to her the whole time. Service is always there between regular check ups if you need it.

I took a hearing test 2 years ago and I was told I could not hear high tones. I reluctantly decided to purchase a pair of hearing aids. When I got them I had to admit that I was hearing high notes I never knew existed. What comes to mind is when I went to the bathroom and heard a tinkling sound. Now I Know what "I have to tinkle" means.

We both highly recommend Beltone.

It's 'Lopez vs. Lopez' in NBC's new parent-and-child sitcom Relations haven't always been rosy between George Lopez and his daughter, and they don't mind the world knowing it.

The comedian and his offspring Mayan play versions of themselves as they revisit their relationship – which was very fractured for some time - in "Lopez vs. Lopez," an NBC comedy premiering Friday, Nov. 4. Co-stars include Matt Shively and Selenis Leyva, and while humor largely is used to show the on-screen family's dysfunction, the real-life George and Mayan admit their estrangement and reconciliation hasn't been a laughing matter in many moments.

"My parents got divorced about 10 years ago," Mayan Lopez says, "and within the last two years, my dad and I really solidified our relationship. There was a time where we didn't speak and were estranged for about three years, but the pandemic brought us back together, and I started making TikToks with my family to reconnect. And ('Lopez vs. Lopez' executive producer) Debby Wolfe was scrolling one day and she saw one of our TikToks, and this was kind of born from that idea."

George Lopez notes differences between doing the new show and having made the earlier sitcoms "George Lopez," "Saint George" and "Lopez." He reflects that after the NBC premiere of an episode, "The next day, you're on (the streaming service) Peacock, and then on you're on NBC again. I think as times have changed, social media has changed and the comedy has changed, yet the (approach) of multicamera (production) doesn't change. To have done it 20 years ago is great, but (so is) to do it now, with people that are incredibly talented and much easier to find than it was 20 years ago."

Wolfe opines, "That's because George Lopez and the show 'George Lopez' really did pave the way and opened up a lot of doors and inspired a lot of Latinx talent to pursue their dreams. And now, here we are. We do have so much great talent (of that ethnicity) coming in, and it is different than it was in the past."

Executive producer Bruce Helford ("The Drew Carey Show," "Roseanne") believes "Lopez vs. Lopez" will be "a fun game for viewers to watch and go, 'Ooh, all of a sudden, there is something there that's very real.' It's an amazing thing to watch, that both George and Mayan are so open to exploring all the things ... not just with the writers, but also what they have to bring from their own experiences together."

Adds Mayan, "This is an experience of a lifetime, to be able to do this with my father. I have studied to be a comedian, but really, the inception of my love of comedy started at a young age."

'The Shining' helps mark the spooky season

217-904-3035

It wasn't made specifically to be shown at Halloween, but director Stanley Kubrick's 1980 take on the Stephen King best seller "The Shining" certainly has its share of chills to put forth. TNT presents it Sunday, Oct. 30, with Jack Nicholson in one of his most famous roles as creatively stalled writer Jack Torrance, who takes over the upkeep of a snowbound Colorado hotel.

He also takes on a different and terrifying persona as isolation has a pronounced effect on him, to the alarm of his wife (Shelley Duvall) and clairvoyant young son (Danny Lloyd). Veteran talents Barry Nelson, Scatman Crothers and Anne Jackson also are in the cast, but the striking production design (by Roy Walker) that memorably includes a snowy maze is a "star" of the film, too.

"Odd Man Out" (1947) Mason made a big mark in director Carol Reed's drama of an Irish rebellion leader wounded and on the run after a robbery.

"The Desert Fox" (1951) Mason gives an excellent interpretation of World War II General Erwin Rommel, a role he reprised two years later in "The Desert Rats." This film is included in the opening night of Turner Classic Movies' "Star of the Month" tribute to Mason on Thursday, Nov. 3.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" (1952) Stewart Granger has the principal role – actually, roles, since he plays lookalikes – but Mason also is prominent as a scheming rival for power over a country.

"Julius Caesar" (1953) Mason plays

"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" (1954) Mason makes a fabulous Captain Nemo in this superb, Walt Disney-produced adaptation of Jules Verne's undersea story.

"A Star Is Born" (1954) In one of the several tellings of the classic Hollywood tale, Mason plays Norman Maine, an actor whose popularity slides as his overnight-sensation wife's (Judy Garland) rises.

"Bigger Than Life" (1956) Mason is chilling in this addiction drama about a seriously ill teacher who participates in an experiment.

"Island in the Sun" (1957) Race and politics cause tension on a Caribbean island for various people, including the characters played by Mason and Harry Belafonte.

"Georgy Girl" (1966) Lynn Redgrave has the title role in this internationally popular comedy-drama, the would-be mistress of an older man (Mason).

"Movie: Noah"

Although it generated controversy in some quarters, Darren Aronofsky's epic 2014 retelling of the biblical Noah story earned mostly favorable reviews from critics and did well at the global box office, earning the director's biggest opening weekend. celebrity q&a

What attracted you to the role of a young John Winchester in the "Supernatural" prequel "The Winchesters"?

Well, I was a huge "Supernatural" fan in and of itself as the canon series. ... So when I saw the pilot come across back in March, I was definitely intrigued, super-skeptical when I first picked it up because I was like, "I don't know."

You know, when there's such a successful series as "Supernatural" was, I think your initial instinct is if you're going to do a prequel or you do any type of sequel, it's got to have its own angle, it's got to have some originality to it. Because I think the mistake a lot of series make when they do those is they're just trying to recreate what they had, which can sometimes come off as a little bit more of a cash grab situation. And so that was where my skepticism lied, is like I don't want it to be that. And then after reading the script and getting to talk to (executive producers) Robbie (Thompson), Jensen (Ackles) and all them, it was super, super clear that it wasn't that. It was super clear that they have an artistic vision and have a very specific angle in which they want to play with this. And so yeah, I was immediately drawn to (it).

Drake Rodger

OF 'THE WINCHESTERS' ON THE CW

So in your approach to the character, Jensen must have been a fantastic resource, correct?

Oh yeah, Jensen's incredible. Jensen has been instrumental in every part of this character and this creation because ... he knows the character. He knows the character probably better than anyone because of how he modeled Dean Winchester, was after his father. So he created a lot because Jeffrey (Dean Morgan, who played an older John in "Supernatural) was only really heavily in that first and second season and then he became more scattered throughout. And so a lot of who John Winchester is is created at how Dean perceived him. And so Jensen's been an incredible resource to that and he's always a phone call away or when he comes to visit set it's just fantastic and much, much appreciated.

"It's usually the ageless, single female who is available to fall in love with whoever comes along, (but) being a mom adds such a layer of richness to any character I could play." Kellie Martin, seen recently in "An Amish Sin"

on Lifetime, about the kinds of parts she often has in cable movies

"I've got to tell you, I am now addicted to producing ... just addicted. I love helping to create my character and the story, and having input on how to shape them." - Erin Cahill, seen recently in "Christmas Bedtime Stories" on Hallmark Movies & Mysteries

Being in every scene is really, really fun. ... If there's even an episode where I'm not working every single day, I'm going to freak out. I need to be on set, I need to be working." -Drake Rodger of "The Winchesters" on The CW

Demian Bichir of "Let the Right One In" on Showtime

"I'm always happy and grateful to be able to help any project, but I have to say to (executive producers) Andrew (Hinderaker) and Seith (Mann) and everyone at Showtime and Tomorrow Studios, they allow all of us, not only me, to give our input, and our voice and our vote counts. So, this is just one of those presents that life gives you, and I'm very grateful for that."

Lesley Manville of "Sherwood" on BritBox

"To be honest, I'm not really interested in sort of murder mystery dramas as such. ... It's why they done it rather than who done it, you know? That's interesting for me. Yeah. I don't want to just work out who the killer is."

Lauren Lyle of "Karen Pirie" on BritBox, on filming the series in Scotland

"You can't replicate it anywhere; the landscapes, the hills, the history. There are places in Scotland that are like thousands of years old and it's like you just cannot do that elsewhere and you can't put that onto a set."

Home renovation star Nicole Curtis returns to her hometown

James Caan was such a formidable and rugged presence, you got the feeling he'd be here forever.

No one ever is, of course, but the news of the actor's passing last March at age 82 still came as a shock to many people. As Turner Classic Movies salutes Caan with a full night of his films Tuesday, Nov. 1, here's a look at some of the best projects he made during a career that spanned 60 years.

"Brian's Song" (TV, 1971): After years of reliable supporting work, Caan began to step into stardom as Brian Piccolo, the Chicago Bears running back whose illness cemented his friendship with teammate Gale Sayers (Billy Dee Williams).

"The Godfather" (1972): Well, of course. What true movie fan can forget hotheaded mob son Sonny Corleone's exit? No spoilers here, but if you haven't seen it, do so. Now.

"Cinderella Liberty" (1973): In his first teaming with Marsha Mason (which TCM will show that night), Caan gave a wonderfully sensitive performance as a Navy man involved with a prostitute while he's on forced leave.

"The Gambler" (1974): This excellent character study casts Caan as a college professor who has a gambling addiction.

"Rollerball" (1975): As a very physical athlete of few words, Caan was ideal casting for Jonathan E., the biggerthan-he-was-meant-to-be star of a futuristic sport.
