Laurence O'Fuarain as Fjall in "The Witcher: Blood Origin"

Type "The Witcher franchise" into Google, and the results will reveal a vast and enviable fantasy empire. First created by Polish author Andrzej Sapkowski in 1986, the sprawling tale of monster hunter Geralt of Rivia has now evolved into a number of short stories, comic books and video games, as well as five table-top games, two feature films, two series and one manga to date.

On Christmas Day (Sunday, Dec. 25), Netflix expands the Witcher universe with the release of "The Witcher: Blood Origin." A miniseries spinoff of the hit Netflix adaptation, which is also set to release its highly discussed third season in the new year, "Blood Origin" is set 1,200 years before "The Witcher" begins. It focuses on the shifts in the elven world and tells the story of the first-ever Witcher.

Those unfamiliar with the plot of Netflix's "The Witcher" should know that it follows the aforementioned Geralt (a.k.a. the White Wolf, the Butcher of Blaviken and many other nicknames) on his quest to hunt deadly beasts and protect others by eliminating the threat of monstrous violence. Optimized for monster hunting, thanks (if such a word can be used — he's pretty bitter about it) to a series of unnatural mutations, Geralt travels the land with the bard Jaskier (Joey Batey, "Knightfall"), who often serenades him with songs of praise.

Amid his travels, the Witcher also runs into a series of humans, sorcerers, elves, goblins, merpeople and many more. Among this crowd are the franchise's two other main protagonists: Yennefer of Vengerberg (Anya Chalotra, "Wanderlust"), a sorceress who has an interesting, passionate and complex relationship with Geralt; and Cirilla, a.k.a. Ciri (Freya Allan, "Gunpowder Milkshake," 2021), the former princess of Cintra who was forced to leave her home during a siege earlier in the first season and find the Witcher.

While most talk of "The Witcher's" upcoming third season revolves around the departure of leading man Henry Cavill, its "Blood Origin" counterpart doesn't contain the actor at all. Instead, the prequel welcomes another familiar face to the franchise: that of "Everything Everywhere All at Once" (2022) actress Michelle Yeoh.

Yeoh plays Scian, the last living "member of a nomadic tribe of sword-elves on a mission to retrieve a blade stolen from her people." On her quest, she is joined by two others: Éile (Sophia Brown, "Giri/Haji"), a queen's guard warrior "who leaves to become a travelling musician" (because what is The Witcher franchise without a bit of nomadic song), and Fjall (Laurence O'Fuarain, "Game of Thrones"), who is described in the news release as "a man born into a clan of warriors sworn to protect a king, but [who] instead sets out in need of vengeance."

While each member of the trio brings more than their fair share of legendary weapon-wielding intensity to the screen, only one character in this saga's origin story can become the main event over the course of four episodes.

According to the Netflix release, "Blood Origin" will tell a story lost to time, exploring the creation of the first prototype Witcher and the events that lead to the pivotal 'Conjunction of the Spheres,' when the worlds of monsters, men and elves merged to become one."

That may seem like a lot of ground to cover in just four episodes — ground that, if the trailer is any indication, is riddled with waterfalls, cliffs and gorgeous green hills — but series co-creator Declan de Barra ("The Originals") felt the four-episode format was the best fit for the content. In fact, the series was cut down from an original six episodes during the post-production editing process.

When discussing the decision to cut the series by a third, de Barra mentioned that with a streaming platform such as Netflix, there are "no set rules for times or episode count." Furthermore, he didn't want to get to a point "where we're just stringing the audience along to have an episode."

"It always had to feel logical and right from a natural storytelling point of view," de Barra added.

As for the story itself, all signs (and online speculations) point to Fjall as the potential "prototype Witcher." And while this subplot provides a decent amount of backstory to the franchise's leading profession, it's the elves — introduced in "The Witcher's" first season and now at their prime (1,200 years prior to that encounter) — who drive the series forward as their world collides with that of terrifying monsters and men.

Ed Sullivan fronts a Christmas celebration

Since it offered such a wide range of guests, it only stands to reason that a certain series would have a lot of diversity in a "really big show" compiling Christmas segments. On the specific occasion — Sunday, Dec. 25 — MeTV presents "Holiday Greetings From the Ed Sullivan Show," a 1992 special with host Bob Newhart introducing clips of legendary talents who stopped by the original program with some seasonal cheer.

In terms of the range covered ... well, how about from The Beatles to Roy Rogers and Dale Evans? They're on the bill, as are Elvis Presley, Bing Crosby, Johnny Mathis and Della Reese. And of course, there's plenty of the inimitable (though many have imitated him) Sullivan, a newspaper columnist before becoming a somewhat unlikely TV icon who turned aspiring artists into superstars overnight.

Tonight's picks

Donna Reed and James Stewart star in "It's a Wonderful Life" Saturday on NBC.

Saturday

It's a Wonderful Life
WAND 7 p.m.

National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation

“Movie: Enough Said”

Included on many critics’ 10-best lists for 2013, writer-director Nicole Holofcener’s comedy-drama features what was one of James Gandolfini’s last performances. Little do they suspect they have someone in common who could thwart their relationship. Catherine Keener and Toni Collette also star.

“The Maltese Falcon”

BEST HUMPHREY BOGART MOVIES

“The Maltese Falcon” (1941)

Bogart is private detective Sam Spade, pursuing “the stuff that dreams are made of” – the jewel-encrusted title statue – while also probing his partner’s murder in John Huston’s great adaptation of the Dashiell Hammett novel. Turner Classic Movies shows the film as part of a tribute to co-star Sydney Greenstreet on Tuesday, Dec. 27.

“High Sierra” (1941) As an ex-convict out to pull his last job, Bogart is on the wrong side of the law in director Raoul Walsh’s tough melodrama.

“Casablanca” (1942) Well, of course. In one of the most classic movies of all time, cafe owner Rick (Bogart) is torn between his usual modus operandi of minding his own business and helping an ex-love and her husband (Ingrid Bergman, Paul Henreid) secure the wartime transit they desperately need.

“The Big Sleep” (1946) Bogart played another classic detective in literature, Raymond Chandler’s Philip Marlowe, in this complex mystery that involves the sleuth with the daughters (Bacall and Martha Vickers) of a general ... in a case that soon leads to murder.

“Dark Passage” (1947) A prison escapee (Bogart, in yet another teaming with Lauren Bacall) changes his appearance while trying to prove his innocence in his wife’s murder.

“The Treasure of the Sierra Madre” (1948) Huston steered both himself and his actor father Walter to Oscar wins for this classic gold-seeker drama, with Bogart and Tim Holt as the others hoping to get rich quick in Mexico.

“The African Queen” (1951) Directed here to an Oscar victory by John Huston, Bogart is ideal as a cranky boat captain partnered with a missionary (Katharine Hepburn) on a dangerous journey.

“The Caine Mutiny” (1954) Bogart is chilling as Captain Queeg, whose questionable actions aboard his Navy vessel lead to the court martial that two of his officers (Van Johnson, Robert Francis) face.

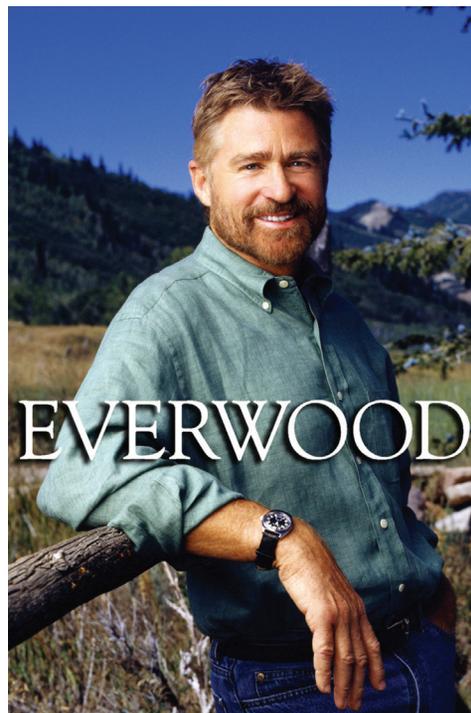

“The Desperate Hours” (1955) Bogart was near the end of his career when he played the leader of an escaped-convict trio holding a family hostage.

“Movie: About Fate”

This 2022 romantic comedy stars Emma Roberts and Thomas Mann as Margot and Griffin, two people who believe in love but have been unlucky in it — that is, until a wild twist of events puts each in the other's path on a stormy New Year's Eve. Britt Robertson, Madelaine Petsch and Wendie Malick also star for director Marius Vaysberg (“Naughty Grandma”).

“Movie: Wildcat”

From filmmakers Melissa Lesh and Trevor Beck Frost (“Person of the Forest”) comes this documentary that follows Harry Turner, an Afghanistan War veteran struggling with PTSD and depression, who gets a second chance in the Amazon rainforest when he meets an American scientist running a wildlife rescue and is entrusted with the care of a baby ocelot. OF THE PARENT TEST ON ABC

Q: What would you want viewers to take away from “The Parent Test”?

A: You know, I would hope they would come away with an understanding that the two most humbling things that any parent can ever do involves self-reflection and self-correction. So if they watch the show, I would want them to reflect on their own parenting style. But reflection is not enough. If they're doing something that's encouraging their child to grow up to be a healthy and happy young person and adult, then of course, continue doing it. But if they're doing something that's not quite on track for that, then the next part of that self-reflection is self-correction. So those are the most, in my opinion, humbling things that any parent can be a part of — self-reflection and self-correction.

Q: As a parent, did you catch yourself doing that here?

A: Oh, of course. There were parents there that — my only comment to them during a break was, I'd look at them and say, “Goals.” (Laughs) I mean, there's a traditional parenting style that's on this show that I fell in love with because my grandparents were very integral in rearing me. And then there was a family that reared their children in rural America as farmers. I identified with them because my grandparents were farmers. So I was constantly reflecting, constantly. And of course, my children are all young adults but now I have two grandchildren, so it's kind of like a second chance.

celebrity quotes

“The thing about his movies is that they really stand up over time. They don’t date. You could watch one today and it would be as fresh as when it first came out. And he’s always given great roles to women.”
– Helen Mirren of “1923” on Paramount+, about her husband, director Taylor Hackford (“An Officer and a Gentleman”)

“I had an opportunity to work on a series of films this year (‘The Love Club’), which was really cool for me. It gave me an opportunity to develop a character and then live with her for quite a while, so I felt pretty lucky.”
– Brittany Bristow, seen recently in “Wrapped Up in Love” on Lifetime

“I just love that music is the core and the heart of this film, and it’s what unifies all of us together. And on top of that, to work with the family that we’ve had was just a dream. And, yeah, it’s kind of ruined me now.” – Karen David, on singing and acting in the recent “When Christmas Was Young” on CBS

celebrity quotes

Tyler Hilton, recently seen in "When Christmas Was Young" on CBS

"We also ate a lot of pie in the movie, so maybe that's why we were so excited because we were on a sugar high the whole time. Lots of pie in the movie."

Clarice Lam, a judge on "Dr. Seuss Baking Challenge" on Prime Video and Freevee

"I love Dr. Seuss. I feel like I look like, you know, a Dr. Seuss character, so I kind of thought for me personally it was a perfect fit."

Jeff Mauro of "The Kitchen" on Food Network

"They call it the Food Network 15. In my case, it was the Food Network 38, which is the amount of weight one gains when they join the team here. You get swept up in it, and you're going out to eat, you're eating on set, you're eating on the road and it's an exciting, food-filled life. But luckily for me ... I've really changed my workout routine and changed my eating habits and that led to a healthier lifestyle."

The Disney parks celebrate the holidays again

If it's Christmas, it's time again to visit the Disney resorts ... if only via your television screen.

A yuletide gala has been a tradition of the holiday for many years at those parks, and a TV version long has been part of it. Such is the case again as ABC broadcasts the Disney Parks Magical Christmas Day Parade on Sunday, Dec. 25, with sibling dancers Derek and Julianne Hough returning to preside over the festivities.

In case you think you saw them do similar duty very recently, you're right. On Thanksgiving weekend, they also served as the hosts of "The Wonderful World of Disney: Magical Holiday Celebration," a similar special that featured many music acts in settings within the Disney locales. In fact, some of those guests also are the same – not a surprise, since much of the cast is used for both programs each year.

On the Christmas Day show, the Houghs will perform the number "Officially Christmas." The other stars featured include Black Eyed Peas (singing "Carol of the Bells"), Chloe Flower ("A Liberace Christmas"), spouses David Foster and Katharine McPhee (offering both "Grown-Up Christmas List," which Foster composed the melody for, and "Blue Christmas"), Maren Morris (doing the Disney standard "When You Wish Upon a Star"), Meghan Trainor ("My Kind of Present"), Ne-Yo ("Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer") and the trio Il Volo ("Happy Christmas War Is Over").

To complete this puzzle, place the numbers 1-9 in the empty cells, so that every row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold outline) contains all nine digits.

Each number 1-9 may appear only once in each row, column and 3-by-3 box.
