Melissa Rauch stars in a revival of "Night Court," premiering Tuesday on NBC.

'Night Court' is back in session

Though she was a major fan of "Night Court" in her youth, little did Melissa Rauch know what a big role she would play in bringing it back.

The "Big Bang Theory" alum is a star and (with her husband Winston) an executive producer of the sitcom that returns to NBC in a revival premiering Tuesday, Jan. 17. Rauch plays Abby Stone, who follows the path of her father Harry (the late Harry Anderson's character) as the judge in a nighttime New York courtroom. A very significant returnee is John Larroquette as prosecutor turned defense attorney Dan Fielding, the part for which the actor won four consecutive Primetime Emmy Awards.

"I was excited about producing 'Night Court,' and I really thought I would just be behind the camera on it," the lively Rauch says. "Then, as we were developing it and once John came on board and the scripts came together, I thought, 'I'd be such a dummy not to play this role!' I feel grateful that I ended up making that decision. I know I would have been kicking myself."

The chance to act opposite Larroquette was a huge incentive for Rauch to appear in "Night Court," too. "It is a true dream come true to be working with him," she states. "Watching how he brilliantly executes every line that's given to him, he's never not wonderful. He's a masterclass in acting."

Rauch has a mutual admirer in Larroquette, who passed on returning to "Night Court" until she decided to act in it. He explains that mirrors Dan Fielding's return to court:

"He's not a part of that system any longer, so he would not have even approached the idea, except that this woman is Judge Harry Stone's daughter. He finds that touching, and he decides that he can't leave her alone in that place at 3 in the morning. She's going to need backup, so he decides to join her. Reluctantly."

Among other new "Night Court" regulars, the single-named Lacretta succeeds Richard Moll's Bull as the court bailiff, with India de Beaufort as an assistant district attorney and Kapil Talwalkar as the court clerk. While aiming to generate something fresh, Rauch also wants to pay sufficient homage to the original "Night Court."

So does Larroquette, who admits to thinking often of such late former co-stars as Anderson, Markie Post and Charles Robinson while making the update. He recalls it being "very emotional the first week that we did this, because I would 'see' them sitting at the table." Larroquete notes that he suggested the rehirings of the original script supervisor, "so I could look at them occasionally and go, 'Do you remember when ... ?"

It's a New Year! We hope for a prosperous 2023 filled with growth, renewal and balance

'Rocky' goes the distance again

With EPIX morphing into MGM+, the channel is going particularly heavy on familiar titles from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-owned movie library ... including "Rocky," the Oscar-winning 1976 success that launched both a franchise and Sylvester Stallone's stardom. Famously also written by Stallone, the film appears Sunday, Jan. 15, and Saturday, Jan. 21. (It's also on MGM+ Marquee on Tuesday, Jan. 17, and MGM+ Drive-In on Wednesday, Jan. 18, and Thursday, Jan. 19.)

As most people know, "Rocky" is the saga of a scrappy Philadelphia boxer who's given a one-in-a-million shot against reigning heavyweight champ Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers). The scene of the hero scaling the steps of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, backed by the Bill Conti-composed "Gonna Fly Now," is one of the screen's most iconic scenes; co-stars Talia Shire, Burgess Meredith and Burt Young also became members of the ongoing "Rocky" family.

tonight's picks

Cybill Shepherd stars in "How to Murder Your Husband: The Nancy Brophy Story" Saturday on Lifetime.

Saturday How to Murder Your Husband: The Nancy Brophy Story LIFE 7 p.m.

Based on a true story, Nancy Crampton-Brophy (Cybill Shepherd) had a knack for writing about murder. The Portland-based romance-thriller novelist authored books about relationships that were tumultuous. Often, her books featured characters who fantasized about killing their own husbands or fleeing their husbands and faking their own deaths. Then, in a shocking turn of events, Brophy was convicted of killing her own husband Daniel (Steve Guttenberg). Lisa Durupt, Hilary Jardine and Aaron Craven also star in this 2023 TV movie premiere.

Agent Game SHOW 8 p.m.

CIA officer Harris (Dermot Mulroney) is involved in missions to detain and relocate foreign nationals for interrogation. When Harris' superior is murdered, he finds himself the scapegoat for the killing of a detainee and must run from a team of operatives sent to bring him in, led by a ruthless double agent in this 2022 thriller. Adan Čanto, Katie Cassidy, Jason Isaacs and Mel Gibson also star.

Midway TNT 10:15 p.m.

"Movie: Riotsville, U.S.A."

From director Sierra Pettengill ("The Reagan Show," "Town Hall") comes this 2022 documentary that recalls a point in American history when the nation's leaders were faced with the civil disorder of the late 1960s and did everything possible to win the war in the streets using police and military.

"Movie: The Drop"

From co-writer/director Sarah Adina Smith ("Buster's Mal Heart," "The Midnight Swim") comes this cringe comedy about a couple whose marriage is put to the test when the wife drops a friend's baby during a tropical destination wedding. Anna Konkle, Jermaine Fowler, Utkarsh Ambudkar and Jillian Bell head the cast. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Paris, 13th District"

Based on short stories by Adrian Tomine, this 2021 French comedy follows the lives of four friends — three girls and a guy — who are also sometimes lovers. Lucie Zhang, Makita Samba, Noemie Merlant and Jehnny Beth head the cast for director Jacques Audiard ("The Sisters Brothers," "Rust and Bone").

"Movie: One Way"

Director Andrew Baird's ("Zone 414") 2022 actioner tells the story of Freddy (Colson Baker, "Captive State"), a petty criminal with who doesn't have time on his side. He's on the run with a bag of cash and coke but he's also wounded badly with a bullet in his gut. Kevin Bacon, Drea De Matteo and Travis Fimmel also star.

BEST JAMES GARNER PROJECTS

"Maverick" (1957-62) Though he left the popular, often-lighthearted Western series early over a contract dispute (not the only one he'd have in his career), Garner became a star as gambler and ladies' man Bret Maverick.

"The Great Escape" (1963) In this all-time-great adventure movie, based on a true story, Garner plays one of the Allied prisoners plotting a getaway from a World War II camp.

"The Americanization of Emily" (1964) This romantic wartime comedy-drama, teaming him with Julie Andrews in a Paddy Chayefsky screenplay, was cited by Garner as his favorite of his films. It's included in a tribute to him that runs for most of the day Tuesday, Jan. 17, on Turner

Classic Movies.

"Duel at Diablo" (1966) Director Ralph Nelson's terrifically gritty Western features Garner as a former frontier scout who combines a personal revenge mission with his search for a runaway wife (Bibi Andersson). "Grand Prix" (1966) Director John Frankenheimer's drama, which uses exciting driver's point-of-view and split-screen techniques plentifully, sees Garner lead an all-star cast as a veteran of the international racing circuit.

"Support Your Local Sheriff!" (1969) After making several serious Westerns, Garner spoofed the genre in this comedy about an unlikely lawman who grows into the job.

"The Rockford Files" (1974-80)

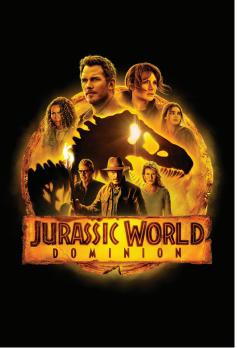

Garner's famously laid-back personality gave him another television hit, as he played a flawed private detective who still managed to get his cases solved. After the weekly run ended, Garner made several TV-movie sequels.

"Barbarians at the Gate" (1993)

This terrific, fact-based cable movie takes a whimsical approach as Garner plays the chief of RJR Nabisco, whose bid to take over the company sets up a labyrinth of financing complications,

"The Notebook" (2004) One of Garner's most popular projects came toward the end of his career, a relationship drama that spans several decades. And if you don't have tissues for the ending, at least you've been forewarned.

Q: What drew you to the role of police detective Angie Polaski on "Will Trent"?

A: I've known Ramon (title star Rodriguez) for 15 years, and I texted him after I read the pilot and said, "Hey, this thing you've got going on seems really cool and interesting. I love these characters." And now, I'm one of them!

Q: Do you feel that having known your co-star helps your characters' on-screen relationship?

A: It really does. From the viewpoint of an actor, you don't need to have known someone to play having known them your whole life, but it is really nice. I felt that right away, even though there is a very clear line of demarcation between Ramon and Will, and between me and Angie. We're definitely having a good time.

Q: Did you know the "Will Trent" novels by Karin Slaughter before starting the show?

OF WILL TRENT ON ABC

A: I hadn't been aware of them, and I was telling my aunt about them and she was like, "Oh, great, I'll buy them." And she literally has read all of them already! She's filling me in. There are parts of this that are directly from the book series, but some story points and even character points diverge.

Q: What are your thoughts on doing so many series over your career, from "Parenthood" to "Ten Days in the Valley" to "Will Trent"?

A: Just before this, I did an extremely short project ... an independent film in Austin, Texas. That was such an intense experience, and I've noticed the different things about doing a series. The relationships are with a much larger crew, and they have more time to develop. I'm still working on getting to know everyone, and I'm enjoying knowing that we have more time together. Also, being a regular cast member on a series and having different directors come through, it's interesting being the one who's static with others revolving around you. You definitely feel a responsibility for the show.

"Cybill hit the ball back to me so well all the time, it gave me the room to make people wonder, 'Why was this terrific guy mur-dered?"' – Steve Guttenberg, seen recently in "How to Murder Your Husband: The Nancy Brophy Story" on Lifetime, about working with Cybill Shepherd on the film

"We have an amazing horse master called Mark Atkinson, and his son Ben who is an actual horse whisperer and they keep you very safe and con-fident." – Sam-uel West of "All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece" on PBS, about working in close proximity to animals in making the drama

"It was so fun. It was a quick little trip, but it's nice to see everyone, always. I'll always be so appreciative of them." – Jana Kramer, seen recently on "Chicago Fire" on NBC, about attending a recent gathering of "One Tree Hill" alumni in Wilmington, N.C. (where that series was filmed)

celebrityquotes

Cybill Shepherd, seen recently in "How to Murder Your Husband: The Nancy Brophy Story" on Lifetime "It took an hour to get to the (filming) location and an hour to come back, and you didn't have a short day ... but there wasn't a lot of choice. We had a limited budget, and we had to get it done in a certain amount of time."

Toby Kebbell, on decompressing after filming "Servant" on Apple TV+

"The decompressing thing's really a choice. We like to think that it's like, 'Oh, this was so much.' Like you're choosing now. Once that's done, I'm not trying to compartmentalize. I just don't need to hold onto it. It's done. The thing's done; nothing will change. It's like an argument in a way. You know, you can always apologize but basically it's done."

"Secret Life of Predators" (Jan. 18)

From National Geographic comes the first season of this documentary series that gives a detailed insight into the extraordinary skills of predatory animals that helps them track and hunt down their prey while also focusing on their ability to survive in the wild. Boone Smith hosts and narrates.

"Night Stalkers" (Jan. 18)

This documentary series from National Geographic follows filmmaker Martin Dohrn and an expert team of night-filming specialists into the jungles of Costa Rica to capture Central America's notoriously camera-shy big cats — pumas, ocelots and jaguar — using state of the art night-vision photography equipment.

"My Ghost Story" (Available now)

Each episode of this unscripted paranormal series that originally aired on the Biography Channel from 2010 to 2016 is narrated by people who tell their own unique ghost stories and personal experiences of alleged paranormal activity and supposed encounters with the unexplained in a particular location.

"Evil Genius" (Available now)

For centuries, humankind's brilliant minds have changed and shaped the world. But when they're used for evil, as is detailed in this unscripted History Channel series, the result can be some of the most twisted, outrageous and inventive crimes in the history of the world. Tim Friedlander narrates.

A British politician fakes his own death amid scandal in BritBox's 'Stonehouse'

A rising British politician fakes his own death amid controversy in a three-part drama series coming to BritBox.

In "Stonehouse," which premieres Tuesday, Jan. 17, Matthew Macfadyen ("Succession") has the title role of John Stonehouse, a seemingly devoted family man and accomplished cabinet minister under Prime Minister Harold Wilson (Kevin R. McNally, the "Pirates of the Caribbean" film franchise) in the 1970s. But it turned out this perfect life was merely a facade.

In November 1974 amid rumors of espionage and fraud, he left a pile of clothes on a Florida beach and disappeared, making it look like he either drowned or was killed by a shark. In reality, however, he was off to Australia to set up a new life with his mistress and secretary Sheila Buckley (Emer Heatley, "Showtrial"), leaving behind his wife Barbara (Keeley Hawes, "Line of Duty," and Macfadyen's real-life spouse) and three kids as well as a lot of questions to be answered.

But this was not your garden-variety shady politician. John Stonehouse was a man of social conscience who was an early opponent of apartheid and stood up for Black rights in Southern Rhodesia. But he was also involved with some shadowy figures in Czechoslovakia, among other allegations, so he took what was then a relatively easy way out.
