

ART OF MAKING FRYBREAD

SUNDAYS » D1

VOLUNTEERS ROCK THE BALD

FACES » A8

DOGS CLINCH DIVISION TITLE

SPORTS » B1

COME TO MY WINDOW

BUSINESS » C1

Daily News-Miner

THE VOICE OF INTERIOR ALASKA

Inside Today Two men accused of selling rocks illegally removed from state land. » A6

Fred Meyer stores to stop selling guns, ammunition

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PORTLAND, ORE. — Superstore company Fred Meyer will stop selling guns and ammunition.

The Portland, Oregon-based chain in a statement Friday said it made the decision after evaluating customer preferences. The company sells guns at nearly 45 of its 132 stores in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Alaska, including two in Fairbanks.

“Fred Meyer has made a business decision to exit the firearms category,” the company said. “We are currently working on plans to responsibly phase out sales of firearms and ammunition.”

FRED MEYER » A3

A Fred Meyer store is shown March 1 in Portland, Oregon. The company said Friday it will stop selling guns and ammunition. It has more than 130 stores in Alaska — including two in Fairbanks — Oregon, Washington and Idaho. AP PHOTO/DON RYAN

The Masonic Temple, built in 1906 and one of Fairbanks’ oldest buildings, was irreparably damaged Saturday afternoon when the roof collapsed. No one was injured, but people had been inside only minutes earlier. On Thursday, the roof of F & H Fitness Studio in south Fairbanks also collapsed. Nobody was injured. ROBIN WOOD/NEWS-MINER PHOTOS

Historic Masonic Temple total loss after roof caves in

President Harding stood on its steps when he visited Fairbanks in 1923

By Robin Wood
RWOOD@NEWSMINER.COM

After standing for 112 years — surviving fire, floods, earthquakes and snowloads — Fairbanks’ historic Masonic Temple on First Avenue was undone by the winter of 2018.

Half of the roof collapsed to the second-story floor Saturday afternoon. By 10 p.m., the building was demolished. Demolition crews managed to save the “1906” and “Masonic Temple” signs. City of Fairbanks Communications Director Teal Soden said the city’s chief engineer and building inspector jointly decided the temple was a danger to the public. First and Second avenues between Wickersham and Cowles streets were closed all day.

The remnants of Fairbanks’ historic Masonic Temple remained Saturday night. The temple’s roof caved in Saturday afternoon, prompting the city to tear it down. Crews saved the “1906” and “Masonic Temple” signs from the facade.

dent. One of the biggest immediate concerns was the building’s west wall, which was bowed and potentially jeopardizing First Church of Christ, Scientist. Exclusive Paving brought in two excavators to dismantle the building.

TEMPLE » A6

GOOD MORNING

The weather.

Snow in the morning. Areas of freezing fog. Snow accumulation about 1 inch. Tonight: Snow, freezing rain.

High today35
Low tonight26

WEATHER » A7

Aurora forecast.

Auroral activity will be active. Weather permitting, active auroral displays will be visible overhead from Utqiagvik to Anchorage and Juneau.

This information is provided by aurora forecasters at the Geophysical Institute at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. For more information about the aurora, visit <http://www.gi.alaska.edu/AuroraForecast>

SOURDOUGH JACK: “That was cutting it close.”

Goal of nonprofit group to unite voices of Inupiat

By Ravenna Koenig
ALASKA’S ENERGY DESK

In a place such as the Alaska Arctic, local issues often unfold on a national, or even international scale. Oil companies, the state, the federal government, environmental groups — they all have something that they want to see happen there.

So, how do the wants of local people get heard? And who speaks for them?

A new organization said the Inupiat of the North Slope will be stronger if they speak as one.

The group is called Voice of the Arctic Inupiat, or VOICE. The nonprofit group gets its funding from the North Slope Borough and the Arctic Slope Regional Corporation, as well as donations from its other member entities and public contributions through its website.

Its goal is to bring together the leaders of the region to weigh in on policies that affect their communities.

“Whether it’s development, whether it’s subsistence rights, we want to be heard in our fashion, in our manner,” said John Hopson Jr., mayor of the village

INUPIAT » A3

INSIDE

Business » C1 | Classified » E1 | Dear Abby » D2 | Obituaries » A4 | Opinion » C4 | Sports » B1 | Sundays » D1

ACHOO

Need more than a tissue? Come on in, we'll take good care of you.

Health care with a heart

Ask about our sliding scale discount!

Open Monday - Friday, 8am to 7pm
Walk-Ins Welcome

455-4567
1606 23rd Ave.

Interior Community Health Center
Quality primary care accessible to all