

Flush with cash, but few workers

The city of New Orleans has more than $1 million per every mile of street that its Public Works Department is responsible for maintaining. Yet, compared with other cities, New Orleans puts very few maintenance workers out in the field.

2024 revenues per mile of streets:

Maintenance workers per 100 miles of street:

