NCRD moves into second phase of pool project

WILL CHAPPELL
Citizen Editor

The North Coast Recreation District's board of directors recently approved moving the district's new pool project into its second phase, which will see both pools constructed as work is completed on the building housing them.

The decision to move into the next phase was made after $2 million was raised over the last year in support of the project and the district now needs just $1.5 million for equipment to complete the $15 million project.

Two large donations helped to complete the funding package for the second phase of the project, which North Coast Recreation District (NCRD) Executive Director Barbara McCann said should be complete by the end of this year, along with the building.

Adventist Health contributed of $500,000 towards the project, specifically earmarked for the new facility's therapy pool. The therapy pool will be accessible for any patients needing physical therapy and NCRD staff are working with Adventist and Nehalem Bay Health District personnel to develop a program to best utilize it.

Another gift of $1 million was also recently pledged, although the details of that donation have not yet been made public.

construction and connecting the pools to already-installed pipes that will be connected to equipment in the project's third phase.

Initially, NCRD had planned to build the project in one phase, but cost escalations caused by inflation pushed the project's budget from a projected $10 million to $15 million, outstripping the $12 million raised by the district. This led to the decision to split the project into three phases to avoid further budget growth.

Not all the news is good for the project, however, as NCRD has been working through a violation of wastewater permitting procedures with the Oregon

Fournier wins commissioner race, Skaar leads

WILL CHAPPELL
Citizen Editor

Paul Fournier prevailed in the May 21 primary election for position two on the Tillamook County Board of County Commissioners, while incumbent Erin Skaar leads with votes left to count in the race for position one.

State Representative Cyrus Javadi also fended off a challenger in the Republican primary, KaSandra Larson won election as Tillamook County Assessor and a levy ask by the Tillamook Fire District failed.

As of 5 p.m. on May 23, the Tillamook County clerk had received 7,860 ballots and accepted 7,783, meaning that 36.6% of eligible voters had successfully voted. Ballots postmarked by election day and received by 5 p.m. on May 28, will be counted, and voters whose ballots were not accepted have until June 11 to correct challenged or missing signatures on ballot envelopes.

Fournier, a longtime deputy with the Tillamook Sheriff's Office, won a resounding victory in the race for position two, garnering 4,914 of 6,919 votes counted, amounting to 71.0%. Fournier defeated Darcy Jones in the race and will take over for Commissioner Doug Olson, who has been serving in a temporary capacity after the early retirement of Commissioner David Yamamoto at the end of 2023.

Tillamook County Search and Rescue hosts annual banquet

WILL CHAPPELL
Citizen Editor

More than 200 people came out to the Tillamook County Fairgrounds on Saturday, May 18, raising more than $36,000 to support Tillamook County Search and Rescue.

Attendees were treated to a tri-tip dinner courtesy of Mike Bentley and the team at Pacific Restaurant before a live auction.

"It always humbles me to see the support our office has from this amazing community," said Tillamook Sheriff Josh Brown. "The amount of money we raised is directly a result of the generosity of the local businesses, residents and other community members, and it is greatly appreciated."

The annual gathering is the main fundraising opportunity for the search and rescue team, which is coordinated by and assists the sheriff's office respond to a wide variety of situations across the county.

The evening kicked off with an opportunity for the guests to mingle and sample hors d'oeuvres and bid on silent auction items that had been donated by a variety of businesses. Tillamook County Sheriff Josh Brown then welcomed the guests before dinner service started.

A group of volunteer wait staff then served dinner, which consisted of tri-tip prepared by Mike Bentley, salad and sides prepared by Pacific Restaurant and cupcakes for dessert from Ona's Patisserie in North Plains.

After dinner concluded, Brown returned to the stage and handed out a Sheriff's Award for Civilian Commendation to Neila Bautista, owner of the Pacific Restaurant, in recognition of her volunteer efforts. He then awarded the Dean

SFAC heads into the forest for a tour of several sites

WILL CHAPPELL
CITIZEN EDITOR

Members of the State Forest Advisory Committee joined Oregon Department of Forestry staff for a tour of several sites in the Tillamook and Clatsop State Forests on May 16, ahead of a committee meeting the next day.

The group saw a shooting complex, partial-cut harvest operation and hiked to a future section of the Salmonberry Trail near Reehers Camp.

The tour departed from the Hornshuh Creek Fire Station on Highway 26 in Banks and headed to a first stop at the North Fork Wolf Creek Target Shooting Lanes.

There, an Oregon Department of Forestry (ODF) staff member discussed the department's target shooting facilities.

In Oregon, shooting on state and federal lands is a legal and common pastime, with the state and federal governments responsible for its regulation. This situation leaves ODF unable to restrict or regulate shooting activities on its lands, which can cause dangerous situations with shooters unwittingly firing at other forest users.

To cut down on these types of incidents, ODF has set up a number of target shooting facilities across state forests, with the goal of encouraging safer shooting.

The facility at Wolf Creek has been open for more than two decades and was funded by a grant from the National Rifle Association. It consists of four shooting lanes cut into a hill and is primarily intended for pistol shooting activities. Shooting facilities also decrease fire risk and make fighting those fires which do occur easier.

Clatsop State Forester Mike Cafferata said that the shooting lanes were not meant to encourage more people to shoot in the forest and that they had been successful in increasing safety.

Next the group made its way to a partial-cut harvest operation in the Astoria District of the Clatsop State Forest, where foresters discussed the details of partial-cut harvests.

The stand the group visited had previously been partially cut in the 1980s to help encourage a healthy forest ecosystem but since that time the volume of wood per acre had quadrupled. Over time the large volume increases would put the stand at risk of simplification and negatively impact the health of trees as their crowns became overcrowded.

The thinning operation will remove between one third and one half of the trees, or a quarter of the volume, and future foresters will need to evaluate whether further thinning operations are needed in another 30 to 40 years.

Finally, the group made its way to Reehers Camp, where they had lunch before hiking to a nearby section of rail line that will be part of the Salm-onberry Trail.

The Salmonberry Trail is an envisioned 82-mile trail that would convert the abandoned Port of Tillamook Bay rail line between Banks and Tillamook into a hiker and biker trail. The rail line was abandoned after a major winter storm in 2007 caused more than $50 million in damage, with the port electing to use Federal Emergency Management repair funding for other projects.

Two organizations, the Salmonberry Trail Intergovernmental Agency and Salmonberry Trail Foundation, are responsible for stewarding the project, with the agency holding the trail lease and setting standards, while the foundation coordinates construction efforts.

Cafferata said that while ODF did not have resources to lend to the project, they were members of the intergovernmental agency and supportive of the plan as the largest trail-adjointing landowners.

Work is currently underway to remove the rails and clear an eight-mile section of the trail near Banks and Tillamook County applied for a $25 million federal grant to build a three-mile section in Rockaway Beach.

Symphony presents concerts in June

The North Oregon Coast Symphony concludes its 2023-2024 season with two concerts in June. Titled "Poetic Palette", this series offers a variety of classical pieces from multiple composers. Concerto for Clarinet, Viola and Orchestra by Max Bruch features two soloists, clarinetist Braden Payne (in his final performance with NOCS) and principal violist Betsey Ellerbroek. Other selections include Offenbach's Overture to Orpheus in the Underworld, Rossini's William Tell Overture, Berlioz's Hungarian March, the symphonic poem In The Forest (Miske) by Ciurlionis, and Borodin's In the Steppes of Central Asia.

The first concert will take place on Saturday, June 8, at St. Catherine Episcopal Church (36335 N. Hwy 101, Nehalem, OR) beginning at 3 p.m. The second concert will be on Sunday, June 9, at the Charlene Larsen Center for the Performing Arts (588 16th St., Astoria, OR) beginning at 3 p.m.

Admission for both concerts will be: $10 Adults, ages 18 and under free (children 12 and under with adult supervision).

Tickets will be available at the door only for the Nehalem concert. Tickets for the Astoria concert will be sold online at LarsenCenter.org or by phone at 503 338 9132. Cookies and refreshments will be available at both concerts during intermission, and NOCS scholarships for graduating seniors will be announced.

This non-profit orchestra, under the direction of conductor Cory Pederson, brings together musicians from the north Oregon and south Washington coast to perform classical music for local audiences.

NCRD’s 2024 Gala Dinner and Auction Event achieves success, entertains over 125 guests

Amidst twinkling lights and a jubilant atmosphere, the North County Recreation District (NCRD) welcomed over 125 guests to the Gala Dinner and Auction event to support the construction of the new Aquatics Facility.

From the moment guests stepped through the doors on May 3rd, the air was electric with anticipation. Buttercup’s delectable cuisine, earning rave reviews from attendees, made for an evening of culinary delight and heartfelt giving. Frank Squillo, owner of Wanda’s and our esteemed Master of Ceremonies for the evening, added an extra layer of charm and charisma, guiding guests through the night with his trademark wit and grace.

The Gala proved to be a testament to the community’s dedication beginning from the overwhelming success of contributions in response to the invitation mailer. Auction bids and donations during the event amounted to $16,401. A significant boost came from an anonymous double-donor, doubling contributions to a remarkable $32,802.

But the true magic of the evening unfolded when the spotlight shifted to a standing ovation for Adventist Health’s momentous announcement of $500,000 for the Therapy Pool. The impact of their generosity reverberated throughout the room, setting the stage for a new chapter in NCRD’s history.

“A therapy pool is a game changer in North Tillamook County,” expressed Eric Swanson, President of Adventist Health Tillamook. “We have been providing medical care in the community since the 1980s, replacing Nehalem Volunteer Ambulance. We want to be a part of what happens in North Tillamook County now and in the future ... and we wanted to make a significant contribution that supports that intent.”

NCRD extends heartfelt thanks to all who made it a memorable experience. To our guests, auction bidders and donors for supporting our mission. To Friends of NCRD for sponsoring the event, as well as to Home + Sea Realty and Pelican Brewing for a combined $10,500 in sponsorship contributions. To the Mudd Nick Foundation, for their generosity and steadfast commitment to NCRD’s mission.

To our auction sponsors—Nehalem River Ranch, Pacific Roots, Riverbend Players, Seaside Coasters, Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts, Oregon Coastal Scenic Railroad, Sigi-G Ocean Charters, Nordic Pirate Guide Services, Port of Garibaldi, Garibaldi Marina, Nehalem TideRunners Dragonboat Team, artist Shirl Ireland, Alderbrook Golf Course, and Pauseful Massage and Botanicals—thank you for your generous contributions.

NCRD extends immense gratitude to staff, volunteers, and our team of professionals. To NCRD Fitness Director Hannah Culver, Administrative Assistant Kiley Konruff, and superstar-volunteer Wendy Baker, whose meticulous planning went above and beyond. To Buttercup, for their culinary artistry. To Jane Scott Productions for capturing the laughter and camaraderie of the evening, ensuring that every moment would be remembered.

The resounding success of the event underscores the many years of dedication and support from so many people and organizations from across our District and beyond. Fiorelli Consulting expressed their deep gratitude, stating, “We have been honored to lead the capital campaign over the past year and to be a part of something so special with such an amazing group of kind and dedicated people.”

Since voting in favor of forming the Recreation District in 1996, the community’s ongoing support has served as a beacon of hope for the realization of NCRD’s vision to make real differences in the lives we serve. That generosity has enabled us to grow and thrive, and the new Aquatics Center reaffirms our commitment for generations to come.

Preserve the Doris Davis Trail: Community Action Needed Amid Ongoing Construction

Attention all trail enthusiasts and nature lovers! We have an important announcement regarding the ongoing development adjacent to the beloved Doris Davis Trail. As many of you may have noticed, the construction of a 2000 square foot home is currently underway adjacent to the trail, against advisement from neighbors. It’s crucial to ensure that such activities do not hinder or impede public access to the Doris Davis Trail. According to a recent judgment aimed at preserving the integrity and accessibility of the trail, any obstruction or impediment to the trail is strictly prohibited at all times.

If you happen to notice any barriers or blockages obstructing the trail, we urge you to take immediate action by contacting the Trail Access Committee (TAC). TAC is dedicated to safeguarding the accessibility of the trail and will promptly notify the authorities of any infringements.

Furthermore, the location of the new home presents an additional concern. Situated on an extraordinarily steep landscape, there is a risk of potential damage to the trail during the construction process. It’s imperative that we remain vigilant and report any signs of trail damage to the TAC as soon as possible.

In light of these developments, we urge you to join us in signing a petition to ensure that the Doris Davis Trail remains unimpeded and accessible to all. Let’s come together to protect this invaluable natural resource for current and future generations to enjoy.

Together, we can make a difference in preserving the beauty and accessibility of the Doris Davis Trail. Thank you for your continued support and dedication to this important cause.

Rare deep sea fish found along Oregon beach

JEREMY C. RUARK
Country Media, Inc.

A deep-sea angler fish, called a Pacific football fish (Himantolophus sagamius) has been found by local beachcombers just south of Cannon Beach.

Living in complete darkness, at 2,000 -3,300 feet, these fish are rarely seen, according to the Seaside Aquarium.

“In fact, only 31 specimens have been recorded around the world,” the

Aquarium operators state in a Facebook post. “While a handful of football fish have been recorded in New Zealand, Japan, Russia, Hawaii, Ecuador, Chile, and California this is the first one reported on the Oregon Coast to our knowledge.”

Little is known about the football fish history but what is known is unusually fascinating, the Aquarium officials write.

“Like other angler fish, the outback fist use light that shines from a phosphorescent bulb on their forehead to attract prey,” the Facebook post reads. “Food at the depths that these guys peruse can be very sparse, so football fish are not picky eaters. They eat anything that can fit into their mouths.”

Only females actively hunt as the males are actually more like parasites. Males being 10 times smaller than females, find a female to fuse themselves to, according to the Aquarium.

“They lose their eyes and internal organs, getting all their nutrients from their female partners. In return, they provide females with a steady source of sperm,” the Facebook post states. “How the males find the females in the pitch dark is still unknown.”

A few weeks ago, amateur photographer Michael Sanchez captured a photo of a blue rock thrush on a rocky area at Cannon Beach. Officials said it is likely the first ever seen in the United States.

Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ).

Last fall, during construction, McCann and other members of the project team realized that the construction site was greater than one acre in size and therefore required a wastewater permit from DEQ for the construction process. The team had failed to obtain the permit sooner because they had believed the site would be less than an acre, obviating the need for permitting, and project engineers submitted a permit application to DEQ in December.

However, that application indicated that the project had not yet broken ground, and when a DEQ inspector visited the site earlier this year, an enforcement action was started regarding the conflicting project dates. McCann said that the initial investigation has been completed by DEQ and that the matter is now with their enforcement division.

McCann stressed that even before submitting the application, contractors had been taking appropriate steps to mitigate silt and other runoff into the Nehalem River throughout construction. There is no deadline for DEQ to make an enforcement decision but the district will have 20 days to respond to their decision.

As work continues on the first phase of the project and begins on the second phase, the team at NCRD are turning their focus to closing the final $1.5-million funding gap. An outdoor event for the summer is in the works, though project consultant Thomas Fiorelli said that this round of fundraising would be primarily geared towards corporate and other institutional donors.

Adventist Health Tillamook Sponsors North County Recreation District Therapy Pool

Adventist Health Tillamook, a leader in promoting health and well-being, is honored to announce a $500,000 community contribution in support of a therapy pool in the new North County Recreation District (NCRD) Aquatic Center. This significant investment underscores the importance of health and well-being for the residents of North Tillamook County, a community Adventist Health Tillamook has been serving since the mid-80s with Emergency Medical Services and since 2012 with a rural health clinic in Manzanita.

Adventist Health Tillamook's commitment to enhancing local health services and facilities extends beyond this latest project. Their annual community benefit contributions, totaling approximately $200,000, support Tillamook High School Athletics, Tillamook Bay Community College clinical programs, the Tillamook YMCA, Habitat for Humanity, and many other local initiatives. This latest donation follows a precedent set by previous significant contributions, such as their support for the Tillamook YMCA's pool, demonstrating their ongoing dedication to community health.

dent of Adventist Health Tillamook, expressed his enthusiasm about the partnership: "I couldn't be more excited for Adventist Health Tillamook and our medical office in Manzanita to be part of this important community development. Our goal is to inspire health, wholeness, and hope in North Tillamook County through this investment." Mary Gallagher, Board Chair of NCRD adds, "Opening its doors in Spring 2025, the Aquatics Center will serve as a central hub for health, wellness, water safety and recreation, fostering physical activity, skill development and community bonding. A major milestone in this transformative project is the generous $500,000 donation from Adventist Health Tillamook for a therapy pool within the center. This significant contribution not only showcases their commitment to our community's well-being but also underscores their dedication to a healthier lifestyle for all. The Adventist Health Tillamook Therapy Pool stands as a testament to the collaborative spirit driving positive change. Our deepest gratitude goes to Adventist Health Tillamook for their visionary leadership and unwavering support, leaving an enduring impact on countless lives benefiting from therapeutic services in the Aquatics Center."

Skaar, the one term incumbent in position one, appeared on track to hold off two challengers in the election, having received 3792 of the 7111 votes counted in the race. That gave her over 53.3% of the votes counted while Jeff Spink had received 28% of the vote and Bruce Lovelin 18.1%.

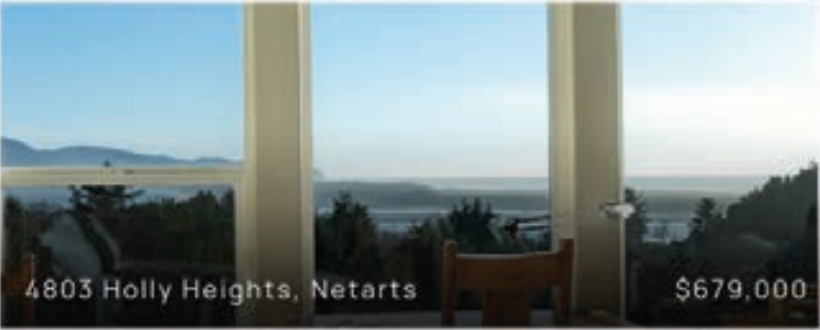

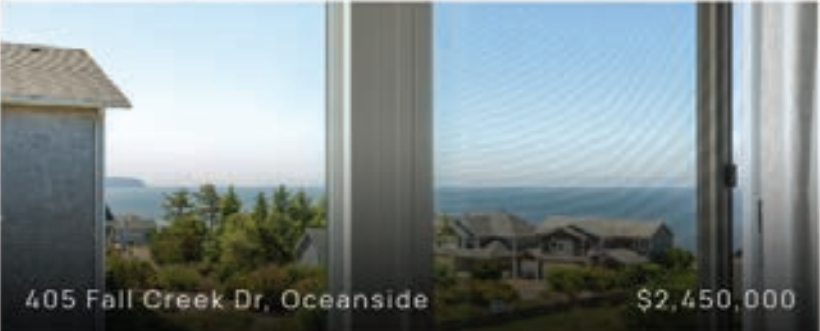

If Skaar still commands more than 50% of votes cast when results are finalized in 30 days, she will win reelection, but if she falls below that threshold she will head to a runoff against the second-place vote getter in November.

Javadi took an easy victory against a primary challenge from retired corrections officer Glenn Gaither, winning 71.9% of votes counted across state house district 32 and 76.8% in Tillamook County.

Larson was set for a comfortable victory in the race to replace retiring Tillamook County Assessor Denise Vandecoevering, having received 65.0% of votes counted in the race against Kari Fleisher.

The Tillamook Fire District's request that voters approve a bond of 84 cents per thousand dollars of assessed property value trailed with 1,606 of 2,773 or 57.9% of votes cast against the question.

The next round of tabulation results may not be released until after contested or missing signatures are corrected on June 11, according to Tillamook County Clerk Christy Nyseth. Official results must be submitted to the secretary of state's office by 30 days after the election on June 20.

Roam America updating Old Mill

WILL CHAPPELL
CITIZEN EDITOR

Roam America, a campground operator building a portfolio across the American west, is working to upgrade the facilities at the Old Mill RV Park and Event Center, which is being rebranded as Roam America Old Mill.

The upgrade will see the campground's clubhouse and bathhouse facilities upgraded, the addition of a low-level net ropes course and firepit, and the upgrade of 70 RV sites.

"The vision of Roam America was to try to bring really nice camping and campsites and modern amenities to the masses," said Roam America's Vice President of Operations Scott McGee. "Really unpretentious camping with a focus on clean amenities, modern facilities, tech focused on making the guest experience the best it can be from booking through pre-arrival to post-departure."

Roam America acquired the campground in late 2020 and took over operations last summer but have been focusing on construction of a facility in Page, Arizona, which recently opened, before beginning work in Garibaldi.

McGee said that the focus of renovations on existing structure will be on preserving the character of the buildings, while repairing any issues and adding modern touches. "We want to add to but not take away from the originality of the place," McGee said.

Primary focus will be on updating the campground's bath house facilities and improving the clubhouse facility at the east end of the site, with both interior and exterior upgrades, including the addition of a Sauna. Roam America will also be adding a low-level ropes course, mostly consisting of nets and not requiring a harness, and firepit near the clubhouse, and is hoping to have those projects complete by July 4.

The next stage of the project will see 70 RV sites improved, transitioning from parking spots on the grass to gravel parking pads with paved patios and full hookups. The addition of the new sites will bring the total available at the campground to just under 200, with another 31 tent camping sites also available.

The event center on the property will continue to be available for community use during events like the annual Garibaldi Crab Races.

McGee said that Roam America's goal with the upgrades is to increase the average length of stays from its current 2.1 days to 2.8.

"We're just trying to modernize what's already there but stay true to form," McGee said, "add a lot of cool things that we think our guests will really like, add to their experience."

SET HER UP FOR SUCCESS IN AND OUT OF THE CLASSROOM.
Support your child's overall health and wellness by being informed.

It's important to talk about the risks of underage drinking and substance use from a young age, and continue those conversations as your child gets older and becomes more independent. For tips on how- and when- to begin the conversation, visit www.underagedrinking.samhsa.gov
