VISIT OF ALDRICH HERE DOESN'T ALTER MATTERS

Republican Organ Feels Certain He Has Not Driven Away Votes by His Speaking.

That the visit of Chester H. Aldrich to Omaha and South Omaha on Monday and Tuesday of this week was one of the finest things that could have happened to the democrats locally is shown by the results.

When the Omaha Bee on the following day boosted Aldrich to the extent of asserting that "He has certainly driven away no votes that he otherwise would have gotten," and further opined that "Mr. Aldrich endeavored to persuade the people here to accept county option, but we doubt that he made any headway in that direction."

But the extent of the reaction was not so strongly anticipated. It was quickly noted that the rank and file of both parties had grown decidedly chilly toward the gubernatorial candidate.

When, however, it was bruited abroad that one Abraham Lincoln sutton, would-be congressman from this district, had been working hand-in-glove with Aldrich during his trip here, had been boosting him in every possible way, had urged his friends to get out and hear Aldrich and swell the crowd, then the reaction came on the South Omaha side.

Two of the three republican candidates for county commissioner at the same time had their beams that had been worked up in Dahlgren circles badly punctured.

The fact squarely remains, and is being felt by the voters alike, Mr. Aldrich was here, that every republican candidate on the ticket from Sutton down is irrevocably tied up with him, and is bound in honor to stand upon his platform and see it through.

So confident are the democrats that more than two to one of the registered voters will vote the democratic ticket this year that no attempt is being made to separate the democratic from the republican in asking the voters to register every one, regardless of race, color, religion, politics or previous condition of servitude is to be urged to get himself registered that he may vote November 8.

LITTLE GIRL VICTIM OF DRUGGED CANDY

Sarpy County Child, 13 Years Old, Tells an Amazing Story.

That she was enticed to an apartment on Lower Dodge street while under the influence of drugged candy given her by a prominent resident of Sarpy county, past 60 years of age, was the amazing story related at the county attorney's office today by Miss Osborne, a girl barely 13 years of age.

The little girl was in pitiful condition following the assault, and was immediately taken to her family physician by the distracted parents. Following this visit the parents called upon Attorney W. W. Blalough for advice and were directed to the county attorney's office, where the details of the case are being investigated this afternoon.

DAMAGING ADMISSION MADE BY SUSPECT

Charles Morley, Alleged Hold-Up Threatens the One Who "Squealed."

"Did that little devil squeal? If he did, he better look out! I can send the old jail for life!" In this manner Charles Morley, one of the suspects in the hold-up and robbery of the Walnut Hill pharmacy, last Friday night, made a significant admission to the detectives, who were bringing him and his pal, George Evans, from St. Joseph Thursday afternoon.

It is thought that Morley and Evans will waive examination in police court and plead guilty to the charge of holding up the drug store.

At Assam, a clerk in a pharmacy at Park avenue and Leavenworth streets, who chanced to be in the Walnut Hill pharmacy at the time of the robbery, came to the police station Friday morning and positively identified Morley and Evans as the hold-up men.

That is the Opinion of Dr. Mary R. Noble Who Addresses Missionary Jubilee.

Says Luxuries Have Become Necessities and Money is Wasted on Extravagance.

That the American people are becoming hardened to luxury is the opinion of Dr. Mary R. Noble, who addressed the first meeting of the Woman's National Foreign Missionary Jubilee on "Missionary Convictions" at the Young Women's Christian association yesterday afternoon.

Although it will probably be impossible to bring the United States troops here next year, the Ak-Sar-Ben governors now hope to have several regiments of the National guard, and officers of the guard from all over the country, for carnival week.

Adjutant General Hartigan has had a conference recently with Secretary Parsons, and will have come from Lincoln that he has already started to work to bring the convention of the Association of National Guard officers to Omaha next fall.

He was on his way back from St. Louis, where this year's meeting was held, and the officers viewed the Veiled Prophet celebration, which General Hartigan declares does not compare with the Ak-Sar-Ben.

The executive committee of the national association meets in January to decide as to the next city in which the convention shall be held. St. Joseph is also after it for the coming year.

About 300 officers were at St. Louis. General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, and secretary of war will be urged to attend if the plans go through. Also it is hoped to bring some regiments of Iowa militia here.

ject of Mr. Vinton's lecture was on this book. He is himself a Burma missionary and was attired in the yellow robes of the Buddhist priest.

In fact, he represents the third generation of a family of twenty Burma missionaries, whose combined service is 550 years. He was wedded to the daughter of a missionary, and if his son enters the missionary field, the family will have had four generations of missionaries in the work.

A lunch will be served at the Home hotel today. This afternoon rallies will be held at the different churches.

A Fool's Paradise. That a large percentage of our women are living in a "Fool's Paradise," shielded from knowing the real conditions of human life and shocked when revelations are accidentally made to them, was the statement of Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, one of the prominent speakers of the Woman's National Foreign Missionary Jubilee, who addressed a parlor meeting of missionary workers at the home of Mrs. George E. Barker this morning.

Mrs. Montgomery urged the women to read books which would explain to them the miserable bondage of their foreign slave.

"Fifty years ago the mother's time was spent in spinning and weaving and doing other household duties which the modern woman does not have to do, owing to the mechanical conveniences of today. It is the duty of the Christian to consecrate his leisure in the uplifting of the women of the orient."

The opening chapters of the New Testament were held responsible for the elevation of womanhood and the cultivation of the child mind.

"The whole Christian civilization is being turned around the axle of the child," said Mrs. Montgomery, "and wherever people are converted to Christianity they begin the education of their girls."

Dr. Mary R. Noble, a physician at the School of Medicine for Christian Women in India, gave a vivid description of the institution and the hospital connected with it.

"Three things we are trying to have in the school," said Dr. Noble. "They are comfort, sanitary conditions and dignity of surroundings."
