

EXHIBIT 3

Psychiatric Evaluation
Name: Dylann Storm Roof
Date of Birth: 4/3/1994
Date of Report: 12/26/16

Identifying Information:

Dylann Storm Roof is a 22-year-old unmarried Caucasian male evaluated pursuant to a request from his attorneys, David Bruck and Kim Stevens. On December 15, 2016, he was convicted on all counts set forth in his federal indictment, including the murder of nine people at the Emanuel AME church in Charleston, South Carolina.

Qualifications of Examiner:

I am Donna Maddox (formerly Donna Schwartz-Watts), a General and Forensic Psychiatrist licensed to practice medicine in South Carolina. I have been qualified as an expert in Forensic Psychiatry in the United States District Courts in Richmond, Va; Charleston, SC; Columbia SC; Greenville, SC; Florence, SC; Tucson, Az and Augusta, Ga. I have testified in 37 capital cases. I have testified in an additional 23 capital post-conviction hearings, some of which involved the issue of competency to be executed. I have consulted in an additional 73 capital cases both in state and federal jurisdictions. I have been qualified as an expert in state courts for capital proceedings in South Carolina, North Carolina, Mississippi, Georgia and Arizona. Please see attached Curriculum Vitae for further qualifications.

Statement of Nonconfidentiality:

Mr. Roof was advised that any communications would be shared with his attorneys and possibly used in his upcoming federal and state trials. Mr. Roof has consistently reported that he does not want any mental health information presented in his court proceedings. Specifically, he has reported he does not want "to have his privacy invaded, be humanized or be embarrassed."

Sources of Information:

The sources of information that I have reviewed include discovery, records and interviews. Those items are listed in the attached Exhibit 1. Importantly, I have reviewed social history records provided by the defense, including birth records, medical records and Lexington County Mental Health records. I have also reviewed portions of discovery provided by the government, including Mr. Roof's videotaped interview by the FBI and the text posted on the Last Rhodesian website.

I have met with Mr. Roof on nine occasions: (1) April 22, 2016; (2) April 30, 2016; (3) June 4, 2016; (4) June 19, 2016; (5) July 23, 2016; (6) August 20, 2016; (7)

August 31, 2016; (8) November 8, 2016; and (9) November 1, 2016. These meetings total approximately 25 hours of time spent with Dylann Roof.

Additionally, I have interviewed members of Mr. Roof's family, including his mother, Amy Cowles Roof; his paternal grandparents, Joe and Lucy Roof; and his father, Benn Roof. I have toured Benn Roof's home, and Dylann Roof's bedroom located in Danny Beard and Amy Roof's residence.

Observations from Clinical Interviews

Significant from my clinical interviews with Dylann Roof, I have observed the following.

Each time that I have seen Mr. Roof, I have performed a mental status examination.

Typically, Mr. Roof is tidy and clean in his appearance. He pays great attention to his hair being in place. He will enter a room with a small smile. He will avoid eye contact, and he will give a small thumbs-up gesture. At times, he appears tired and will confirm that he has just awakened.

He will eventually develop eye contact with me. After entering the room, he generally sits down and looks toward his hands and feet, he then looks up and around in a circle before looking directly at me and initiating eye contact.

While being interviewed, he becomes easily distracted by anyone behind him or in front of him.

There are also periods of time where his speech is pedantic.

His thought processes are typically goal directed when the interview is structured. When left unstructured, his thought processes become disorganized. That is, he presents topics in a manner such that one topic is not related to the other. He jumps from one topic to another with no apparent connection between the two. At times, he will interject a new topic that is not related to the topic being discussed.

Mr. Roof's affect is often incongruent. For example, he may smile inappropriately when discussing topics that upset him. He also may smile when he is upset with the interviewer. He may smile at times that are very inappropriate to the content of the subject matter being viewed or discussed. When his affect is not inappropriate, it is constricted.

When asked, Mr. Roof typically minimizes the significance of any mood disturbances, although at times he will admit he is anxious. He denies depression.

Mr. Roof's thought content at times reflects grandiosity, paranoia, fixation on narrow focused interests, and difficulty understanding others' emotions and reactions to his behaviors. He is preoccupied with his physical health, potential illnesses, potential treatments and his long-term health. For the most part, he has not expressed suicidal or homicidal ideation during my mental status examinations. He did express suicidal ideation on one occasion, saying that if his hair fell out and he was bald before trial, he would kill himself.

During our visits, he has not typically exhibited impulsivity. However, he is frequently, even consistently, childlike in demeanor.

He has consistently lacked insight.

He does not comprehend and is unaware that he does not comprehend the effects his arrest and the charges in this case have had on others, including his family, the victims and the larger community.

Mr. Roof has consistently expressed preoccupation with various somatic beliefs, some of which are delusional. They include:

- He believes that his head is "lopsided."
- He believes that the right side of his ribcage is smaller than the left, and he has said that the right side of his body is a "eunuch."
- Mr. Roof believes that one side of his face, especially along the jaw-line, is masculine and the right side is "feminine."
- He believes his right leg is shorter than his left; he believes his left foot is flat; the right side of his chest is smaller or has less muscle; his right arm is bigger and his left arm is smaller.
- He believes the testosterone in his body "pools" on his left side, and that this is the cause of these perceived defects.
- He has a preoccupation with losing his hair; he kept track of his hair loss in jail; he feels like he is losing eyelashes; he expressed that two eyelashes fell off during one visit; he told me that he lost 7 pubic hairs; he is concerned that he is going bald and has stated that if he went bald before trial he would kill himself.
- He believes his hair is feeling thinner.
- He has a somatic preoccupation with his forehead; he states that his forehead is abnormally wide, and if he had to shave his head due to impending baldness he would hang himself.

- He was preoccupied with the idea that he had cancer of the lymph nodes before his charges.
- Throughout every evaluation he is preoccupied with his thyroid condition; he has asked for research about thyroid disease and its treatment; he is afraid to initiate treatment for his thyroid; he is afraid that if a race war comes and he starts medication, then he won't be able to continue his medication during the race war, and so he is afraid to start treatment.
- He expressed that salt triggers his thyroid. He monitors his salt intake on a daily basis and believes that iodized salt is increasing the fullness of his thyroid gland and somehow contributes to his hair loss.
- He requires that I spend time during each visit addressing concerns about his thyroid.
- When confronted with evidence that a physician had measured the precise length of Mr. Roof's legs and found no significant difference, Mr. Roof said that he did not believe the physician and continued to insist that one leg was longer than the other.

Mr. Roof holds grandiose beliefs.

- He thinks that if the federal prosecutors met him, they would like him and not give him the death penalty.
- He believes that if Judge Gergel would be the one to sentence him, he would not sentence Mr. Roof to death because Judge Gergel smiled at him and therefore likes him.
- Mr. Roof believes that prosecutor Scarlett Wilson would like him if she met him and she would drop her request for the death penalty.
- He has said that when the race war happens, prison guards will be on his side and there will be a "coup d'etat." When this happens, Mr. Roof has said that the guards will assist in breaking him out of prison.
- Mr. Roof expressed the belief that there is only a "30% chance" that he will be sentenced to death.
- Regarding the charges, Mr. Roof has expressed the belief that he personally "had to" do something, and that he was compelled to do something.
- He believes that he will be part of history, and he distinguishes that from being famous; he says he will go down in history, and 50 years from now this event will be an important event in history.
- He is focused on the number of "hits" on his Wikipedia page, and describes that a person's level of importance is based upon the number of views on that person's Wikipedia page.

Among Mr. Roof's most prominent thought content is paranoia and suspiciousness, which has increased to a point where it is interfering with his functioning. I have observed:

- He is preoccupied with the idea that he will be stabbed "150 times;" he has brought this up on two occasions, both times using 150 as the number.
- He is preoccupied with the idea that white people are under attack.
- He believes white people will become extinct.
- He believes white people are outnumbered.
- He believes there will be a race war.
- He believes that if we had a race war one half of the white people would fight the other side against themselves.
- He has in the past researched and believed in various conspiracy theories, such as the idea that vaccinations cause leukemia.
- He is preoccupied with his belief that the world is not safe.

Mr. Roof has a developmental disorder, Autism Spectrum Disorder, which puts him at heightened risk for comorbid mental disorders. As discussed later in this report, the diagnosis of ASD has been confirmed by an evaluation by Rachel Lofton, Ph.D., a psychologist specializing in the assessment and treatment of autism in children and adults.

Mr. Roof became increasingly isolated during adolescence, and used internet research as the source of his ideas, which eventually became fixed and unchecked by reality.

Mr. Roof has expressed that he Googled "black on white" crime and began researching information he found as a result. He states that his life has never been the same since Googling "black on white" crime. Before he did this "research," he said he always had "uncomfortable" feelings that he could not explain. Afterwards, he felt suddenly better because it offered him an explanation for his uncomfortable feelings. He stated that he had always known something was wrong, but he did not know what it was. His statements to me are similar to what is written in his online manifesto, in which he states: "I have never been the same since that day. . . . At this moment, I realized that something was very wrong."

Prior to his charges, Mr. Roof had been extremely worried that he had a medical illness. He had visited doctors repeatedly, even after being advised he had no condition that required treatment. Records of his endocrinology visits support his statements to me that he sought but was refused medication for his thyroid condition.

In his grand jury testimony, his grandfather Joe Roof testified that Mr. Roof came to him and said “Papa, did you know that I am a paranoid schizophrenic?” Dylann Roof explained that he took an online test, and that he had checked off all the symptoms and that he is paranoid schizophrenic. (Page 20382).

Mr. Roof’s marked anxiety has been consistently documented since adolescence, as evidenced by his refusal to go to school, or even to leave his home. His mother reports occasions when he was a passenger in her car and did not want her to pull alongside other vehicles because he did not want the people in the adjacent cars to look at him. He is anxious about social interactions, about having to perform in front of others, and simply about being looked at; he fears that he will be embarrassed.

Since the age of 16, he reports to me that he is occasionally overcome by what he describes as “blushing attacks.”

Also for a number of years, he mixes up his day and night, and he sometimes sleeps during the day. He describes that he gets stuck on a “bad sleep schedule.”

Mr. Roof has psychotic symptoms, including somatic delusions, transient paranoid ideation, transient grandiose ideation, and periods of thought disorganization that were witnessed by this examiner.

Mr. Roof has demonstrated disorganized thinking during his interviews with this evaluator. When left unstructured, he will discuss topics that are unrelated, often abruptly switching from one topic to an unrelated topic. One example of this can be observed during a recorded jail visit with his sisters Amber and Morgan, where he begins discussing airships in the middle of discussing current events with his sister. He also exhibits some stereotyped motor movement near the end of this visit as his sister says she loved him.

Diagnoses:

On the basis of all of the information that I have reviewed, my education, training and professional experience, I diagnose Mr. Roof, to a reasonable degree of medical certainty, as follows:

1. Autism Spectrum Disorder, requiring support, without accompanying intellectual impairment, and without accompanying language impairment;
2. Other Specified Schizophrenia Spectrum and Other Psychotic Disorder (Attenuated psychosis);

3. Other Specified Anxiety Disorder;¹
4. Alcohol Use Disorder, In a Controlled Environment²
5. Hashimoto's Thyroiditis.

Impact of Mental Disorders

Each of the first three conditions diagnosed above substantially impacted Mr. Roof's functioning in the time period leading up to the crimes, during the crimes, and in the time period since.

Specifically, in August of 2013, Mr. Roof was socially isolated and had identity confusion. He was not progressing or developing like his peers. Where others his age might be headed to college or have a job, Mr. Roof was in limbo, living in a bedroom in his mother's boyfriend's home at the age of 19-21. He rarely left the house or even his bedroom. His autism spectrum disorder impaired his ability to understand and interact with the world around him. He looked to the Internet for answers to virtually every question he had, whether sexual, medical, political, or about world events. His learning and searching were not guided by anyone. When he tried to speak with his mother or other family members about his developing ideas (learned from racist internet sites) about race, his fears that blacks were injuring whites, and that the Jewish media were covering it up, his ideas offended others and he learned to keep them to himself. When individuals whose autism spectrum disorder has been identified and treated have socially inappropriate ideas, they can learn through therapy and appropriate interactions what the “limits” are and what is considered appropriate in the larger world. Mr. Roof did not have that type of interaction available to him and his world was limited to his own ideas and those he encountered on the Internet. The primary person that Mr. Roof interacted with, by all accounts, was his mother, who has her own limitations. With its display of violent images, “fake news,” purported statistics and white supremacist ideology, the Internet taught him hate-filled ideas, mostly-race-based, and Mr. Roof had nobody to dispel those ideas in a concrete, meaningful way.

¹ This category applies to presentations in which symptoms characteristic of an anxiety disorder that causes clinically significant distress or impaired social, occupational or other important areas of functioning predominated but do not meet the full criteria for any of the anxiety disorders diagnostic class. The other specified anxiety disorder category is used in situations in which the clinician chooses to communicate the specific reason that the presentation does not meet the criteria for any specific anxiety disorder. This is done by recording "other specified anxiety disorder" followed by the specific reason. Here, Mr. Roof's irrational fears and anxiety surrounding being labeled with mental illness is more important to him than all other concerns about his legal case, including the penalty that he faces. This is not simply a concern about losing prestige or status within his perceived racist movement. He does not describe being part of any community or political movement prior to the events. Also, he has a history of being diagnosed with an anxiety disorder since age 16. One of the exclusion criteria for Social Anxiety is the presence of Autism Spectrum Disorder, if it better accounts for his symptoms. He does have features of social anxiety. Furthermore, he is presently requesting treatment to prevent him from "blushing" while he is representing himself.

² Mr. Roof has been intoxicated with alcohol in the past and required Emergency Room care as an adolescent. His friends noted that his behavior changed when he was intoxicated. In the month preceding this offense, acquaintances reported that he would retreat to his car and listen to "opera" type music. He continued his use despite the social problems it caused him. The above two criteria are sufficient for him to meet the diagnostic criteria.

At the same time, his psychosis was developing. He became increasingly controlled by fear, both in his racist beliefs (about blacks harming whites and the alleged Jewish media cover-up) and about his own health and wellbeing.

Significantly, the diagnoses listed above are based on my interactions with and observations of Mr. Roof. The signs and symptoms of these diagnoses are also reflected in the confession video, and include the following:

- Mr. Roof shows deficits in eye contact and frequently looks down or someplace other than directly at the speaker, at least until he becomes accustomed to the speaker.
- Mr. Roof’s manner of speaking is frequently pedantic.
- Mr. Roof’s thought processes become disorganized. That is, if conversation is not guided by the other participant, he frequently presents topics in a manner such that one topic is not related to the other. He jumps from one topic to another with no apparent connection between the two.
- Mr. Roof’s affect is often incongruent. For example, he may smile inappropriately for no apparent reason or when discussing topics that upset him. He also may smile when he is upset with the interviewer. He may smile at times that are very inappropriate to the content of the subject matter being viewed or discussed. When his affect is not inappropriate, it is constricted.
- Mr. Roof’s thought content at times reflects grandiosity, paranoia, fixation on narrow focused interests, and difficulty understanding others’ emotions and reactions to his behaviors. He is preoccupied with his physical health, potential illnesses, potential treatments and his long-term health.
- He is sometimes childlike in demeanor.

- He has consistently lacked insight.
- Among Mr. Roof's most prominent thought content is paranoia and suspiciousness. Among his most persistent fears, which are reflected to some degree in the confession video: He is preoccupied with the idea that white people are under attack, and he is preoccupied with his belief that the world is not safe.
- Mr. Roof's behavior and statements during my evaluations are consistent with review of his prior records, reports from others, and the crimes and the aftermath.

These diagnoses are further supported by:

- Mr. Roof's developmental history, including pediatric records, school history, history from parents and family, and social history.
- Mr. Roof's educational history, including his attendance at many schools, his increasing social anxiety, his lack of social relationships, his body dysmorphic concerns and other problems that by the 8th or 9th grade caused him to avoid school despite above average intelligence, and led him to drop out of school and eventually obtain his GED.
- Mr. Roof's vocational history, which was unsuccessful. He worked briefly on a landscaping crew, and had an aversion to chemicals and social anxiety that compromised his performance. He dressed oddly with just one example being that he would often wear two layers of clothing and his t-shirts cut off.
- Mr. Roof's medical history, which included a decline in his head circumference not matching height/weight of concern as early as age 18 months. He was tongue-tied as a child until corrective surgery. His yearly wellness checks, particularly as he reached the 8th and 9th grades, reflected that he spent all his time isolated and on his computer. He had social anxiety and developed concerns about medical problems. He became concerned that he had cancer of the lymph nodes after learning of his mother's boyfriend's history of that disease. When doctors reported minimal or no abnormalities requiring treatment, Mr. Roof became preoccupied with Hashimoto's disease and he has evidenced somatic preoccupations that at times have been delusional.
- Mr. Roof's family medical history, which includes translocated chromosomes in both Mr. Roof and his mother. [REDACTED]

- Mr. Roof's substance abuse history. He was experimenting with drugs – primarily those that have a calming effect -- and incurred a legal charge, which should have prohibited his lawful purchase of a handgun.
- Mr. Roof's prior legal history, which included police interactions due to drugs, avoidance of school, and odd behaviors and interactions at a mall when he was in search of a job.
- Mr. Roof's psychiatric history, which included evaluation in 2009 at a mental health center in Lexington County. Evaluators noted social anxiety and withdrawal, and Mr. Roof did not follow through with recommended treatment.

Developmental History:

Arlene Andrews, Ph.D., LISW, chronicled a social and medical history for Dylann Roof, and provided summaries of witness interviews. Reliance upon witness interviews conducted by a licensed clinical social worker is standard in my field, and I rely here upon Dr. Andrews' information concerning pertinent developmental history factors, along with my own interviews and the government's discovery. Dr. Andrews digested Mr. Roof's history and records in a table relied upon by this examiner.

Relationship History:

Mr. Roof denies having any romantic or sexual relationships.

If called to testify, I would explain the significance of these and other facts from Dylann Roof’s medical, mental health, detention center and prior legal records, and their relationship to the diagnoses outlined above.

Review of the Government’s Discovery:

The witnesses who knew Dylann Roof across his lifetime, some of whom testified before the Grand Jury, relayed significant developmental history that is consistent with that set forth in the witness interviews conducted by Dr. Arlene Andrews and by this examiner, including, but not limited to, the following observations:

- Dylann Roof told his grandfather he is a paranoid schizophrenic based on having completed a symptom checklist online. (C. Joe Roof, GJ, US020323, 20382);
- Dylann Roof, shortly before the offenses, told Laura Plexico that he was doing “horrible, my life is falling apart.” (Laura Plexico, FD302, US019241, 19241)

(Laura Plexico, GJ, US020481, 20484);

- Dylann was very quiet and talked to himself. (Laura Plexico, GJ, US020481, 20481);
- Laura Plexico said that a year or two before the offenses, she went to Dylann Roof's mother's house and found that Dylann was drunk and crying and he remembered him throwing himself on the floor and smacking himself in the head. (Laura Plexico, GJ, US020481, 20482);
- Jacob Meek described Dylann as looking tired and lifeless in the month preceding the offenses. (Jacob Meek, FD302, US019182, 19185);
- In the month or so before the offenses, Christon Scriven described that one minute Dylann was happy, then he'd be sad and depressed looking. He'd sit in his car listening to opera music, sad and depressed; these mood changes occurred quite often. (Christon Scriven, GJ, US020176, 20184);
- In that same time frame, Scriven described that Dylann Roof was "weird, schizo and would flip out and calm down just as quickly." (Christon Scriven, FD302, US017170, 17170);
- Joey Meek said when they met in 2010, Dylann's mom pushed him out to make friends with Joey and Joey brought him around the neighborhood. Joey did the same when Dylann came back in 2015. Dylann did not hang out independent of Joey. (Joey Meek, Interview Transcript, US022217, 22267);
- Jacob Meek said that when Dylann reconnected with Joey, he was even quieter than he was before. (Jacob Meek, FD127, US017275, 17276);
- Lindsey Fry said Dylann was very quiet and didn't never say much. Lindsey and him never had a conversation, ever. (Lindsey Fry, GJ, US020514, 20519);
- Lindsey Fry said Dylann stayed to himself all the time. Really, the talked to Joey, but that was it. (Lindsey Fry, GJ, US020514, 20520);
- Justin Meek said Dylann needed alone time and went to his car to listen to music. (Justin Meek, FD302, US 017270, 17273);
- When Dylann first arrived, he shook Danny's hand, was shy, and went right to his assigned room. (Danny Beard, 302, US019200, 19200);
- In the years before the offenses, Danny Beard wanted Dylann to leave the house, but Dylann did not want to leave the house or his room. (Danny Beard, 302, US01920, 19201);

- Danny Beard said that Dylann, in the years preceding the offenses, did not have many friends. (Danny Beard, 302, US01920, 19201);
- Dylann was quiet the entire time he was in Red Bank (the month before the offenses); seemed down and did not want to be there. (Christopher Salas, FD302, US017266, 17267);
- In the month before the offenses, Dylann didn't interact socially; he didn't have other friends. (Christon Scriven, GJ, US020176, 20185);
- Dylann was quiet and kept to himself. (Dalton Tyler, FD302, US017284, 17285);
- Dylann was weird and a little antisocial. (Dalton Tyler, GJ, US062861, 62869);

- Dylann Roof's brother-in-law Michael Tyo described trying to talk with Dylann in the years before the offenses, but without success: I'm good at talking to men in the 18-21 year old range, but his responses were short yes, no, bye and he didn't respond to a lot of things I would say. It was kind of like I wasn't there or I didn't say anything. (Michael Tyo, GJ, US020589, 20596); It got to the point where I wouldn't say anything to him other than "hey." (Michael Tyo, GJ, US020589, 20597);

If called to testify, I would explain the significance of the above and other facts from Dylann Roof's developmental history and their relationship to the diagnoses outlined above.

Results of Other Evaluations/Consultations:

In formulating my opinion, I have considered the results of the competency evaluation conducted by Dr. James Ballenger on 11/15/16, and the psychological testing conducted by Dr. Mark Wagner. I have relied upon the evaluation conducted by Dr. Rachel Loftin, and the results of testing that she performed. I have relied upon the neuropsychological test results performed by Dr. Paul Moberg as well.

- Dr. James Ballenger 11/15/16

Dr. Ballenger interviewed Mr. Roof three times over a five-day period. He also had Dr. Mark Wagner, Ph.D. perform intellectual and personality assessments. Dr. Ballenger reported: "On his IQ test, he attained a full scale score of 125 which placed the Defendant in the superior range of intellectual function at the 96th percentile relative to his comparison national standardized aged peers. On the four factors making up that IQ score, his verbal comprehension score was 141, which is at the 99.7th percentile relative to normative national peers, and is rated very superior. His relative weakness was a score of 100 for processing speed, which placed him in the 50th percentile. His personality traits in the testing were that he was wary and sensitive, very uncomfortable in social situations with little interest in interacting with others. It was suggested that the Defendant was mostly passive and submissive in dealing with others."

Dr. Wagner's diagnostic sense and the result of his personality profile were that the diagnosis of Schizoid Personality Disorder needed to be "ruled out," meaning that there were indicia of the possibility of such a diagnosis. The Defendant was tested on 10/26/16. Dr. Wagner's analysis of the results of the Personality Assessment Inventory (PAI) suggested a rule out of a specific phobia and avoidant personality disorder. In particular, they also found no evidence of a psychosis and "no marked elevations that should be considered to indicate the presence of clinical psychopathology." However, importantly "the client's MMPI- II clinical profile was within normal limits." This suggested that he was a "rather introverted person" that "is probably shy and maybe uneasy and somewhat rigid and over controlled in social situations." The testing suggested that "the Defendant may be visibly uneasy around other people. "

Dr. Ballenger also noted of Mr. Roof: "However, for the first time in all three interviews, he agreed that he did not want any evidence in his record that he was "defective" in any way, e.g. had social anxiety or took psychiatric medicines. He admitted that this was related to his beliefs that after the white nationalist revolution occurred and was successful, he has to maintain his reputation as 'a perfect specimen.' However, he denied that he thought that he would have any special position in the government at that point. His feelings about keeping any mental illness or weakness secret seemed related to his white nationalist feelings about sterilization and eliminating non-perfect, non-white people (like the Nazis did)."

Dr. Ballenger reported that Mr. Roof meets the criteria for Social Anxiety Disorder, probably Generalized Anxiety Disorder, possible Autistic Spectrum Disorder, a Mixed Substance Abuse Disorder, depression by history and a Schizoid Personality Disorder.

To the extent that my findings differ from those of Dr. Ballenger, I note that he did not have the benefit of seeing Dylann Roof across time in the same way that I have. In my experience, Dylann Roof has become more guarded over time, particularly with respect to his somatic delusional beliefs. He has learned often to say “I can’t talk about it,” when he detects that the person questioning him is interested in a topic. Dylann Roof is particularly invested in being perceived as “normal,” and as my visits have progressed with him, he has begun more often to decline to talk about his true feelings or perceptions. Often in Dr. Ballenger’s report, he describes Dylann Roof as stating that he can’t talk about things that he had previously discussed with me. I testified to this in the competency hearing. Furthermore, at the time he authored his report, Dr. Ballenger did not have the benefit of the thorough testing, consultation with, and evaluation results of Dr. Rachel Loftin, see below, nor the neuropsychological data and report of Dr. Moberg, also see below.

- Dr. Rachel Loftin, Ph.D.

Dr. Loftin’s report confirms that Mr. Roof meets the diagnostic criteria for Autistic Spectrum Disorder. Her assessment was based on a combination of interviews with Mr. Roof, social and developmental history investigation, adaptive functioning evaluation, neurodevelopmental testing, including the Autism Diagnostic Observation Schedule (ADOS-2), psychological and neuropsychological testing, reference to the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (Fifth Edition) criteria, and review of case-related materials. She evaluated Mr. Roof three times, interviewed family members, and diagnosed him with an autistic spectrum disorder. In the course of my evaluation of Dylann Roof over these past eight months, I have consulted with Dr. Loftin and reviewed her affidavits and report, and relied on the same (along with my own training, experience, observations and review of collateral information and interviews) in forming my opinion that Dylann Roof is properly diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder.

- Dr. Paul Moberg, Ph.D. 2/2/16, 12//2016

Dr. Moberg conducted neuropsychological assessment and a facial norms assessment which indicates he has an abnormal facial width, abnormal facial depth, abnormal facial height, abnormal nasal width, and abnormal facial prominence. Facial dysmorphism is significant because of its association with brain abnormalities. Significant findings included Mr. Roof having a 20 point difference in his verbal and performance functions. His verbal intelligence was 127. His processing speed and working memory scores were significantly lower. His semantic fluency was also decreased. Mr. Roof showed weakness in nonverbal learning and some language functions. His neuropsychological testing indicates that he has a significant split between his verbal and nonverbal functioning. He also has impairments in his language functioning. He was also noted to have a decrease in grip strength.

It is notable that in clinical interviews in February, 2016, Dr. Moberg elicited considerable evidence of Mr. Roof's somatic and grandiose delusions that was reportedly no longer on display when Dr. Ballenger interviewed Mr. Roof in November, 2016. This discrepancy is consistent with the hypothesis that Mr. Roof had become much more guarded and more invested in concealing evidence of mental illness by the time of the court-ordered competency evaluation.

With regard to Dr. Moberg's neuropsychological function testing, Dr. Moberg reports that: These scores and performances converge in indicating mild frontal system dysfunction characterized by reduced processing speed, variability in reaction time, poor speed, planning, and error-monitoring, increased proactive interference in memory, perseverative and rigid responding, and relative reductions in semantic fluency. Frontal system dysfunction has been associated with the types of symptoms experienced by Mr. Roof. The real-world implications of these impairments included disruptions of decision-making, coding and tracking new information, weighing options, adjusting to new information and modifying thinking and behavior. Overall, these types of deficits are core components of psychosis spectrum disorders.

This finding lends further support to my diagnosis of Other Specified Schizophrenia Spectrum and Other Psychotic Disorder (Attenuated psychosis) and is consistent with my clinical observations of Dylann Roof.

Competency

Presently, it is my opinion, to a reasonable degree of medical certainty, that, due to the above mental impairments, Mr. Roof is not able to assist in his legal defense at the comparatively low level required in order to be competent for trial. Mr. Roof's impairments prevent him from rationally communicating with his attorneys and weighing the risks and benefits of trial-related decisions, and from being able to assist in his own defense.

Mr. Roof lacks the ability to work with counsel, to communicate and make decisions with his counsel, and to relate pertinent information to his counsel.

Based upon my personal observations, Mr. Roof lacks the ability to show appropriate interest and emotional response in the courtroom. He is hyper-vigilant, suspicious, and guarded; he has difficulty interpreting social cues accurately; he relates intrusive thoughts and switches abruptly from one topic to another, no matter how seemingly irrelevant the topic is to the discussion at hand; he has difficulty comprehending the emotional content of language and situations; he has trouble regulating his affect appropriately and he shows inappropriate affect, including smiling when discussing extremely troubling beliefs or events; he does not rationally plan for his future. He expresses far more concern about issues such as hair loss and the clothing he will wear than the possibility of receiving a death sentence from a jury and being executed.

Mr. Roof lacks the ability to rationally determine the strategy that should be used at his capital trial.

Mr. Roof has never expressed to me a concern about being executed, which is different from any capital defendant I have evaluated before.

Mr. Roof's fear of embarrassment, which is founded upon his somatic delusions and other preoccupations, is more important to him than all other concerns about his legal case, including the penalty that he faces. This is not simply a concern about losing prestige or status within his perceived racist movement. Notably, he does not describe being part of any community or movement prior to the events. Instead, his overwhelming fear of embarrassment prohibits him from participating in rationally weighing the risks and benefits regarding any information to be presented at his trial.

Mr. Roof's delusional beliefs, suspiciousness and mental impairments influence his reasoning and appreciation of his current legal situation, while leaving his factual understanding and knowledge of the legal system relatively unimpaired.

In light of the above, it is my professional opinion, to a reasonable degree of medical certainty, that Mr. Roof does not have a sufficient present ability to consult with his lawyers with a reasonable degree of rational understanding of the proceedings against him.
