Guide reflects salaries before merit-based pay increase, end of salary freeze

STAFF REPORTS

Although the University distributed merit-based pay increases of up to 1.5 percent in December, data obtained by The Exponent for the salary guide reflects salaries under last year's pay freeze.

During the pay freeze, some Purdue employees received raises for various reasons. According to Chris Sigurdson, assistant vice president for external relations, professors who had a "change in academic rank ... got a pay raise." Others, such as post-doctoral researchers, received an increase in pay as required by contract.

Some faculty who were courted by competing academic institutions also received pay increases as an incentive to stay at Purdue.

All other pay increases, according to Sigurdson, reflect either a change in position or a change from part-time to full-time employment.

The merit-based pay raises were the first University-wide raises since July 1, 2008.

"We've been going through an austerity period," Sigurdson said regarding the pay freeze.
