the specially designed Boiler-maker banner. It was originally given to Armstrong by the Alumni Association. He then took the silk flag on the Gemini VIII flight as part of his eight ounce allotment for personal effects.

"I carried the flag in honor of Purdue individuals - staff and alumni - engaged in teaching, research, industry and government who make possible and are deeply involved in our program," Armstrong explained at the banquet.

The flag, now framed and under glass, is currently on display in the Alumni Association office, room 160 in the Memorial Union.

Ackerson Granted Student Court Trial

by THOMAS N. LESLIE
Staff Reporter

Student Court has granted Neils Ackerson a trial as the result of a hearing held last Sunday afternoon. The trial of Ackerson versus the Election Commission is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. this evening in room 206 of the Memorial Center.

After deliberating nearly three hours, Chief Justice Bob Manifold read the Court's decision to grant Ackerson a trial in his bid to gain a reversal of the Election Commission's report. In a five page statement, Ackerson labeled the Election's Commission's report as "incomplete, misleading, and improper."

Ackerson's statement claimed that Ed Harris, campaign manager for Cy Gerde, did not request that their complaint of a violation be investigated. "Since a request was not received, the Elections Commission has no right to investigate."

Ackerson pointed out that

Gemini astronaut Neil Armstrong, a 1955 University graduate visited the campus last Saturday as a highlight of the Gala Week festivities.

At Saturday evening's Founder's Day Banquet, Armstrong presented President Frederick L. Hovde with a "Purdue Pete" banner which he carried on his Gemini VIII orbital flight. After the banquet, he appeared on stage at the University Bands' "May-Gala" performance in Loeb Playhouse.

Student Activities

Following his public appearances, Armstrong spoke of his college career and future plans in an EXPONENT interview.

Giving his views on student activities, Armstrong commented, "Extracurricular activities should be chosen to improve your experience in those areas which you think you'll need after graduation. They should not overpower the academic requirements."

Hard Work

He added, "Everyone recalls the pleasant days at the University, and is prone to forget the hours of hard work, but it's the hours of hard work that are the most important."

As an undergraduate, Armstrong was a member of the band, the Aero Club, Sigma Gamma Tau aeronautical engineering honorary, and Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

EXPONENT Carrier

Armstrong also recalled getting up "bright and early" as an EXPONENT carrier to deliver the paper to the students.

"I was extremely pleased to find that so many friends were here to greet me," he said of his Saturday arrival. He characterized their welcome as "typical of Purdue people everywhere."

Armstrong was recognized for his participation in the band by the presentation of an honorary membership in Kappa Kappa Psi, national band fraternity. The pot and pledgeboard of the organization were awarded to him at the Saturday evening band performance.

Radical Ideas

Looking to the future of the space program, Armstrong iterated, "It was only 13 years ago

Mortar Board Selects Members Of Excellence

Among the many activities and events which fill up the last month of classes is one in which only a select few are allowed to participate, Mortar Board tapping. Every Spring the members of Mortar Board select anywhere from 5-25 Junior women on the basis of high scholarship, outstanding leadership and unselfish service to campus.

"It's a complete thing," said Ann Perpich, president of Mortar Board. "Not only grades and activities are considered but also character, personality, and outlook on life."

Mortar Board has 112 active chapters. The chapter here at Purdue has presently 22 members.

Advance Service

The purposes of Mortar Board are many, to advance the spirit of service and fellowship among university women, to promote and maintain a high standard of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership, and to stimulate and develop a fine type of college woman.

Perhaps the best-known project of Purdue's chapter is the Mortar Board calendar which is put out every fall. The money from the calendar sales is used to contribute to graduate and undergraduate scholarships for Purdue women. Since 1945 Mortar Board has given $50,000 to the University.

Radical Ideas

Looking to the future of the space program, Armstrong iterated, "It was only 13 years ago that Dr. Von Braun first published a book entitled 'Conquest of the Moon,' and he at that time was considered to be quite radical in his views."

He continued, "His book, that short time ago, said that if all the world united and made a substantial effort, we could get to the moon by the year 2000. Consequently, I think anyone's prophecies for the future will probably fall short of the actual occurrence."

Girls Interview

During the first semester freshmen girls have an interview with the assistant Dean of Women to help acquaint them with the University. Members of Mortar Board are present at these interviews to help out by answering any questions.

When asked what it meant to her to be Mortar Board President, Ann Perpich replied that it was the "most fantastic thing that could happen in my college career."

Alumni Association Elects Trustee, Chooses New Regional Directors

Louis R. Lowe, Indianapolis attorney, was elected alumni trustee of the University for a three year term. He will succeed William A. Hanley, Indianapolis, veteran member of the board, who is retiring June 30.

Also elected were five regional directors of the Purdue Alumni Association. Results of the mail ballot were announced at the annual luncheon and business meeting of the association Saturday, during the Gala Week festivities.

Alfred W. Kettler, Jr., Fort Wayne, was elected director of Region 4 to succeed Robert M. Wagner, Anderson. Earl Martin, Indianapolis, will succeed retiring director Lowe in Region 5.

Weather

Mostly sunny Tuesday. Fair and cool Tuesday night and Wednesday. High Tuesday 58-68.

Robert L. Holloway, Middletown, Ky., won the election in Region 12 and will succeed James M. Wood, Memphis, Tenn. Winner in Region 13 was J. Ralph Dannemiller, Dallas, Tex., to succeed John C. Carl, East St. Louis, Ill. John E. Smith, Los Gatos, Calif., won in Region 15 and will succeed Burt W. Dreyer, Laguna Hills, Calif.

Philip W. Mettling, Louisville, Ky., president of the alumni association, presided at the luncheon and announced the results. Officers of the association were not up for election this year.

Lowe will join J. Ralph Thompson, Seymour, and Alfred W. Kettler, Sr., Fort Wayne, as the three alumni trustees on the Purdue board. Thompson is currently president of the board and Kettler vice-president.

A 1928 civil engineering graduate, Lowe is a member of the law firm of Dowden, Denny, Caughran & Lowe. He is a past president of the Purdue Club of Indianapolis and a member of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce. He also is a director, secretary and treasurer of Construction Products Corp., manufacturers of pre-stressed concrete beams.
