SALES TAX FOR SCHOOLS.

Editor, The Democrat: Reorganization of school districts in Iowa will mean higher taxes for most of us and real estate owners, but to some districts the taxes will be lower.

The modern trend is toward consolidation of schools and the non-property owner in 100 per cent in favor of the trend because it does not raise his taxes. Rich and poor alike pay sales taxes, so questions asked. It is a sort of painless way to pay them. Why should not more revenue from sales taxes be used for school funds to ease the tax burden on the property owner?

Taxes on farms near Wilton are $7 an acre while in a rural burden for the owner who has to make improvements on his farm, keep up interest on the mortgage, and make a living for his family. The Reynoldsville school district in Polk county has an $8 an acre tax. It appears that with our modern education we are still so ignorant that we are educating ourselves right out of our homes. Our farm not happens to be on the other side of the fence, else we could just as well give it to the school district and pay rent.

I have always been greatly interested in Scott county because I was born and lived there a greater part of my life. I have always respected Mr. Bance as a very outstanding rural school superintendent. Bance, why not take the lead in Iowa as a man who holds the welfare of the taxpayers first? Everyone wants a good education but all persons should help pay for it by putting aside more revenue from other sources than real estate.

I hope some public spirited citizens will get behind this and take the lead in the state of Iowa.

Taxpayer.

Halfax, Ia. Schuyler, H. R. No. 1, Tipton, Ia.—Mrs. Emma Miller was granted a divorce from Clarence A. Miller in district court here Thursday on grounds of cruelty. By agreement she was given custody of two minor sons and title to household furnishings. The Miller, married Feb. 22, 1922, in Clinton, separated in June. They have five children, but only two are living at home.

Bill Basie gained his title of "Count" while in Chicago. Down and out and without fare for a trip back home to Red Bank, N. J., he filled in at a nickel movie house as a piano player.

The royal manner in which Basie conducted himself when his fingers struck the keyboard earned him his title of "Count" from the house manager. The name stuck.

Greg McNally, general chairman of the homecoming celebration, announced Friday that tickets will be available at the door Friday night for the dance.
