

Foundation for the future

Beneath the 10-foot retaining wall at the Rush River Commons is a complex system of piers, gravel and concrete designed to leave in place as much of the original soil as possible, while protecting the adjacent wetland.

Source: Rush River Commons

Foothills Forum