

Meet Marjorie Villa, Executive Director of Rotary Expo '93. Marjorie, a lifelong resident of St. Albans, has helped this year with planning and organizing all the 144 vendors that will be on hand this coming weekend at Rotary Expo '93. "A super show," Marjorie says, "please come out and enjoy yourselves!" This year's show will have expanded food concessions; more exhibits than last year with representation from not only Vermont but from New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts as well. The U.S. Customs Band will play, Crimestoppers of Franklin County will be represented, and expanded health exhibits from Vermont chapters of the American Heart, Lung and Cancer Associations will be in attendance. And let's not forget if you would like to see the world, a representative from the U.S. Navy recruiting office will be there as well. We sold out all our vendor space two to three weeks ago and are already looking ahead to next year. But don't forget we'd like to see you all at this weekend's Expo '93.
