STAR CODES

MAJOR TRANSFORMATIVE ASTROLOGICAL patterns click into place this week, though they'll be working on us for the next few years. The four outer planets — Pluto in Aquarius, Neptune in Aries, Uranus in Gemini, Jupiter in Leo, and joined by the Libra moon on Sunday — all hit 4 degrees, forming an interconnected pattern, a cradle or basket covering half the sky, a pattern named Barbault's Basket after a French astrologer who first tracked it and predicted metamorphosis.

For most of us this week will be pleasant if laced with small snafus and strange opportunities, but change is upon our world and we need to help direct it.

This whole pattern has no precedent in written history though it's woven out of more familiar trines and sextiles, soft or auspicious aspects that can activate us and open doors. The basket's one opposition runs between Jupiter and Pluto, an opposition which occurs every 13 years and correlates with political liberation and epidemics, opportunities to be freed, either on earth or from earth.

Mercury, retrograde these last two weeks, turns direct on Thursday, which can let the dust settle and help us see more clearly soon. Until then, go gently and stay aware of the surroundings to minimize snafus and maximize mutual understanding. Help our world evolve.

FRIDAY, JULY 17: Find kind humor in problems. We can be unusually critical and prone to stomach aches as the persnickety Virgo moon conjuncts Venus then squares Mars; let's cut every-one slack and take care of our guts. We run major neurological voltage as Uranus trines Pluto. Let's keep our eyes on the prize and focus on how to ease into a healthier future.

SATURDAY, JULY 18: Make life more habitable through small fixes and reorganization as the Virgo moon sextiles Mercury. We become painfully aware of verbal snafus, mistaken identities, and big political moves which could be historic missteps. Be kind and don't harp on mistakes; most of us are aware and doing our own homework. Tonight softens as the moon enters gracious Libra.

SUNDAY, JULY 19: Ask what needs to come back into balance as the Libra moon forms a grand trine with Pluto and Uranus. Work we do now to repair and balance our lives, relationships, society, and ecosystem can bear fruit. Check in on young and old, working across the generations toward a common goal, small or large, to come to a new understanding.

MONDAY, JULY 20: Creativity abounds, but ordinary things may snafu; listen for news of boundaries crossed by microorganisms or countries as Jupiter trines Neptune and opposes Pluto. Respect the autonomy of the individual. Engage both imagination and hard work to thoughtfully move forward; make actions symbolic and beautiful, a good seed for the future.

TUESDAY, JULY 21: Enjoy solitude and drop judgement about how others walk their path. Although metamorphosis is in progress, we'll get frustrated if we want people to change faster than they are ready as Jupiter sextiles Uranus. Partnerships are tested if we drag up the past while the focused Scorpio moon squares Jupiter and Pluto. Stay calm, collected, and know when to be quiet.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 22: Have patience around beloveds; find people funny rather than irritating and appreciate their quirks, unique approaches, and privacy. The Scorpio moon sharpens our spikes. The sun enters Leo making it harder to walk in another's shoes unless we consciously soften and include.

THURSDAY, JULY 23: Meditate, hold still, and work on progress within. It will be counterproductive to push for great progress without as Mercury appears to hold still. Feel the dam breaks, the water and words pouring forth, as Mercury turns direct and the moon enters Sagittarius tonight.
