

Black people in Minneapolis are disproportionately subjects of police use of force

Minneapolis police reported more than 10,700 uses of force — like kicks, punches or mace — from 2015 to 2019. In 6,245 of them, the subject of the force was Black. Black people were the subject of nearly 66% of uses of force although they make up 19% of the city's population.

■ Percentage of population ■ Percentage of incidents

