An open letter to Chancellor Andrew Martin, Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Anna Gonzalez, Executive Vice Chancellor and Chief Administrative Officer Nichol Luoma, and Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Beverly Wendland, with more than 1400 signatures collected

Second Open Letter for Freedom of Speech at WUSTL

We, the undersigned, are deeply concerned that Washington University has pressed trespassing charges against 100 students, faculty, and St. Louis community members who peacefully demonstrated on April 27 and demanded that Washington University respect the Student Union's resolution to divest from Boeing and condemn the ongoing atrocities in Gaza. We would have expected the Chancellor and the university administrators to take these demands seriously and form an official committee made up of faculty, students, and administrators to discuss the next steps in carrying out these demands, as any institution that claims to be part of a community would do. In contrast, the university retaliated with a brutal police attack on our colleagues, friends, and students and banned them from entering campus. We condemn the university's arbitrary and excessive actions and demand faculty and students to be returned to their offices, classrooms, and dormitories.

The heavy-handed authoritarian measures of the university administration have become appalling and threatening to the physical and mental health of our community. We were especially concerned by an emergency email we received close to midnight on April 27 from "University leaders," namely the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Anna Gonzalez, the Executive Vice Chancellor and Chief Administrative Officer Nichol Luoma, and the Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Beverly Wendland.

"Today a large group of individuals entered the Danforth Campus with the intention of causing a significant disruption to the university," began the first sentence of the email: "It quickly became clear ... that they did not have good intentions on our campus." The Vice Chancellor, the Executive Vice Chancellor, and the Provost "felt strongly that this demonstration had the potential to get out of control and become dangerous." And therefore they ordered the arrest of students, faculty, and people from both Washington University and the greater St. Louis community. "All will face charges of trespassing," noted the leaders, "and some may also be charged with resisting arrest and assault, including for injuries to police officers."

The message from the "University leaders" is a dreadful attempt to fabricate a false narrative and manipulate public opinion about the most forceful attack on our community in its recent history. Based on what evidence, we ask, are the "University leaders" claiming that the peaceful protestors had "the intention of causing a significant disruption to the university"? On a Saturday afternoon, a day after the classes were over, what kind of "disruption" could students and faculty make by simply gathering on a lawn to demonstrate on their own campus?

Based on what evidence, we ask, did it “quickly become clear” that the protestors “did not have good intentions on our campus”? Who has the authority to judge the intentions of a group of people who hurt no one, harmed no property, and did not engage in any illicit activity on their own campus?

Why, we ask, are these “University leaders” so concerned with alleged “injuries to police officers” but have no qualms ordering police to violently attack and physically harm peaceful demonstrators? Why do they not care about injured students, injured faculty, injured staff, or injured community members? We know that the situation only “got out of control and became dangerous” when “University leaders” decided to use campus and county police to attack those peacefully occupying the encampment.

Monday morning, Chancellor Martin doubled down on the administration's stance, describing his decision to send police to break up a peaceful protest as a “dark, sad day” in which his hand was forced. Spreading fears about potential harm without any evidence, the Chancellor tried to justify the decision to violently arrest a hundred peaceful demonstrators in the name of safety. He repeated over and over again that “outside interests” were an element of danger. We would point out that many of these participants were alumni, students and faculty at neighboring universities, and people from the city that Washington University calls home. They have the right to demand, alongside the university community, that one of the leading institutions “in” and “for” this city is not complicit in the ongoing violence in Gaza and does not perpetuate police violence here at home.

We reiterate: The only danger and the only violence that occurred on Saturday was at the hands of police officers and the administrators that authorized their activity; the only disruption to campus activities is that students, faculty, and staff are now banned from campus and are now unable to return to their housing, hold and take exams on campus, or do their jobs; the only bad intentions were those of the “University leaders” who chose to violently evict peaceful protesters instead of engaging seriously with their demands. Indeed, several community leaders offered to enter into a dialogue with the present Washington University leadership during the demonstration. It was University leadership that refused.

The midnight message and the violence that preceded it are the latest episode in a months-long assault on democracy and freedom of speech on our campus. In fact, just a day before the protest, more than 150 faculty, staff, and students from Washington University signed “An Open Letter on Freedom of Speech at WUSTL.” The letter drew attention to the arbitrary suspension of three students who protested Washington University’s complicity in Israel’s ongoing war against Palestinians in Gaza and noted the growing threat to academic freedom on our campus. The letter now has more than 350 signatures, including more than 100 faculty members . An additional “Open Letter on Behalf of WashU Alumni,” which received more than 1000 signatures, similarly condemned the university’s (in)actions. And yet, the large support for the letters was evidently inconsequential for the decision of the “University leaders” to send an army of police officers against faculty and students on April 27. The staggering number of arrests demonstrates the excessive measures of the “University leaders” to silence protest, discloses their complete lack of moral integrity, and sets a dangerous precedent for the exercise of democracy on our campus.

Our university is one front in the ongoing war against democracy and freedom of speech in the United States. Similar draconian measures, false accusations, and unjust arrests have also been undertaken by other universities across the country, where faculty and students have been charged with disruption and trespassing, thrown on the ground and handcuffed, beaten with batons, and banned from their own institutions. Notably, Saturday’s mass arrest of 100 protesters by Washington University was one of the largest nationwide. Our university has one additional embarrassment to be proud of: ramming presidential candidate Jill Stein with a bicycle and arresting her on charges of trespassing. Washington University’s abhorrent use of force against its own community, the wider St. Louis community, and even a presidential candidate, calls under heavy scrutiny the administrative competence of the “University leaders.” Our leaders are now the greatest threat to safety on our campus. We would like to ask our leaders: Is this the historical legacy you want to leave behind?

We demand the university leaders reflect upon the values they claim to cherish and immediately revoke the bans on and suspensions of all arrestees, including students, faculty, and staff, and drop the false charges. We demand the establishment of a committee to investigate university decision-making processes that led to this violent police action. We demand the university to never again use police force on its students and faculty. Refusal to engage with our concerns will only lead to a further erosion of confidence in university leadership.
