Prior to tonight I have never met anyone from the internet before. I have never engaged in sexual conduct with anyone under the legal age. Tonight I had been disappointed in a lack of communication with my girlfriend and made a poor judgement to try to meet someone from the internet. Upon nearing arrival, my morals ~~got~~ ^{became} the better of me and I tried to back out, at which point ~~the~~ ^{the} person told me they would be disappointed not to meet me. To avoid Further disappointment, I decided to meet the person in order to tell her I was sorry but could not spend the evening with her. At that point the police arrived.

I had taken condoms with me in hopes that my girlfriend and I would reconcile and have sex tonight, and for the meeting with the girl from the internet.

During the events, at a point when driving to meet the girl from the internet, I felt that it would be inappropriate to live out my internet fantasies and attempted to discontinue the meeting. At this point, the girl told me she would be disappointed if we did not meet.

It came to my attention that some pills were found in my car. These were placed by my father for when he borrows the car and consisted of antacids and non-narcotic pain relievers. A box of Viagra was found which I believe to have been my grandfather's placed there when cleaning out his house after he died.

I believe most (if not all) internet communications were managed on my laptop.
