Right. Along the expansive glass above the Streetscape Bay below, the public watches a simulated hostage situation as instructors on the catwalk critique.

A hallmark of the facility's unique design is the Observation Hall that allows observation of training functions without creating interference to training.

Proposed state-of-the-art training tools and space designed specifically to support advanced interactive training techniques will ensure a force of the best prepared officers.

Above. A feature of the lobby wall would be a large mural, tinted in blue and depicting the interactions between law enforcement personnel and their community.

Right. At the back of the Lobby, visitors can observe live-fire training in the Range through protective glass.
