Friends, family and one of GLOW region's best parades.

The much-anticipated 2025 celebration of the Le Roy Oatka Festival will be taking place Saturday and Sunday.

Before the festival begins, the weekend's events will kick off 6 p.m. Friday with the festival's first ever bike parade. Anybody interested in participating is welcome to arrive at Stanley Place — where the event will commence — with their decorated bikes, scooters, strollers, and wagons. The parade will process down Wolcott Street and conclude over at Trigon Park.

The event is sponsored by the Le Roy Police Department, and local officers will be present to perform helmet safety checks. Food will be available to purchase after the parade from Rob's Kabobs and the Ice Cream and Chill Truck.

The annual Oatka Fest parade will take place 11 a.m. Saturday to officially begin the festival. The procession will begin at Lent Avenue and go all the way east along Main Street to Trigon Park.

Main Street will be closed for the parade, and parking for the event will be available at the following locations: Mill Street parking lot at 10 Mill St; behind the Le Roy McDonald's on 67 Main St; and the Le Roy Tops Friendly Market Parking Lot.

A total of 70 craft/goods vendors and 14 food vendors will be at the event. The list of all vendors and a map of their location can be seen on page A4. The festival will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

There will be live music at the event, including the following bands/performers:

Saturday:
- Old Hat from noon to 2 p.m. on the main stage.
- Damn the Flood from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the gazebo.
- David Knaudt from 2 to 3 p.m. at the school sign.
- Blues Circle from 3 to 5 p.m. at the main stage.
- Warren Paul from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the gazebo.

Sunday:
- Knight N Gals/Swinging Knights from 11 a.m. to noon at the main stage.
- Hawkins & Casper from 1 to 2 p.m. at the gazebo.
- North of Forty from 1 to 2:45 p.m. at the main stage.
- Kara Fink from noon to 1 p.m. at the school sign.
- Batavia Swing Band from 3:15 to 5 p.m. at the main stage.
- Trent Yule from 2 to 3 p.m. at the school sign.
- 2Young 2B Old from 3 to 5 p.m. at the gazebo.

Free kids events available during the festival will include inflatable obstacle courses, mini golf, a rock wall, football blitz, buzzer beater, Mr. Scribbles, a free play area, face painting, balloon animals, and hair tinsel (Sunday only).

Some other events happening around the festival include a vendor fair at the Historic Jell-O Factory that is being hosted by owner Earl Funderburk and his company Oatka Distillers. The vendor fair will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the factory and will feature a yard sale-style setup.

The Oatka Creek Children's Fishing Derby hosted by the Le Roy Business Council will be running from 8 a.m. to noon on Sunday during the festival. The event is free and open to all kids who want to participate.

There will also be a Oatka Festival Car Cruise on Sunday from 11 a.m. 3 p.m. along Wolcott Street, which will give local classic car owners an opportunity to show off their vehicles during the festival. Anyone interested in participating should enter Wolcott Street from Route 19 before 10:30 a.m. and line up their cars on the creek side of the street.

Genesee Country Village & Museum Hosts Naturalization Ceremony on the 4th of July

By SAMUEL ZERILLO AND JOSEPH DEBELL

MUMFORD — They've waited for years. And on Friday, a big part of their American dream came true.

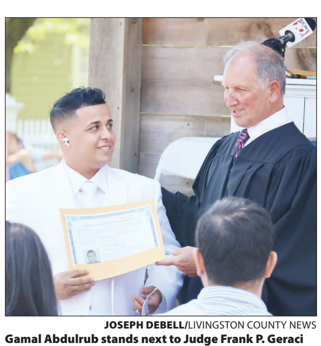
At 11 a.m. on Friday, July 4, the Genesee Country Village & Museum in Mumford hosted a naturalization ceremony to honor local immigrants who have earned their full citizenship.

A total of 29 people earned their citizenship at Friday's ceremony, coming from all corners of the globe.

Federal Judge Frank Geraci Jr. conducted the ceremony, offering opening remarks and administering the oath of citizenship to all 29 participants.

The participants originated from 23 different countries, including Canada, Mexico, North Macedonia, Trinidad and Tobago, The Dominican Republic, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Yemen.

They said the oath of citizenship together as a group and were then each individually invited up to the stage and given a certificate of citizenship as well a photo opportunity. Participants were also asked to give a word from their native language that would be said to the crowd.



JOSEPH DEBELL/LIVINGSTON COUNTY NEWS
Gamal Abdulrub stands next to Judge Frank P. Geraci Jr. after Abdulrub became an American citizen on July 4, 2025.

For participant Ryan Primus from Trinidad and Tobago, this moment meant everything to him.

"Where I came from, its so many hurdles you have to jump over," Primus said. "It's just a lot to go through, and when you finally get to this, the end of it, it's like a relief, you know? It's like the world off your shoulders man. I'm free right now."

The moment that Primus took the oath and received his certificate of citizenship is something that he will never forget.

"Forget butterflies, there was birds in there," Primus said regarding how he felt during that moment. "It was crazy, it's unexplainable... it was everything man, and I really appreciate it."

Primus was one of many who got to have that same feeling on Friday, as all 29 participants were seen celebrating with family during and after the ceremony. It was truly a feel-good moment for everyone in attendance.

Reciting the final words of the oath of allegiance, Yessica Selene Chavez Ayala began to cry.

Her journey had taken sacrifice, fear and a lifetime of work.

"I've been waiting so many years for this opportunity," Chavez Ayala said, wiping her eyes. "I remembered every sacrifice my parents made. They left everything behind so my sisters and I could have a future."

SAMUEL ZERILLO/THE LE ROY WEEKEND GAZETTE

The event was an emotional one for those who have long called America home — but until now, had not held its citizenship.

"It's a totally different feeling, and that's something I can't explain," said Gamal Abdulrub, a native of Yemen who now lives in Rochester. "This is something big for me. I've been looking forward to this for seven years."

Abdulrub, who is currently a student in Rochester, came to the United States seeking freedom. He said he was left speechless the moment he was sworn in.

For Chavez Ayala, who was born in Mexico, the day was the culmination of a long and difficult road. A civilian employee of the Rochester Police Department with plans to become a police officer, she came to the U.S. with her parents as a baby and lived most of her life here under the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program.

"I was formerly a Dreamer, then a DACA student, and eventually I was eligible to become a United States citizen," she said. "It's been a long process."

Growing up, Chavez Ayala was afraid to speak about her immigration status.

"I was afraid that exposing myself was going to cause issues for myself and my family," she said.

Before the ceremony began, the crowd of about 100 surprised Geraci by spontaneously singing the national anthem — a moment he had planned to initiate using his phone.

Presiding over the ceremony, Geraci spoke about his own ancestors' journeys from Ireland and Italy, and about the civic responsibility that comes with citizenship. He emphasized that citizenship is both a privilege and a responsibility, encouraging the new Americans to vote, serve on juries and become active members of their communities.

"You represent what America is all about," Geraci told the new citizens. "The ethnic and cultural diversity that makes up America gives it a unique richness."

Chavez Ayala agreed.

"This is where I've always known as the land of the free," she said. "If you work hard enough, your dreams can come true."

Two Charged After Wild Chase in Le Roy

Stolen gun and vehicle recovered after 120 mph pursuit

By MATT SURTEL
msurtel@batavianews.com

A stolen gun was recovered Wednesday after a wild high-speed chase which exceeded 120 mph, Le Roy police said.

Officer T.J. Mummery was on patrol when he attempted to stop a Honda Accord for traffic violations, police said. The driver instead allegedly fled east at high speed.

As the pursuit headed toward Livingston County, the suspect eventually turned back toward Le Roy, police said. At that point, Officer Mummery attempted a "PIT maneuver" to safely stop the fleeing Honda.

The attempt was unsuccessful and the pursuit continued into the village, police said. The chased ended on Church Street when the driver jumped out of the Honda and fled on foot.

The driver tried to hide by breaking into a garage but was taken into custody, police said. A female passenger who stayed in the vehicle was also taken into custody at the scene.

During the arrest, officers found the Honda's driver had a loaded, stolen handgun on his person, police said. The vehicle itself was reported stolen out of Rochester, with swapped license plates to avoid detection.

Police did not identify the driver and passenger, and did not detail what charges they may face.

Le Roy police are citing outstanding work from Mummery, along with outstanding teamwork from the Batavia Police Department, the Genesee County Sheriff's Office, city police drone unit Officer Stephen Quider with K9 Batu in the arrests.

To top it off:

- Less than 8 days ago, this same male suspect was arrested for nearly identical charges.
- The female passenger is currently on probation for stealing a car.

Outstanding work by all agencies involved!

BY GREG "PORP" ROGERS

In an effort to make travel around Le Roy a little easier for the Saturday of Oatkafest we will be making some changes. Saturday morning Craige St will have parking on 1 side only.

Church St. will be 1 way traffic going North to St. Marks, North St will be 1 way from St. Marks to Main going South. South St. will be 1 way going South Bradnell. This will be for Saturday only. Additional handicap parking will be in the school parking lot. With the added people out this weekend it is bound to cause some inconveniences, please be patient, everyone is trying to make it better.

The question has been posed why are there no garbage can in our parks? About 15 years ago the village board made all village parks a carry in/ carry out, meaning if you bring in things that is going to be garbage, it is your responsibility to take it with you when you go. If you ask why? it was garbage cans where being filled by people who did not want to be garbage stickers.

This past week, we also saw great cooperation between the county, town, and the city of Batavia. It's encouraging to see neighboring municipalities working together for the greater good.

For example, a high-speed chase involving a stolen car and illegal firearms — with a suspect who had been arrested just 8 days earlier for the same offense and released — was brought to a safe resolution thanks to the collaborative efforts of the Le Roy PD, Batavia PD, and the County Sheriff's Office. On behalf of our entire community, Chief Greg Kellogg and I would like to thank Sheriff Graff, Batavia Police Chief Heubusch, and their teams for their outstanding work.

The County and the Town of Le Roy work together with the Village DPW to repave South, North and Church St. This sharing of resources makes things work better throughout the whole county.

Dogs and Harmful Algal Blooms: Info update from NY Sea Grant — Know the Signs & Symptoms to Protect Your Pet

By New York Sea Grant

PROVIDED PHOTO
NY Sea Grant has issued updated information to help dog owners protect their pets from exposure to harmful algal blooms. According to the American Veterinary Medical Association, 4.5 percent of U.S. households were home to at least one dog in 2024.

OSWEGO, NY — To help dog owners protect their pets from toxic algal blooms, New York Sea Grant has published a newly-revised "Protect Your Dog from Harmful Algae" brochure. The publication, freely available at nyseagrant.info/dogsandhabsbrochure, includes:

. signs of harmful algae that can occur in waters from small puddles to large lakes,

. indications of harmful algal blooms (HAB) poisoning in your pet,

. tips for reducing the risk of exposure,

. pet emergency hotline contacts in New York state, and

. New York State Department of Environmental Conservation and Department of State websites for reporting waters that may have a harmful algal bloom.

"You cannot tell if a bloom is toxic by looking, but there are signs to watch for on the water as well as potentially impacted debris on shore. Additionally, knowing the signs and symptoms of harmful algae poisoning in dogs can help pet owners act quickly to seek immediate veterinary help," says New York Sea Grant Great Lakes Fisheries and Ecosystem Health Specialist Stacy Furgal.

Furgal updated the informational brochure with assistance from Cornell University Richard P. Riney Canine Health Center Extension Veterinarian Aly Cohen, D.V.M.

Dr. Cohen notes, "The harmful form of algal blooms is caused by overgrowth of cyanobacteria, often called blue-green algae, that produces toxins harmful to people, pets, waterfowl, and livestock. Water sample testing is required to confirm that harmful algae is present. This outreach by New York Sea Grant helps educate the public about the risk of HABs to dogs."

Pets and livestock can develop HABs poisoning by ingestion of HABs-infected water or shoreline debris and by grooming their fur and paws after being in water impacted by HABs. Symptoms of harmful algae poisoning in your dog may appear immediately or several hours after exposure.

Water with the potential for HABs may appear green, blue-green, brown, or red with a spilled paint pattern as well as have HAB-infected scum or mats of debris floating on the water or found along the shoreline.

New York Sea Grant is a cooperative program of Cornell University and the State University of New York and one of 34 university-based programs providing coastal communities with research and outreach to promote better understanding, conservation, and use of America's coastal resources.

Obituary announcements

Honor the cherished memory of a loved one with a personal tribute.

Place an obituary in The Le Roy Weekend Gazette starting at $75 for 5". Each additional inch in depth will cost $15. Adding a standard size photo will cost $15. If you would like to run the obituary in either The Daily News or Livingston County News in addition to The LWG, the obituary can be repeated at 50% of the original cost.

Newspapers offer a historical account of the communities they serve and we do not want to exclude anyone from our obituary page due to inability to pay. Therefore, a one-inch death notice that only lists the name, age, town, date of death and occupation of the deceased will be free of charge. The funeral home needs to note in their email that the obituary will be free. As such, the name of the Funeral Home will not be published in the free obituary.

The LWG allows Funeral Homes to publish a "partial" obituary. There is no charge for a partial as long as a complete obituary is forthcoming. If for any reason a full obituary is not published, The LWG will charge the minimum $75 obituary fee.

Call us for more information on deadlines and placement details.

Kastenbaum Announces NY-24 Candidacy

Batavia resident making second bid for Congress

Kastenbaum

BATAVIA — Diana Kastenbaum, former CEO of Pinnacle Manufacturing Company, Inc., and longtime community advocate, on Tuesday of last week announced her candidacy for the United States House of Representatives in New York's 24th Congressional District in 2026.

"Throughout my career, I've focused on building businesses, strengthening communities, and fighting for our neighbors and families particularly here in rural New York," Kastenbaum said in a statement. "I've seen how neighbors show up for neighbors, and when one of us struggles, we all step up. I'll bring that same heart and spirit to Washington."

Kastenbaum previously ran for Congress in 2016. She would be challenging incumbent Republican Claudia Tenney.

Through organizing and participating in more than five town halls since March 2025, she said in her announcement that she has identified key concerns that directly impact families in the district including protecting Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, preserving rural healthcare infrastructure, supporting veterans' services, maintaining educational funding and addressing manufacturing and agricultural workforce challenges.

"Our rural hospitals and nursing homes depend on Medicaid funding to serve our communities," Kastenbaum said in her announcement. "Our farmers need workers who are willing to do the essential work of feeding America. Our veterans deserve the services they've earned through their honorable service. These aren't partisan issues - they're neighbor issues."

Before leading Pinnacle Manufacturing, Kastenbaum spent 25 years running her own company that trained and developed software for law firms across the country. As a trustee of Genesee Community College, she serves on GCC's Advanced Manufacturing Advisory Committee and the Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT) Rural National Advisory Council, where she helps shape workforce development programs. Kastenbaum serves on both state and national community college trustee organizations.

Kastenbaum, a Batavia native, has served on the board of the Genesee-Orleans Regional Arts Council, also known as GO ART!, and the board of The Landmark Society of Genesee County, helping to preserve the region's history and character, she said in her announcement.

Kastenbaum ran for Batavia City Council in 2013 and was the Democratic nominee for Congress in NY-27 in 2016. Most recently, she said, she co-founded Concerned Citizens for NY-24, organizing town halls across the district to give neighbors a voice on issues that matter most to their families.

One thing she learned not to do after her 2016 campaign was spend money on expensive Washington operatives who suggest doing things such as conducting polls.

"You may need them in large cities, but in the rural parts of a country, I don't think it's necessary," she said of hiring operatives for a campaign.

She said she had a poll done during the 2016 campaign that was unnecessary.

"I knew where I stood. I won't do that again," she said. "That was a big expense."

Kastenbaum said that, as a candidate, she needs to trust her gut instinct.

"You've got to be careful with where you're spending money. Is it really necessary? I found that I did better when I really listened to myself and listened to the people in my district," she said.

Kastenbaum said she plans to work with the activist groups that have formed since Hillary Clinton lost the presidential race to Donald Trump in 2016.

"In 2016 when I ran, there were no activist groups until Hillary lost and then everybody started to organize," she said. "From those activist groups, there are many people who want to get involved in politics. Those people who want to work with a candidate. Those are my folks. Them and me — that's how we're going to win this race."

Looking Back with Lynne

Oatka Festival Origins

By LYNNE BELLUSCIO
Special to The Le Roy Weekend Gazette

Whether you've lived in Le Roy all your life, or you've just recently moved here, or you're in town for a visit, the annual Oatka Festival is a 35 year old* tradition that brings friends and families together for a weekend of good food, great music, fun things for the kids to do, a great parade, and the annual duck derby. It all started in 1988, when Le Roy Mayor Kevin Earl asked Pete Weaver and Lynne Belluscio to start plans for a festival. For several years Pete had been involved with the Creekside Regatta which was a terrific success and Lynne had been organizing special events at the Genesee Country Museum. Kevin envisioned an event that would draw people to downtown Le Roy and help revitalize the community. Pete and Lynne met with organizers of several nearby local hometown events and picked up a variety of ideas. After some discussion, it was decided that the first Oatka Festival would be held on the full weekend after the Fourth of July in 1989. One of the first people who joined the planning committee was Bob Sullivan, a former teacher at the high school who was directly involved with St. Joe's Drum and Bugle Corps. Bob continued organizing the parade for many years. Today, Pete Weaver, although retired from being directly involved with the festival, continues to help out with the parade, directing traffic up on West Main. The parade lineup in 1992 included the Syracuse Brigadiers Drum Corps, the Le Roy Fire Departments, the Hilton Fire Department Band, the Genesee County Sheriff's Department, the Stafford Fire Department, the Hamilton Fire Fighter's Drum Corps, five Le Roy High School class reunion floats, the Le Royan of the year, usually riding in Weegie Pratt's yellow convertible, the Perry Shriners with their little cars, Mighty St. Joes Drum Corps, and who can forget the "Top Hatters" Marching Orchestra from Burlington, Ontario! Bob Bennett was a favorite local personality as he rode his unicycle down Main Street with the folks from the Bank of Castile. And there was the year, that Jim Arrington, rode on the Jell-O float, and everyone thought he was Bill Cosby.

Another key member of the early committee was Kay Kennedy. She pitched in to organize the food booths on Trigon Park, which would provide money making opportunities for some of Le Roy's organizations. An integral part of the food court was to provide water and electricity to all the booths. The Fire Department hooked up water from a fire hydrant, and electrician George Cory installed electrical boxes. Everyone was well prepared to have Genesee County Health Department inspectors on site. Through the years there have been a lot of different foods sold on Trigon Park. The PTA sold French fries. Explorer Post 2600 had hamburgers and pop. For a couple of years, the Volunteer Ambulance sold ice cream cones. The Presbyterian church has continued to sell beef-on-wick since the first year and the Rotary hot dog stand has always been on the corner since 1989. The A.F.S. sold hot pretzels and popcorn. Holy Family School offered salt potatoes and corn on the cob. And who can forget Bettylane's funnel cakes, and Fowler's taffy, candied apples and fresh squeezed lemonade. Kay Kennedy would be followed by many others to keep the food court cooking.. This year the blooming onion booth is back manned by the son of the man who had the booth many years ago. A lot of folks remember the "year of no waffles" but the waffles are back this year, with a dusting of powdered sugar.

Arnold and Marion Kelly organized the 50/50 which raises money for the Oatka Festival. Later, Sue and John Doemling built a booth for 50/50 ticket sales and each year the 50/50 pot grows to help support the festival. So, remember to buy a book of tickets! One year there was a "Bossie Bingo" behind the school. A willing cow was brought to town in a trailer and turned out in a fenced in area marked with a grid. Folks could buy a square in the grid, and if Bossie hit your square, you won the jackpot. There were other animals on the festival site. Dog obedience demonstrations were popular as well as a water demonstration by some beautiful Chesapeake Bay Retrievers. There was an animal petting zoo a couple of years. And pony rides on Wolcott Street. And then there was the guy who brought his huge boa constrictor while he strolled around. He was asked to leave.

At the first festival on July 15 and 16, 1989, there were over 40 craft booths. Through the years, there has been a wide variety of local craftsmen selling jewelry, quilts, garden planters, furniture, scarves, hats, and a myriad of other things. And there have been many folks in charge of the craft show in the last 36 years. It takes a lot of planning, patience and energy to make sure everyone has an assigned spot and that they know when they can set up and when they can take down. And each year, new crafters need to be included. An early list from 1992 included handmade fruitcakes by Charlie's, Sally Defries offered dried silk flower arrangements, John Holden was a silversmith, Ronald Job sold suncatchers, Mary Margaret Yacuzzo sold counted cross stitch. Lorie Longhany sold her art. In fact, Lorie's art appeared on many of the first festival T-Shirts '95, '93, '94. One year Gerry McGee took her image of the post office and put a postage stamp border around it. Gerry may have been the person who designed the Oatka Festival logo of the three arch Clay Street bridge with the waves of the creek water below. June Dusen pieced together a quilt with twelve of the festival t-shirts and the quilt will be displayed at the festival this year.

There have been many other events tied in with the festival. There is a 5m Walk Run on Sunday morning. And the children's fishing derby is Sunday morning. There was a bicycle race for a couple of years, sponsored by Harry Stroble. Chalk art on Wolcott Street, Punch and Judy, Volleyball tournaments, reunions of baseball teams, softball tournaments, bicycle safety checks, facepainting, basketball, radio-controlled cars, and a Corvette show. Limerock Speedway had cars in the parade and then displayed them on Wolcott Street. For a couple of years, the Historical Society had an antique show in the school cafeteria and then they had a large tent on Trigon, where they sold Jell-O shirts, Le Roy Afghans, hats, door mats, and even Rough on Rats T-shirts. Iota Rho sorority offered a photo booth. Lots of folks were "volunteered" to sit in the Lions' dunking booth. In 1992, the dunking booth schedule included Brian Moran, Matt Lusky, Bob Bennett, Jim Farnholtz, Patrick Crow, and John Piazza. The American Legion held a horseshoe tournament. Le Roy Seniors performed some line dancing on the steps of the auditorium. The Genesee Ballet Repertoire Company performed on Sunday. The Kickin' Rhythm Cloggers were on the schedule in 1996. Elaine Zalacca's School of Dance performed several times. For a couple of years, there was a demonstration of belly dancing and although it attracted some attention, the skydivers were always a big hit. The plane would leave the airport in Brockport, and as it approached Le Roy, it would circle over the festival site, and then slowly come along the creek and out would jump a couple of guys, their parachutes would open and they'd land in the creek. But this always depended on the weather and the wind. When weather is mentioned, it's important to notice the signs that are put up around the festival site. In case of an incoming storm, with lightning, folks need to know they should move from the site and not gather under a tree or in a tent. There are usually places designated for people to go in case of an emergency. The same is true if the weather becomes exceedingly hot. The festival always seems to survive rain, but really hot weather drives people home to their air conditioning and swimming pools.

There has always been plenty of music. In 1989, Calvary Baptist Church sponsored a Gospel Music concert. The Town Band played a concert on Saturday at 3, and the Batavia Concert Band played on Sunday. St. Mark's Church offered a carillon concert at noon on Sunday and there was a dance with live music by "Celebration" at Holy Family School from 9 to 1 am sponsored by Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company. A particular favorite was the Panloco Steel Drum Band. The Le Roy High School glee clubs or music groups performed on Sunday mornings. For the past couple of years, there's been several "stages" for musical groups, so wherever you wander about the festival site, there's music.

For many years, the Little Beard's Club Buckskinners set up camp on the creekbank which always drew a good crowd. A favorite treat was a free sample of their deep-fried doughnuts. On Saturday night, the Buckskinners would walk across the bridge and visit the Moose Club for some liquid libation.

Down Wolcott Street, near the Wolcott Street School, there was a tent with the Backyard Family Circus. It was one of the favorite performances at the festival. Kids would participate in the circus as the lions, or Wanda the tightrope walker, or the kid who got shot out of the canon. It was a sad day when we learned that the Backyard Family Circus could no longer participate in the Oatka Festival. Our favorite ringmaster had been diagnosed with ALS.

In 1988, when plans for a festival were in full swing, the Le Roy Vietnam Vets wanted to run a duck derby. They made plans to set up a tent on the creekbank to sell ducks and with the help of the Fire Department's fire hoses, the ducks "swam" across the creek. When the Le Roy Vietnam Vets organization moved to Warsaw, the ducks stayed in Le Roy and each year a different organization benefitted from the Derby. Most people don't know that the little yellow rubber ducks that float across the creek aren't ordinary rubber ducks. Rather they are weighted to keep them upright and to prevent them from filling with water. The Duck Derby has always been the last event of the festival on Sunday, and then, as they say, it's time for "unfestival" for another year.

In 1993, David Grayson, the Editor or the Le Roy Pennysaver, wrote a brief history of the first five years of the Oatka Festival. As he said, there were a lot of skeptics. "Despite charges of heresy and predictions of failure" Le Royan's managed to "pull together the biggest family reunion in the history of Le Roy."

*2025 would have been the Oatka Festival's 36th year, but the festival was not held during covid.

Le Roy 9/10 All-Stars Defeat Wellsville, Win District 2 Championship

By SAMUEL ZERILLO
szerillo@batavianews.com

The Le Roy 9/10 all-stars played Wellsville for the District 2 championship title on Monday night. The Le Roy team dominated all night long, winning the game with a final score of 11-1.

Pitching and strong defense was the story of the night for Le Roy. Aaron Bailey started the game on the mound, striking out 8 and giving up only 1 run and 1 hit over four innings. Seth Pryzbyl came in in relief for Bailey and would pitch the final inning to secure the win for Le Roy.

The first points of the night for Le Roy would come in the second inning after Xander Parker, Charlie Rapone, and Joseph Oliver all got walked back-to-back, which loaded the bases. Zach Garner would score Parker and Rapone after a back-to-back fielder's choice. Luke Chappel would follow this up by scoring Oliver on a single hit to left field.

Three more runs would come in the third inning, as Josh Tenney, Bailey, and Austin Branton all reached base early. Tenney would score after teammate Parker got walked. Branton and Parker both scored after a misplayed flyball.

Two runs were scored in the fourth inning after Parker Page and Pryzbyl both reached base, and after an error advanced both runners, Tenney would hit a grounder that would get misplayed by the Wellsville defense and lead to both Page and Pryzbyl scoring.

Le Roy kept pouring it on in the fifth inning, as three more runs were scored after Rapone got walked, Oliver hit a single, and Garner hitting a single that would get missed by the Wellsville defender, which scored Rapone and Oliver. LE ROY — The Le Roy Little League 11/12 All-Stars faced off against Ellicottville/Little Valley Sunday for the District 2 title, and came out on top after a close battle, winning the game 6-3.

The Le Roy All-Stars were led by Carter McClurg, who was the starting pitcher for the outing. McClurg would go on to strike out 12 batters, while giving up five hits and zero runs.

On offense, Le Roy was led by Sammy Rapone and Chris Costa, who combined to reach base 4 times and scored a total of three runs for their team.

McClurg also had a great day at the plate, helping Le Roy build an early lead after hitting a single, stealing back-to-back bases, and then scoring on a passed ball.

Scoring would come again in the third inning, when Rapone hit a single and stole a base, followed by Costa walking and Joey Wujcik reaching via a hit by pitch. McClurg drove in Rapone, followed by an Addy Stella RBI fielder's choice to score Costa.

Le Roy would score three more times in the fifth inning, after Costa and Wujcik both scored on passed balls, and another RBI from Addy Stella to score Eli Kemp.

Stella came in relief for McClurg and closed out the game for Le Roy. In tandem with teammate Connar Hanley, who tagged out an ECLV runner trying to stretch a double into a triple, the pair shut down ECLV and closed out the victory.

The Le Roy 11/12 All-Stars advance to the sectional round of the New York State Little League Tournament to face the winners of District 1 and District 3. The date, time, and location for the sectional round are to be announced.
