Dodgers celebrate historic back-to-back World Series titles with downtown parade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shohei Ohtani and the rest of the Los Angeles Dodgers celebrated their second straight World Series championship with a downtown parade and stadium rally Monday after becoming the first team in 25 years to win back-to-back titles.

"Hello, hello," Ohtani said, speaking in English at a sold out Dodger Stadium. "I want to say I'm so proud of this team. I want to say you guys are the greatest fans in the world. I'm ready to get another ring next year. Let's go."

Ohtani was accompanied by his wife, Mamiko Tanaka, who took a photo of him along the parade route. Last year, Ohtani carried his dog, Decoy, in his arms on the bus.

"It's really nice to be able to win the game, and to be surrounded by all these amazing fans," Ohtani said during the bus ride. "I'm really taking it in and enjoying it."

World Series MVP Yoshinobu Yamamoto wore a black T-shirt with World Series champions on the front. Wearing sunglasses and a backward baseball cap, Yamamoto waved to fans.

"Losing isn't an option," Yamamoto told the stadium crowd in English. "To my teammates, my coaches, amazing staff and all the fans, we did it together. I love the Dodgers. I love Los Angeles."

The team's third Japanese player, rookie pitcher Roki Sasaki, celebrated his 24th birthday Monday.

Players walked a blue carpet from center field to a circular blue stage.

"What they talking about in Toronto right now?" actor-comedian Anthony Anderson asked the crowd. "They're talkin' about nothing."

A woman in the crowd wore a blue T-shirt reading "Let's ruin baseball."

"I got four. Fill the hand all the way up, baby," said Mookie Betts, who won a title with the Boston Red Sox and three with the Dodgers. "Three-peat has never sounded so sweet. Somebody make that a T-shirt."

Rapper-actor Ice Cube drove a bright blue convertible around the warning track with the Commissioner's Trophy in the front passenger seat. He carried it overhead to the stage and set it on a table next to a table with last year's championship hardware.

Kiké Hernández apologized in advance for his expletive-filled comments.

"My teammates have been pretty humble, but I think it's time to talk that s—-," he said. "Everybody's been asking questions about a dynasty. How about three in six years? We're a dynasty, baby."

Earlier, manager Dave Roberts hoisted the trophy while aboard one of several buses that traversed a route packed with cheering, flag-waving blue-clad fans. "B 2 B" read one of many hand-lettered signs held up.

"I feel like it's almost double from last year," Freddie Freeman said. "These fans are crazy. It's so awesome to be a part of this."

Blue-and-white confetti blew from a truck rolling between the buses, which were filled with family members of the players, including newly retired Clayton Kershaw and his four children.

"It's the perfect way to be done," said Kershaw, who ended an 18-year career played entirely with Los Angeles. "I know the Dodgers have always meant a lot to this city for generations. For us to get to do this in front of them, it means the world to me and all the rest of the guys."

Pitcher Blake Snell made the 6-7 gesture with his hands, signifying the Dodgers' wins over the Toronto Blue Jays in Games 6 and 7.

"This is lit," Snell said. "I love it."

A bare-chested Hernández filmed the throngs with a hand-held camera.

"Winners win," he said. "I hope these Dodger fans have a lot of fun because they deserve this. They showed up all year long, they supported us and here we are back-to-back champs."

A late caution robs Hamlin of NASCAR championship

AVONDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Denny Hamlin was shell-shocked, a vacant look in his eyes, as he tried to explain how he yet again came up short in his quest to win a NASCAR championship. William Byron approached, placed his hand on Hamlin's shoulder, and apologized for causing the caution that cost Hamlin the title.

The greatest NASCAR driver to never win a championship fell short of ditching that label when Byron blew a tire Sunday at Phoenix Raceway that began the sequence of events that cost Hamlin the title. Hamlin was three laps away from the finish, held a lead of more than three seconds, and had dominated almost the entire race.

But the caution sent the race to overtime and forced teams to make critical decisions about pitting. Hamlin took four new tires, but Kyle Larson took just two to get back on track ahead of Hamlin. In a two-lap sprint to the finish, Hamlin couldn't catch Larson and Larson finished ahead of him to claim his second title.

What followed was surreal. Hamlin's young daughters sobbed uncontrollably amid a crowd of demoralized Joe Gibbs Racing crew members. Hamlin was stoic but clearly heartbroken as a sixth chance at a championship had slipped away.

Larson, in the thick of a Hendrick Motorsports team celebration, even struggled with the emotions. He hadn't led a single lap at Phoenix, is stuck in a 24-race losing streak dating to May, and had just beaten his 44-year-old friend in what could have been Hamlin's last chance to win a title.

"There's definitely a large piece of me that feels really bad and sad," Larson said. "When you don't win the race, you don't lead a lap, you win the championship, you steal it from a guy who has tried for so long and had it in his fingertips, it's a really weird feeling."

Byron felt awful for his role in altering the outcome, and race-winner Ryan Blaney took no joy in Hamlin's agony.

"It just doesn't seem right," Byron said.

The final weekend of this NASCAR season was probably also the last one for this winner-take-all championship format. NASCAR has been brainstorming all year on new formats because of lukewarm fan response to the knockout 10-race system that ultimately sends a final four into the finale, highest finisher that day gets the championship.

Phoenix showed exactly why the fans are fed up.

Corey Heim had 11 victories at the start of the Truck Series finale Friday night but needed to dip his truck low in an outrageous seven-wide scramble in overtime to secure the title. He did pull out the win and NASCAR dodged the controversy of a 12-race winner being denied a championship because of a gimmicky format.

NASCAR wasn't so fortunate the next night in the Xfinity Series when 10-race winner Connor Zilisch lost the championship because Jesse Love won the race. Love opened the season with a win at Daytona and closed it with a win at Phoenix — his only two victories of the season but good enough in the present format.

Then came Hamlin's defeat on Sunday. He won a series-high six Cup races this year, started from the pole and led 208 laps only to be robbed of the title by a poorly-timed caution and the strategic decision to take four tires — a call that led to a lengthier pit stop than Larson and gave Larson the advantage. Larson finished the race in third, Hamlin in sixth.

He long ago accepted he may never win a championship — Hamlin came up empty five previous times — and he's content with his 60 career wins that include three Daytona 500 victories. He recognizes that he's worked within the parameters set by NASCAR in how a champion will be crowned and he's lost playing with the same ruleset as every other competitor.

Now the rules will likely be changed this offseason, and every indication is that NASCAR is leaning towards a format that will use a four-race final push in which the winner is decided by points earned over those races.

Hamlin, with a shattered heart, offered no opinion on what format he'd like to see for what is likely the final few years of his driving career.

"Gosh, I don't know," he said. "Golly, in this moment I never want to race a car ever again. I mean, my fun meter is pegged."

1934 — The Detroit Lions rush for an NFL-record 426 yards in a 40-7 rout of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The only bright spot for the Pirates is scoring the first touchdown against Detroit this season, ending the Lions' shutout streak at seven games.

1951 — The U.S. wins six of eight singles matches and ties another to win the Ryder Cup 9½-2½ over Britain at Pinehurst in North Carolina.

1959 — Ernie Banks, Cubs shortstop, wins his 2nd consecutive NL MVP.

1960 — Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia scores 44 points and sets an NBA record by missing all 10 of his free throws in the Warriors 136-121 victory the Detroit Pistons.

1976 — Baseball holds its first free agent draft with 24 players from 13 major league clubs participating. Reggie Jackson eventually signs the most lucrative contract of the group, $2.9 million over five years with the New York Yankees. Others free agents are Joe Rudi, Don Gullett, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers, Don Baylor, Bobby Grich and Willie McCovey.

1984 — Seattle's Dave Brown returns two interceptions for touchdowns in a 31-17 triumph over the Kansas City Chiefs.
