Green Bay's LaFleur focusing on Steelers, not just Rodgers

Packers coach Matt LaFleur onship. The Packers traded Rod- Famer. And I know like our past knows he and his players will get plenty of questions this week about facing Aaron Rodgers for the first time since the four-time MVP quarterback left Green Bay.

LaFleur is trying his best to deflect them.

"We're playing the Pittsburgh Steelers, who happen to have Aaron Rodgers," LaFleur said Monday. "It's as simple as that."

In reality, it's not nearly that simple.

Rodgers spent 18 seasons with Green Bay, led the Packers to their most recent Super Bowl champigers to the New York Jets shortly before the 2023 draft, but he never got to play against his former team during his Jets tenure.

That opportunity comes Sunday night when the Packers (4-1-1) visit the Steelers (4-2), who signed Rodgers in June. It's also the first time Rodgers matches up with Jordan Love, who succeeded him as Green Bay's quarterback.

"That is for you guys to talk about," LaFleur said. "Granted, I mean, we've got a lot of love and respect for Aaron, what he's done here. I mean, he's a Hall of latest in a series of veteran quarterbacks to face the Packers.

Green Bay played against 40-year-old Joe Flacco twice in a span of three games. Flacco's Cleveland Browns beat the Packers 13-10 before he was traded to the Cincinnati Bengals, who lost at Green Bay 27-18 on Oct. 12. The Packers also have gone against a couple of 32-year-old quarterbacks, as they tied Dak Prescott's Dallas Cowboys 40-40 on Sept. 28 and edged Jacoby Brissett and the Arizona Cardinals 27-23 on Sunthey still haven't quite regained the form they showed when they opened the season with convincing victories over the Detroit Lions and Washington Commanders. The Packers trailed most of the way Sunday before handing Arizona its fifth consecutive loss.

'We'll get back to the film room and try to find ways to be better," safety Xavier McKinney said after Sunday's game. "But we for damn sure can't do this against good teams because it's not going to work. I think the guys know that. We're happy we got the win, but

Briscoe moves from Stewart to Gibbs, earns shot at NASCAR title

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — When he fired the engine on his race car before last year's NASCAR finale, Chase Briscoe sat inside the cockpit and cried like a baby.

As an Indiana native aspiring to make it to the top levels of motorsports, he gravitated to Tony Stewart, a fellow Hoosier, threetime Cup champion and NASCAR Hall of Famer. It was a dream come true when Briscoe, couch-surfing in North Carolina while trying to crack his way into NASCAR, got a seat in 2020 at the team co-owned by Stew-

But come the 2024 season finale. Stewart-Haas Racing was closing after the race and Briscoe's full circle career moment would end.

"I remember sitting on the grid after we fired engines and just crying for my whole childhood. I idolized Tony, he was my hero."

Briscoe said.

Briscoe had already lined up a new job at Joe Gibbs Racing, where Stewart had won two of his titles in the first part of his NASCAR career, but after four seasons driving Stewart's No. 14, he was unsure of what life would be like inside a totally different organization.

He was picked to replace Martin Truex Jr., who was retiring, moving from Ford to Toyota and wouldn't have his hero around for guidance. It was an emotional moment, part reflection and part fear, for Briscoe.

"Just knowing that chapter of my life was ending, not knowing what the JGR chapter was really going to look like," Briscoe said. "You never know going to a new place. If I don't go win, I'm never going to get hired again because the expectation is you have to go to JGR and win.

"If you can't win in a JGR car, Briscoe is the only one making his why would anybody hire you for another team?"

Briscoe has nothing to worry about for the foreseeable future. His victory Sunday at Talladega Superspeedway locked him into the championship four and he will return to Phoenix Raceway a year after splitting with Stewart with his first chance to win a Cup title.

Briscoe joined teammate Denny Hamlin in the championship field, with the final two slots to be filled this Sunday at Martinsville Speedway in Virginia. Christopher Bell, the final JGR driver still eligible to race for the title, holds a one-point edge over Kyle Larson for the final two spots in the winner-take-all de-

It would be the first Cup title for any of the three Gibbs drivers — assuming Bell advances — but the Cup comes at the same Phoenix track where he won his first Cup Series race, in 2022 driving for SHR. A recent return trip back to the track caused him to reflect on how his career has developed and what is now at stake.

"I stood on the front straightaway, I hadn't done that since I won there. I kind of thought how that day felt, winning my first Cup race," Briscoe said. "Next time you stand here, you might be a champion."

Briscoe has thrived in his move to JGR, where Talladega gave him his career-best third win of the season. He leads the Cup Series with seven poles this season as qualifying has been his strong suit and contributed to 15 top-5 finishes through championship debut. His chance at overshadowed at JGR by his teammates. He's admitted that he feels every week driving for Gibbs is an audition to keep his job, a notion Gibbs himself dismissed after the victory when he said "I think right now he can get anything he wants.

i ii put it that way.
Perfect timing because Briscoe's wife, three children and his extended family in Indiana now all need to find transportation to the Nov. 2 finale in Phoenix.
"I'm going to call him real quick," Briscoe said when he heard of Gibbs' vow. "I need to see if one of them will fly my whole family to Phoenix. Because me and (wife) Marissa, we're already talking about how chaotic that's going to be, flying commercial with three toddlers. Maybe I can get lucky and see if they can let me go on one of their planes."
