Steelers sign Peppers to bolster secondary burgh Steelers emerged from their season opener against the New York Jets unbeaten but not unscathed.

Enter Jabrill Peppers.

Coach Mike Tomlin said Tuesday the Steelers are signing the veteran safety while starter DeShon Elliott recovers from a knee injury suffered in the first half against the Jets.

Peppers, 29, became a free agent when he was cut by New England last month. Pittsburgh will be Peppers' fourth NFL stop following stints with Cleveland (2017-18), the New York Giants (2019-21) and the Patriots (2022-24).

Tomlin pointed to Peppers' versatility in the secondary and his ability to be a difference-maker on special teams as major factors in the

"He's a football player first, a positional player second," Tomlin said.

Peppers could get an opportunity to play right away when the Steelers (1-0) host Seattle (0-1) in their home opener on Sunday.

Pittsburgh turned to veteran

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pitts- Chuck Clark — who was cut at the on the ground) to an offense led by end of training camp before being signed to the practice squad — after Elliott left against the Jets, though Tomlin didn't rule out Peppers being available quickly.

> "We'll see how we divide the labor up as we get into the week," Tomlin said. "Their ability to communicate and execute obviously will be a major component of how we divide that labor up and go from there."

> Tomlin declined to say whether Elliott is a candidate for injured reserve, saying only that Elliott will definitely miss at least one week.

Elliott, who signed a contract extension through 2027 in June, was serving as the hub of communication for an overhauled secondary that now includes newcomers Jalen Ramsey and Darius Slay.

Where those duties will fall going forward is uncertain, though Pittsburgh's defense did just enough down the stretch to avoid the upset against New York. While the Steelers gave up 394 yards (including 182 former Pittsburgh quarterback Justin Fields, they also made a pair of critical late stops.

The Steelers forced a three-andout on the Jets' penultimate possession and Ramsey ended any lastgasp effort by drilling New York wide receiver Garrett Wilson on fourth down near midfield, sealing the victory.

It also, however, came only after the Jets had their way on both sides of the line of scrimmage for long stretches. Fields and running back Breece Hall found plenty of room to run and Pittsburgh's young offensive line struggled to protect Aaron Rodgers.

The Steelers gave up four sacks total, with former first-round pick Broderick Jones struggling at left tackle. Jones, taken 14th overall in 2023, repeatedly had trouble with New York defensive end Will Mc-Donald, who dropped Rodgers Tomlin declined to single out Jones specifically, saying "all of our performances could be better," and coach Mike Vrabel made Peppers defended the 24-year-old's mental toughness.

"It's football, you know?" Tomlin said. "You don't get to the National Football League by being fragile, emotionally. There's a lot of confident guys that I work with. You win some battles, you lose some battles. You come back fighting. That's just the nature of the men that play this game at this level."

Peppers would know. The 25th overall pick in the 2017 draft (taken five spots ahead of Steelers star outside linebacker TJ Watt) was traded to the New York Giants after two years in Cleveland, then moved on to the Patriots in 2022.

He turned a one-year contract with New England into a multiyear deal but spent the better part of two months of the 2024 season on the commissioner's exempt list following his arrest on multiple charges stemming from a domestic incident. A jury acquitted Peppers in January, but his time with the Patriots ended in August when first-year head opener.

Tomlin said he did plenty of studying up on Peppers in the leadup to the 2017 draft, and took note of how Michigan deployed him, including having him get time on offense during his final season with the Wolverines.

While that is not in play in Pittsburgh, Peppers' ability to adapt has stuck with Tomlin through the years.

"He was just used in a real unique way in Michigan that really highlighted his talents, man," Tomlin said. "I think he was even a two-way player at one point. ... He returned kicks. He was just a well-rounded football player in all areas of the game."

why trade talk surrounds him Crosby understands

Crosby is well aware of the trade talk swirling around him, now that he and the Pittsburgh Penguins have gone three seasons without making the playoffs.

Going into another at age 38 with little realistic hope of the team contending, the three-time Stanley Cup champion acknowledged the rumors are now part of his reality, even if he'd rather they not be.

"I understand it," Crosby said Monday night at the NHL player media tour on the Las Vegas Strip. "That's the hard part about losing. Everybody thinks that the losing LAS VEGAS (AP) — Sidney is the buzzer goes (off), you lose a game and that sucks, but there's so much more than that. It's the turnover. It's the unknown, the uncertainty, the question marks. That's the stuff that's tough."

> A year ago, Crosby signed an extension that keeps him under contract through the 2026-27 season with the only professional organization he has ever known. It came with a team-friendly $8.7 million salary cap hit — the same he has had through 2008 and a nod to his jersey No. 87 — and provides room to build around the face of the franchise.

Instead, the Penguins look to be that you can feed off of and still conin rebuilding mode. They sold at the trade deadline in March, and veterans ranging from Bryan Rust and Rickard Rakell to Erik Karlsson have been speculated as trade candidates even more realistically than

"It hasn't changed my approach," Crosby said. "I still go out there trying to win every single game and try to be the best that I can be, and I think that youth and having that energy around you isn't a bad thing either. We've got a lot of hungry guys, a lot of competition for spots. I think you just try to find different things tinue to learn through it."

Crosby has a full no-movement clause, essentially putting him in control of his future. He has been linked to Colorado, where close friend Nathan MacKinnon has the Avalanche as one of the top teams in the Western Conference, and even Montreal, especially after starring there during the 4 Nations Face-Off in February.

Growing up in Cole Harbor, Nova Scotia, Crosby was a Canadiens fan and mentioned that during the 4 Nations. So, yes, he understands why folks might think he'd want to play there for an organization on the rise in a hockey-crazed market.

"I get it, trust me," Crosby said, recalling being in Montreal in June early in his time in the league and marveling at how broadcasts were already projecting lineups for the next training camp in September. "They're so into it, and I get it as to why that would come up and that sort of thing. It doesn't make it any easier when you're losing, for sure, to hear those things, but at the same time, to know that a team like that wants you, it's not the end of the world. It could be worse. I just think that's part of it."
