B2 — THE DERRICK. - The News-Herald — Wednesday, February 19, 2025 Guerrero plans to become free agent after season

mir Guerrero Jr. plans to become a free agent after the season following the passing of his deadline Tuesday to reach a long-term agreement with the Toronto Blue Jays.

"Listen, I want to be here. I want to be a Blue Jay for the rest of my career," the four-time All-Star first baseman said through translator Hector Lebron at Blue Jays camp. "But it's free agency. It's business. I'm going to have to listen to 29 more teams and they're going to have to compete for that.'

Guerrero has a $28.5 million, one-year contract and will be perhaps the top free agent on the market one year after Juan Soto signed a record $765 million, 15-year contract with the New York Mets.

Guerrero, who turns 26 next

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) - Vladi- month, said his last communication with the team came around 10:30 p.m. Monday and the two sides never came close to a deal.

> "I have my number all along," Guerrero said. "I changed it a little bit. I tried, but it still didn't happen."

> "I know my value," he added. "I didn't see the front office moving to my number. It wasn't the number I was looking for. Unfortunately, it didn't happen."

> Guerrero had said during the offseason he would cut off negotiations when he reported for spring training.

> "I don't want, especially my teammates, to go through any distractions about that," Guerrero said. "I'm here today and I'm ready. I want to win a lot of games and I want to make it to the playoffs. That's all that's in my head right now."

a .940 OPS, 30 homers and 103 RBIs

"We're disappointed we couldn't get a deal done," Blue Jays president Mark Shapiro said. "When you go into a negotiation, each side has rational for a number. In this case, we couldn't align on a common number. There's no such thing as close or not close. There's done or not done."

Shapiro maintained the team will not entertain trade offers for Guerrero.

"Our only focus now is winning with Vladdy," he said.

Guerrero came up through the Toronto system, made his big league debut in 2019 and has a .288 average, .863 OPS, 160 homers and 507 RBs

"I'll do anything, everything I have, to stay here with the Blue Guerrero hit .323 last season with Jays," Guerrero said. "I love it here. become a constant focus during the I want to be here. I'm not thinking about free agency. I won't be thinking about free agency at all during the season."

> Shapiro, team chairman Edward Rogers and Rogers Communications Inc. CEO Tony Staffieri were involved in the negotiations.

General manager Ross Atkins thinks the team made fair proposals.

"The offers we made for Vlad would have been record-setting and made him one of the highest-paid players in the game," Atkins said. "We were, in our view, very aggressive."

Guerrero's father, Vladimir Guerrero, is a Hall of Famer and nine-time All-Star who was voted the 2004 AL MVP.

Toronto players hope their teammate's contract situation doesn't season.

"We know, without a doubt, he's a Blue Jay this year," pitcher Kevin Gausman said. "I'm sure it could be a distraction, but I'm not too worried about that. I think Vladdy is focused on going out and playing baseball."

Guerrero appeared to be in good spirits when practice began Tuesday, laughing and smiling with his teammates. As Guerrero was preparing for running drills, a fan from Toronto yelled: "I'd write you a blank check if I had the money.'

Toronto expects to make offers to Guerrero as a free agent after the World Series.

"We are certainly positioned well," Shapiro said. "We have the financial wherewithal to pursue the contracts we want to pursue."

LeMahieu hopes to regain former form as batting champion

LeMahieu reacted to his poor play the way many New York Yankees fans did.

"Definitely lost a lot of sleep," he said Tuesday.

A three-time All-Star infielder. LeMahieu hasn't had a fully healthy season since 2020. With his 37th birthday approaching in July, he hopes to again be the dominant hitter he once was.

"For a majority of my career, I would pretty much play unless my leg was cut off," he said. "I'd just kind of strap it on every day and played. It's just the last few years, just bumps, bruises, this, that. I had the foot fracture. Stuff that I could kind of play through in the past. It TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — DJ just kind of it escalates and it gets — a 1.011 OPS in the pandemic-shortit compounds."

Yankees manager Aaron Boone is shifting Jazz Chisholm Jr. to second following the departure of Gleyber Torres to Detroit as a free agent. LeMahieu will get a chance for playing time at third.

"The hit tool is one of those things that ages usually pretty well," Boone said. "With health, I do believe there's reason to believe that there's a role to be played there. It it an everyday role? Is it some kind of platoon role? His body will kind of dictate that."

LeMahieu left Colorado as a free agent to sign a $24 million, two-year contract with the Yankees in January 2019 and hit a career-high .364 with ened 2020 season to win his second batting title. He again became a free agent and the Yankees retained him with a $90 million, six-year contract.

He dropped to a .268 average the following year and missed the postseason because of a sports hernia that required core muscle repair surgery on Oct. 12.

LeMahieu rebounded to hit .272 in the first half of 2022, but had a cortisone injection to his right big toe at the All-Star break and slumped to .228 in the second half. The turning point was during a weekend series at Fenway Park on Aug. 12 and 13, 2022

"I remember we're in Boston watching his at-bats just change overnight," Boone said. "It just really zapped him."

Since then, LeMahieu is hitting .226 with 17 homers, 73 RBIs in 224 games with a .637 OPS.

"It's tough to be a guy that the team can't rely on at times," he said.

LeMahieu missed the 2022 playoffs because of the injury, eventually diagnosed as a broken sesamoid bone in his right big toe that led to ligament damage in his second toe.

LeMahieu hit .220 in the first half of 2023 and rose to .273 in the second. Then he broke his right foot when he fouled off a pitch during a spring training game last March 16, delaying his season debut until May 28.

In a season cut short on Sept. 3 by right hip impingement, LeMahieu batted a career-low .204 with two homers and 26 RBIs in 228 plate appearances. He understands there are people who doubt he can bounce back.

"That's fine," he said. "Plenty of times in my career people haven't always been the most confident in me. I'll obviously use that as motivation but at the same time I've got enough to worry about. I know if I can just be myself and continue to work to be that, that'll be fine.'

He took a two-month break from hitting until he reported to the Yankees' minor league complex in mid-January, trying to give his body time to heal.

"I felt good," he said, "But it's easy to feel good in January."

Nations title game would welcome Trump nericans at BOSTON (AP) — The general manager of the United States team in the 4 Nations Face-Off hockey tournament said he would welcome a visit from President Donald Trump to the championship game between the U.S. and Canada on Thursday night.

Bill Guerin, who played 18 years in the NHL for eight teams, said on Fox News that Trump's presence would give a boost to the rivalry between the North American hockey powers. He credited Trump's tariff threats and talk of making Canada the 51st U.S. state for ratcheting up the intensity in their fight-filled matchup in the preliminary round.

"We would love it if President Trump was in attendance," Guerin said in the interview broadcast on Monday. "We have a room full of proud American players and coaches and staff. Listen, we're just trying to represent our country the best way we can.'

The tournament marks the return 1980 Lake Placid Olympics. of the top hockey stars to international play after sitting out the last two Olympics.

The United States beat Canada 3-1 on Saturday in a game that began with three fights in the first nine seconds. The quality of play, intensity of emotions and geopolitical backdrop have drawn comparisons to the Americans' "Miracle on Ice" victory over the Soviet Union at the

"I think there was a little bit of a political flair to it. It's just the time that we're in," Guerin said. "If you let it get the better of you, then you're in trouble. But I do think the players used it as inspiration."

Since his Jan. 20 inauguration, Trump has attended the Super Bowl and NASCAR's Daytona 500.

Canada forward Brandon Hagel said Tuesday his team didn't need any extra motivation, referencing American players having discussed over group chats their plan to start the previous game with fights.

"I think we're out there playing for the flag, not the cameras. That's a part of Canada that we have in there. We don't need to initiate anything. We don't have any group chats going on," Hagel said. "We're going out there playing our game and then giving it evervthing and doing it for our country."
