Rhodes Creek site construction contingent on conditional use permit from county board of adjustments

According to a news release, the board gave conditional approval for a 100 megawatt solar project on 2,375 acres near Hardinsburg, South Branch and Harrodsburg roads. It also conditionally approved the construction of a 15.6 mile overhead transmission line that will connect the project to LG&E and KU’s network, the release said.

The conditional approval is contingent on approval of a conditional use permit from Hardin County Board of Adjustments.

A hearing on the matter has been postponed at the request of folks on how we can answer all their questions, and answer them satisfactorily for the county,” said Saiz. Said said he and other execu-

Bobbie Crabtree, left, and Bucky McQueen, owners of the former Coca-Cola bottling plant in Elizabethtown, and Lisa Williams, director of Kentucky Entrepreneurship, explain the concept of COKE — Center for Kentucky Entrepreneurship — in one of the spaces for budding small businesses.

Bobbie Crabtree, left, and Bucky McQueen, owners of the former Coca-Cola bottling plant in Elizabethtown, and Lisa Williams, director of KY Innovation’s Elizabethtown office, explain the concept of COKE — Center for Kentucky Entrepreneurship — in one of the spaces for budding small businesses.

“COKE stands for the Center for Kentucky Entrepreneurship,” said Williams, who is the director of the KY Innovation Elizabethtown office. “That’s the pathway that we’re going to use, the release said. “Stepping into an agent role, especially in Hardin County, will really allow me to do that job.”

McCandless was involved in 4-H this year and it gave her opportunities to experience new things. She said it can open doors for youth and help them develop different life skills.

“A lot of kids come into the program with varia-tious deficits and the leadership and communication skills that they developed through various activities have really helped them grow,” she said. “The big-est thing is that 4-H really does have something for everyone.”

With 4-H, she said the variety of programs offers something for every interest a youth may have. Traditions, she said, are important and she wants to be able to keep the foundation of the program in place.

[Image 991x991 to 1053x1053]