Email statements from Wyoming Secretary of State Chuck Gray to The Sheridan Press Monday, Nov. 16:

“From day one of our administration, we have emphasized using existing statutory authority to detect, prevent, and attack false and fraudulent filings, including dissolving entities that have listed false or fraudulent registered agent information. Our Budget requests have included enhanced software that would have provided more tools for address and identity verification. However, the Legislature denied these requests.

Additionally, we worked with the Joint Corporations Committee in 2024 on 2025 Senate File 55, “Third Party filers,” to allow for a front-end identity verification to ensure third party filers, including commercial registered agents, employed real people. Unfortunately, Senate File 55 did not make it through the legislative process. We have continued to work toward these goals with this interim session, and again proposed these, which are currently being considered by the Joint Corporations Committee for the 2027 Legislative Session.”

“From day one of our administration, we have emphasized using existing statutory authority to detect, prevent, and attack false and fraudulent filings, including dissolving entities that have listed false or fraudulent registered agent information. Our Budget requests have included enhanced software that would have provided more tools for address and identity verification. However, the Legislature denied these requests.

Additionally, we worked with the Joint Corporations Committee in 2024 on 2025 Senate File 55, “Third Party filers,” to allow for a front-end identity verification to ensure third party filers, including commercial registered agents, employed real people. Unfortunately, Senate File 55 did not make it through the legislative process. We have continued to work toward these goals with this interim session, and again proposed these, which are currently being considered by the Joint Corporations Committee for the 2027 Legislative Session.”