Email statements from Whitney Ward, director of public relations for Registered Agents Inc to The Sheridan Press Monday, Nov. 16:

Questions from The Sheridan Press:

What is Registered Agents Inc's standard process for determining whose name is listed as the registered agent on Wyoming business formation documents?

Has Registered Agents Inc ever used pseudonyms, fictitious names or names other than an individual's legal name on Wyoming business filings and official documents? If so, under what circumstances and why?

Have any of these policies or practices changed since the WIRED article was published? If so, what changes were made and when?

How does Registered Agents Inc ensure its practices comply with Wyoming laws and filing requirements?

"Registered Agents Inc is a strong advocate for Wyoming and has brought in more than $150 million in revenue to the state's economy, employing over 100 Wyomingites and promoting the state as the best place in the world to start and run a business.

Thank you for your fair and balanced reporting on our business successes and our many contributions to the local Sheridan community."

Follow-up question from The Sheridan Press: Has Registered Agents Inc ever used pseudonyms, fictitious names or names other than an individual's legal name on Wyoming business filings and official documents? If so, under what circumstances and why?

"Since 2021, The Sheridan Press has exposed its biased reporting and intent to defame our business which has helped more than 1 million small businesses get their start in Wyoming, bringing in over $150 million in state revenue and promoting Wyoming as the greatest place in the world to start a business--which it is--and all practices are reviewed by both internal and external counsel to ensure we comply and remain securely in the bounds of Wyoming law. We take great pride in employing more than 100 local workers and bringing hundreds of millions of dollars in economic benefit to the state that, without our worldwide reach, simply would not have happened."
