

The quality of the common areas is matched by a warm and attentive human presence every day. Professional, caring and always available, the on-site team looks after residents with a constant eye on their well-being and peace of mind. During the day, a staff member is on hand at the reception desk, while a security guard is posted at the entrance each night.

Where community meets freedom

What also gives the residence its value and personality is, of course, its long-established community. Many residents have lived in Westmount for decades and feel a deep connection to this part of Montreal. For many residents, living LIZ is therefore a way to remain in a sought-after, much-loved neighbourhood, while holding on to the familiar landmarks built up over a lifetime.

That sense of continuity carries over into the life of the residence itself. Concerts, outings and cultural events punctuate the activities calendar, offering plenty of opportunities to come together and share meaningful moments.

Equally important, physical well-being plays a central role in daily life at LIZ. Activities such as aqua-fitness, gentle gym classes and a walking club reflect a shared desire to stay active – at whatever pace suits each resident.

And family, too, is woven into the fabric of the residence. Visits from loved ones are a natural part of daily life, to everyone's delight. LIZ is, at its heart, a place where generations meet, memories are made and life is meant to be shared.

Life at LIZ, designed around you

Ultimately, LIZ embodies a vision of retirement where elegance goes hand in hand with personal fulfillment and better aging in society. Here, as in all Le Groupe Maurice residences, freedom comes first. Residents set their own pace and hold on to what matters. They let new habits take shape naturally, without any abrupt break from the life they've known.

“We want residents to see LIZ as a natural extension of their own story. The residence itself, its team and its range of services all rise to meet the aspirations of our residents,” says Émilie Casey, Sales Director (Operations) at Le Groupe Maurice.

Day by day, each resident shapes their life at LIZ in their own image. Cherished traditions find their place, life's pleasures are savoured to the full and the simple joy of being here settles in naturally. It's a way of embracing this new chapter of life while remaining, in the end, true to yourself.
