State denies vehicle request

Del Norte asked to reopen car access to local parks

By DAVID HAYES
The TriPLICATE

An effort by Del Norte County Supervisors to get at least part of the county reopened has failed. County Administrative Officer Jay Sarina told supervisors Tuesday, April 28, at their regular meeting that State Parks denied a request to allow residents vehicular access to local units.

Sarina explained motorists can drive into Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park via Walker Road, which the supervisors voted to reopen last week, but the parking area will remain cordoned off.

District 3 Supervisor Chris Howard originally brought up at a prior meeting State Parks' decision to install lockable gates at some access points in local state park units without seeking public comment. Not pleased with State Parks' rejection, Howard directed county staff to send a letter to Gov. Gavin Newsom asking for an exemption for Del Norte County from a soft closure throughout the State Parks system that prohibits people from parking at its units.

Howard pointed to another contributor to the county's exasperation - a statement on State Parks' department web page regarding its response to COVID-19, that it would work

District outlines online grading

The Del Norte Unified School District resumed grading for most of its students this week.

During a presentation to the school board April 23, Tom Kissinger, assistant superintendent of instructional services, said this week was a bridge to distance learning week and outlined what grading will look like the rest of the school year. Kissinger said the key principle was to "do no harm," thus elementary and middle school students will not be receiving a letter grade.

Instead, teachers will be required to make sure students are participating and engaged by keeping track of student contact via Zoom, phone and email. Feedback will be based on completion of work and demonstration of progression in the work or whether work is missing or had not been submitted.

Kissinger said high school students' work will be on an A through D scale, with some courses requiring a C or better in a pre-requisite in order to

A 'heartbreaking' decision

4th of July celebration is canceled due to COVID-19 restrictions

By DAVID HAYES
The TriPLICATE

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Crescent City/Del Norte Chamber of Commerce made "the extremely difficult" decision to cancel its 4th of July celebrations.

Melodee Mitchell, Chair of the 4th of July Committee, said, "it was a heartbreaking decision for the committee to make.

"We realize the ramifications to canceling the 4th of July celebration. However, we feel a responsibility to keep our community safe and to follow the mandated social distancing guidelines during the COVID-19 Pandemic," Mitchell said.

Cindy Vosburg, Executive Director of the Crescent City/Del Norte Chamber of Commerce, said the 4th of July committee had been meeting since February, planning this year's event, which traditionally included a fireworks show, a deck party, parade and Beachfront Park festivities.

"We were right on track for another year of outstanding family fun for our traditional Del Norte County American celebration. Then we got hit with the COVID-19 Pandemic," Vosburg said.

Once Gov. Gavin Newsom's executive order banned large gatherings, it created a cancellation-domino effect, that started with the chamber's annual Economic Summit. Vosburg said it takes about four months to pull together the 4th of July celebration and one of the biggest decisions against proceeding was committing to the fireworks show.

"We were actually past deadline for the $30,000 deposit for the fireworks show," Vosburg said, adding the deposit was non-refundable and the committee would have been out that much money had the social distancing guidelines still not been lifted.

"Our research and discussions with city, county and health officials, everything we read, it sounds like to us we will not have any large gatherings in California until the earliest of September or October, or even into 2021," Vosburg added.

She counted all the celebration's other events that would not fall under social distancing guidelines — the deck party? No, it's a large party in a small space. The parade? It draws way too many to Crescent City's streets.

"We talked with Dr. Warren Reywaldt (Del Norte County Health Officer). He determined if we were to do a parade, who enforces the 6-foot distance rule? The parade draws hundreds that pack the streets," Vosburg said.

She said the agonizing part is much of the celebration is usually funded by local businesses that come up with more than $40,000 in sponsorship money.

"But you need to be open and

Free, out-of-this-world birthday cupcakes

Just four months into her home-baking cottage industry venture, Mary Corcovelos-Mullin had to shut down operations of Sticky Paws Baking Company to prevent exposure to the COVID-19 coronavirus for her and her partner.

Her mother, Venita Corcovelos, who handles all the company's finances while Mary does the baking, also has to handle cancer and chemo treatments every three weeks.

"So, we had to close for the safety for our family and customers," Corcovelos-Mullin said. "Our customers have been very understanding of it."

She added since the closure last month, she's experienced myriad emotions resulting from the outpouring of kindness and compassion amidst the trauma and chaos.

So, rather than completely shut down, Corcovelos-Mullin decided to take the compassion and kindness parts and pay it back. As the mother of three small children, Corcovelos-Mullin didn't want kids to miss out due to social distancing an important developing aspect of growing up — the birthday party.

Corcovelos-Mullin is keeping the oven ready to bake a special six-pack of her made from scratch, chocolate galaxy cupcakes so children don't miss out on a birthday cake. She's taking orders each week until noon Thursday and will have the batch ready for pick up on Friday.

"I have six orders for Wednesday already," Corcovelos-Mullin said. "I just want to make sure kids feel special. It's a scary time. They're not certain of things, not in school. Can't have friends over for a party. Anything I can do to make them feel special makes me happy."

The cupcakes are German chocolate, with a tri-color buttercream frosting topped with galaxy pixie sprinkles.

She left her job with Del Norte County to help care for mother when her cancer returned. Rather than sit around, Corcovelos-Mullin said her mother talked her into pursuing her first passion — baking.

"I've always loved to bake for family and friends. They encouraged me saying, 'Hey this would be a great venture to try.' I do have three small children, and with the uncertainty with the economy up and down, after a conversation with my mom, I thought why not try this, Corcovelos-Mullen said.

Because it's a cottage industry, Corcovelos-Mullen's kids are not allowed in the kitchen when she's baking. So, she usually baked early in the morning, between midnight and 1 a.m., and from 3-4 a.m. prepared her orders with frosting for pickup. Her menu included sticky paws, drizzled caramel salted cinnamon buns, salted caramel brownies and the German chocolate cupcakes.

Corcovelos-Mullen said while business had been a little slow, she'd been working up to what her customers liked, with a focus on hitting the farmers market, then building up to baking year-round.

Corcovelos-Mullen first posted the birthday package on her Facebook page, Sticky Paws Baking Co., then reposted on Love & Support for Del Norte County Facebook page.

"I just wanted to make sure everybody has an opportunity to put a smile on their face," she said.

After an order is placed, the customer makes a porch pickup while Corcovelos-Mullen obeys social distancing guidelines by donning a mask and rubber gloves during the transaction. She said even though it's free of charge, a couple of families have insisted on making donations anyway.

"The feedback so far has been very appreciative," Corcovelos-Mullen said. "One boy, his mom said he had autism, this just put a big, giant smile on his face. That really impacted me to see his happiness and joy on his birthday. That's something I can teach my own children. Give kindness and get just a smile alone in return is enough for you."

The free birthday cupcakes are the only baking Corcovelos-Mullen is doing right now. She said she hasn't decided yet whether to reopen.

"People can be leery with social distancing. I don't want anyone to feel on edge," she said. "Hopefully, if I do reopen, it will be by June 1, if not sooner. My full concern right now is the safety of my family and mom. I will keep people posted on my Facebook page. Stay safe, and I'll be back in business soon."

having services to pull it off," Vosberg said.

The last segment of discussions was fireworks. Vosberg said the committee members asked themselves, "Why can't we still have it and have people stay in cars and watch from their windows?"

Vosberg explained the firework displays were getting lost in the sky due to the coastal marine air. So, the chamber had been purchasing more ground-based fireworks and less aerial rockets.

"So, people staying in their cars and watching from windows wouldn't be able to see as much, anyway," she said.

Vosberg said the chamber has already received correspondence from frustrated community members, actually accusing the chamber of not caring. She feels their pain.

"I had a Zoom call with my kids. My son is so upset with this. He said more people die in car crashes. We make people wear seatbelts, require airbags, minimize what we can when there is a car crash. I don't know what is right/wrong. We as the chamber, have no say in the matter. We just put our faith in elected politicians," Vosberg said.

Vosberg said her research turned up that town after town are also canceling their 4th of July celebrations. And if the social-distancing mandate continues, she worries for the future of other upcoming events including the Relay for Life, county fairs and the camber's own Sea Cruise car show in October.

Luckily, she said, Sea Cruise can get really close before the chamber has to make a cancellation decision.

Larry Timpe, President of the Crescent City/Del Norte Chamber of Commerce and manager of Bicoastal Media, remains optimistic.

"We are already working on other events that the chamber traditionally brings to the community, such as Sea Cruise. The Crescent City/Del Norte Chamber of Commerce is here and working for you," he said.

Grading

advance.

Del Norte High School Principal Randy Fugate clarified that if a student had passing grades in a class prior to the March 15 shuttering of the campuses, students can improve grades by re-engaging with their instructor. However, failure to re-engage in the class online, the grade could decrease. He added the grade would not fall below a D.

Teachers and students are connecting via online services Zoom, Google Classroom, SeeSaw and Canvas. Unfortunately, Superintendent Jeff Harris said, this means their goal is to provide high-quality educational opportunities, not high-quality instruction.

"This isn't teaching as normal," Harris said. He referred to Gov. Gavin Newsom's March 13 executive order directing districts to "offer distance learning and independent study opportunities to its students to continue to receive state funding."

"If you listen to Governor Newsom, he said, 'Parents, you need to be prepared to homeschool your children.' This is about homeschooling not about instructional models that we've all used since 1923."

The DNUSD Board of Trustees unanimously approved a resolution governing grading during emergency school closures.

The statewide educational system remains fluid, especially when it comes to high school students meeting standards set by the University of California and California State University systems, Harris said.

"Tuesday we were told that the UC, CSUs were only going to be looking at pass/fails," he said. "Giving a grade could disqualify students from entering college, negatively impact them moving forward and could also have some unforeseen circumstances with CIF. We're having discussions with staff about what that means and how we can still utilize grades for purposes for valedictorian and those kinds of pieces."

Fugate added the wrinkle students could face in the revised grading system is moving onto a CSU or UC after graduating. He pointed out the two public college systems had initially indicated grades wouldn't matter coming into the fall semester.

"A high school senior who receives a D in a class instead of a pass/fail designation could be in danger of not being admitted to a UC or CSU in the fall," Fugate said.

"A letter grade could also have an impact on a student's ability to participate in athletics based on criteria set by the California Interscholastic Federation, which governs high school sports statewide," he added.

To facilitate online learning Fugate said DNHS staff has distributed about 200 Chrome Books and have distributed more than 105 "paper modules" to families who either don't have Internet access or feel their student learns better on paper rather than online. He estimated about 20 percent of the high school students rely on those paper modules.

Board member Charlaune Mazzei, who has a special needs son at Redwood Elementary School, expressed her concern about actual instruction, saying it wasn't clear how that would take place.

"I assume the child has been instructed on how to do the work in the packet or how to do the work online, and that's not necessarily the case when you're supposed to be moving on to new material," Mazzei said. "What is the expectation for teachers to record or provide instruction on new material as we move through the school year? And how is that going to be accessible to us parents who have to sit down with the kid and say, 'This is how we add up fractions'?"

Board President Frank Magarino weighed in, wondering how teachers would support a struggling student with the required work.

Harris explained that one of the challenges is that for most students, distance learning is new.

"Teachers are providing new content, including videotaped lessons. I saw one instructor tutoring 27 students in math via Zoom. But, students are missing out on music classes, language and art lessons," Harris said. "Nobody signed up for this. Our staff is doing a great job given the limited tools they have."

Magarino then turned and asked student trustee Elizabeth Ward what attending high school was like for her via distance learning. Ward said she misses the social aspect the most, adding that while she's adapted well to Zoom and other distance learning modules, it may be different for a student who doesn't have a similar drive to succeed academically.

"The information's out there from teachers," Ward said. "They always ask for questions. It depends on the student what they're going to get out of it."

Thanks to the dedicated workers who make our community a better place!

Retail workers have been on the frontlines of the COVID-19 pandemic since day one, helping us keep our kitchens stocked and us healthy.

Before this, many did not realize how important they are and did not give them the respect they deserve.

Their jobs now are not just essential but put them at a higher risk than many of us have to face daily. Most stores have done what they can to keep employees and the public safer by installing glass dividers on checkout lines, distancing customers, sanitizing checkout counters and touchpads.

We know it's important that we cut down on our interactions for obvious reasons but take a second to say 'thank you' the next time your are checking out or see someone stocking shelves.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

MOVING NEAR FAMILY FORCES A CHOICE BETWEEN TWO SONS

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a dilemma we don’t know how to handle. We both recently retired. Our sons (both married with children) live in other states. Since my wife and I no longer have family here, we are going to move close to one of our sons. Our dilemma: They both want us to move near them, but they are 2,000 miles apart. Both of the states they live in are similar in terms of taxes, home prices, cost of living, etc. We have decided where we would like to go and found a home to purchase. How do we tell our other son why we moved where we did? He’s going to be very hurt and feel that we favor his brother, which couldn’t be further from the truth. Both are financially stable (as are my wife and I), so that is not an issue. I’m sure many people would feel blessed to have two sons who both want their parents close by. How do we tell one we picked the other? — NEARBY IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR NEARBY: Do not tell either brother that you picked the one you did. You chose a LOCATION.

Why did you arrive at the decision you did? Make a list of the reasons you made your choice and recite them when you are asked. You are all adults. Your reasons are valid ones, and this should not be couched in terms of one son being loved better than the other, which is childish.

DEAR ABBY: Seven years ago, I found out my husband hadn’t paid our mortgage and credit card bills for more than two years, and our home of 23 years was in preforeclosure. Once the secret was out, we managed to save the house (thankfully).

Problem is, I no longer trust my husband and often doubt what he says. My priority was to save our home, but now I am no longer sure I want to stay with him. Our 40th anniversary is this year, but I feel bitter and resentful about his irresponsible decisions. I want to leave, but I’m scared I am making the wrong decision. Help, please. — MIXED UP IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR MIXED UP: Because I have no idea why your husband behaved so irresponsibly, you need to hash this out with a licensed marriage and family therapist. You should also consult an attorney. If you decide to stay, it is imperative that you be in a position to closely monitor any financial actions and obligations in your household.

DEAR ABBY: I like to jump on our neighbors’ trampoline when they’re out of town. I have been doing it for decades. Normally it’s no big deal, but last weekend they returned home earlier than usual and caught me in the act. Now my wife is ashamed to show her face around the neighborhood, and she’s blaming me for the whole thing.

Abby, I have a simple solution to this mess. If the neighbors don’t want me jumping on their trampoline, they should cough up the money for a privacy fence. Don’t you agree? — BOUNCING INTO TROUBLE

DEAR BOUNCING: If you are so jumpy and can’t keep your feet on the ground, it may be time to buy your own trampoline, which would save your wife a world of embarrassment.

Your comment about the neighbors offering a fence may have been offered in jest, but it is sensible. If someone’s child were to play on that trampoline in their absence and be injured, your neighbor could wind up paying a lot more than the cost of a fence.

California DMV extends all expiring licenses

The California Department of Motor Vehicles is extending driver's licenses expiring during the COVID-19 pandemic. Licenses for drivers younger than 70 that expire between March and May are now valid through May 31.

All commercial driver's licenses, endorsements and certificates expiring between March and June 2020 are now valid through June 30, aligning with a recent emergency declaration from the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration. The extension does not include medical certificates for commercial drivers, which requires additional administrative actions scheduled in the near future.

The DMV has alerted California law enforcement of the extensions. Californians with a suspended license are not eligible.

The DMV continues to review and process online renewals and encourages drivers who are eligible to renew their license online to do so.

The extensions require no individual action on the part of drivers. These drivers will not receive a new card or an extension in the mail. As an option, these drivers can request a free temporary paper extension online through DMV's Virtual Field Office to document their extension.

The Virtual Field Office, virtual.dmv.ca.gov, builds on the other online services already available to DMV customers at dmv.ca.gov, including driver license renewals.

The temporary extensions are in addition to other steps the DMV announced earlier this month to help Californians with expiring licenses, including:

- A 120-day extension for drivers age 70 and older. Drivers age 70 and older with expiring noncommercial licenses are receiving an extension in the mail automatically.
- Temporarily waiving required in-person renewals for eligible driver license and identification cardholders with expirations in March, April and May. Individuals who meet the criteria can renew online or by mail.

The DMV continues to provide essential services via mail, online, kiosks, its call center, available business partners and now virtually to process critical transactions, including eligible driver license and vehicle registration renewals, during the COVID-19 pandemic. Customers can use the Services Advisor on the DMV website to learn their options to complete DMV tasks.

The measures to help Californians with expiring driver licenses are the latest DMV actions during the coronavirus pandemic, including:

- Temporarily closing field offices.

Following deep cleaning, expansion of virtual services and development of new protocols, the DMV soon will offer in-person services in each region. Information on office openings will be announced by DMV soon.

- Canceling all behind-the-wheel drive tests to honor social distancing guidelines.
- Suspending extended office hours and Saturday service.

Hambro Recycling Center reopening its operations May 1

Because recycling operations have been determined to be an essential operation, the Hambro Recycling Center will resume recycling operations on May 1. The center, located at 445 Elk Valley Rd., will enforce strict social distancing guidelines, require face coverings and have special hours for senior citizens. Hambro requests people postpone their visits if they are feeling symptoms of COVID-19 or have been around a person with the virus.

The center will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. Special hours will be available exclusively for senior citizens each day from 8-9 a.m. The company is planning to reduce the concentration of its customers by allocating prep spaces for sorting material for processing. Additional signage will be posted. The designated areas will allow a safe distance between customers and promote the orderly flow of the redemption process. To assist in the efficient processing pre-sorting of aluminum, plastic and glass material before arrival is advised.

Operations will be monitored and observed by staff and management. To continue to operate the facility it will be mandatory that all rules and guidelines be observed and followed. The ordinary workforce will be augmented to assist spacing and rule compliance. Hambro officials ask for cooperation and buy-in from all customers to keep their operation essential.

May 1 recreational ocean fishery openings to proceed as planned

The California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) announced Wednesday that the recreational ocean salmon, groundfish and Pacific halibut fisheries scheduled to open May 1 will proceed as planned.

However, anglers are reminded to abide by all state and local health guidelines regarding non-essential travel and physical distancing. Staying home to stay healthy is still the best way to keep yourself and others safe.

Anglers are also advised to check with local authorities on the status of harbor services and access points as many site closures and access restrictions exist and may change daily.

The opening includes the boat-based groundfish fishery in the Northern and Mendocino management areas (from the Oregon/California state line to Point Arena). The groundfish fishery in other California management areas remains open. The Pacific halibut fishery also will open statewide on May 1.

Federal regulations establish recreational fishing seasons for California's ocean salmon, groundfish and Pacific halibut fisheries, following recommendations made by the Pacific Fishery Management Council. The California Fish and Game Commission adopts regulations for state waters to match the federal season dates.

Check the following resources for more information on these fisheries:

- CDFW's Ocean Salmon web page, Ocean Salmon Hotline 707-576-3429, or the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) Ocean Salmon Hotline, 800-662-9825
- CDFW's Recreational Groundfish Regulations web page or Groundfish and Pacific halibut regulations hotline 831-649-2801
- CDFW's Pacific halibut web page, Groundfish and Pacific halibut regulations hotline 831-649-2801, or the NMFS Pacific halibut hotline 800-662-9825.

Crescent City man is county's third confirmed COVID-19 case

Del Norte County has its third confirmed positive COVID-19 case — a middle-age Crescent City man.

The Del Norte Office of Emergency Services reported Sunday the man is home recovering in self-quarantine.

Health officials are investigating how the patient contracted the virus, said Del Norte County Sheriff's Cmdr. Bill Steven, public information officer for Del Norte OES. Steven said the patient's employer is aware of the positive test result. And according to a Del Norte County Public Health Facebook post, the patient's contacts have also been notified and are self-quarantining at home.

According to the Del Norte County Public Health website, as of 9:44 a.m. Monday, a total of 314 tests have been administered in Del Norte County, 300 tests have returned negative and 11 are still pending. The first two patients confirmed with COVID-19 have recovered.

Dr. Warren Rehwaltdt, Del Norte Public Health Officer, plans to participate in a telephone town hall meeting hosted by State Sen. Mike McGuire at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The telephone town hall will also include Humboldt and Trinity County public health officers and an infectious disease expert from the University of California.

Participate in the town-hall by calling 844-721-7241, and entering code 9362370.

Letter to the editor

Nonlocals are also using Walker Road

Editor: In “Supervisors vote to open Walker Road” in the TriPLICATE’s April 24 edition, Del Norte County Supervisor Gerry Hemmingsen is quoted as saying, “Walker Road is known mostly by locals.”

I live in Hiouchi and frequent Walker Road regularly, often just to check out the cars parked near the trailheads to see where the visitors are from. Based on license plates, dealer stickers and accents and conversations, I can report with some confidence that many of the people visiting Waller Road are not local.

Partly because of the easy access from U.S. Highway 199, the Simpson-Reed Trail is exceedingly popular with visitors to the area, especially on weekends and during the school year and summer vacations.

Recipients will receive auto Impact Payments

Recipients of Veterans Affairs benefits will automatically receive Economic Impact Payments, according to the Internal Revenue Service, working in partnership with the Treasury Department and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Veterans and their beneficiaries who receive Compensation and Pension (C&P) benefit payments from VA will receive a $1,200 Economic Impact Payment with other action needed on their part. Timing on the payments is still being determined.

Moving VA recipients into the automatic payment category follows weeks of extensive cooperative work between VA, Treasury, IRS as well as the Bureau of Fiscal Services.

“Since many VA recipients typically aren’t required to file tax returns, the IRS had to work with these other government agencies to determine a way to quickly and accurately deliver Economic Impact Payments to this group,” said IRS Commissioner Chuck Rettig. “Additional programming work remains, but this step simplifies the process for VA recipients to quickly and easily receive these $1,200 payments automatically. We deeply appreciate the sacrifices and service to our country by each and every veteran and their families, as well as the assistance of VA and the Bureau of Fiscal Services in this effort.”

No action needed by most taxpayers

Earlier this month, the IRS took a similar action to ensure those receiving Social Security retirement or disability benefits, Supplemental Security Income and Railroad Retirement benefits can receive automatic payments of $1,200. While these groups receive Forms 1099, many in this group don’t typically file tax returns. Many people in these groups are expected to see the automatic $1,200 payments later this month, with SSI payments expected to start in early May.

For eligible taxpayers who filed tax returns for 2019 or 2018, they will also receive the payments automatically. About 80 million payments are hitting bank accounts this week.

For benefit recipients with dependents, extra step needed to claim $500 for children; Register now for earlier delivery

The law provides eligible taxpayers with qualifying children under age 17 to receive an extra $500. For taxpayers who filed tax returns in 2018 or 2019, the child payments will be automatic.

However, many benefit recipients typically aren’t required to file tax returns. If they have children who qualify, an extra step is needed to add $500 per child onto their automatic payment of $1,200 if they didn’t file a tax return in 2018 or 2019.

For those who receive these benefits – including VA, Social Security retirement or disability benefits (SSDI), Railroad Retirement benefits or SSI – and have a qualifying child, they can quickly register by visiting “Non-Filers: Enter Payment Info” available only on IRS.gov. For those who can use this tool as soon as possible, they may be able to get earlier delivery of the child payments by having these added to their automatic payments.

By quickly taking steps to enter information on the IRS website about them and their qualifying children, they can receive the $500 per dependent child payment in addition to their $1,200 individual payment. If beneficiaries in these group do not provide their information to the IRS soon, they will receive their $500 per qualifying child at a later date, depending on when they complete the registration process.

with county representatives and their public health officers, had been removed.

“I don’t know where to go from here,” Howard said. “But there’s a lot of frustrated people in this community specific to the gate issue that is now in the state clearinghouse.”

Howard added he has also reached out to a representative from State Sen. Mike McGuire’s office.

“Continuing to have state park units closed to residents encourages people to congregate at areas that aren’t parking spaces,” Howard said.

Brett Silver, State Parks’ supervising ranger for the Redwoods Coast sector, had advised Sarina at the April 21 supervisors meeting to make the county’s request for an exemption to the soft closure order via California Office of Emergency Services.

Sarina told supervisors Tuesday he received an email back from the county’s representative to the California Office of Emergency Services’ regional center.

“It’s my understanding once it got to the regional center, State Parks said no they were not interested in doing that,” Sarina said. “It went back down the chain and back to me through our representative and that was the answer. I’m not sure why we had to go through that step, but I didn’t get a lot of detail in talking with Brett.”

The locked gates issue was originally brought to Howard’s attention earlier this month by Mike Coopman, a local fishing guide and representative of the Nor-Cal Guides & Sportsmen’s Association. On Tuesday, Coopman told supervisors that he was worried the gates were installed without input from the public or from local elected officials.

“My hopes are that this COVID-19 stuff will pass. Yet if the state and national park are allowed to put in permanent gates, those are permanent and going in under the cloak of COVID-19 and completely in the dark to all elected officials, including the Del Norte County Board of Supervisors, the sheriff, Congresswoman Huffman, Sen. McGuire, all of the above,” Coopman said. “It seems rather secretive and, in our opinion, an overreach.”

Coopman added that the Nor-Cal Guides & Sportsmen’s Association has also sent letters to the region’s state representatives opposing the gates.

Local leaders send letters to DOT in support of retaining Contour’s air service at county airport

DAVID HAYES
 The Triuplicate

Although Boutique Air is seeking to provide Essential Air Service to the Del Norte County Regional Airport, local leaders are hoping the U.S. Department of Transportation chooses to re-up its contract with Contour Air come September.

Both the Del Norte County Board of Supervisors and the Crescent City Council sent the DOT letters in support of Contour, as recommended by the Border Coast Regional Airport Authority.

Mayor Pro Tem Heidi Kime, a member of the BCRAA’s Board of Commissioners, said at this week’s City Council meeting the letter in support of Contour was for a multitude of reasons.

“They’ve done a great job of reliable service at an affordable price with its service from Crescent City to Oakland,” Kime said. “The DOT are the ones who opened this up to different offers. So, we want to send a clear message we want Contour to continue.”

Kime said among the reasons the BCRAA prefers Contour over Boutique are its planes are ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) accessible, a majority in recent community survey wanted to continue flights to Oakland versus Boutique offering flights north to Portland, Ore., and Contour uses jets with 30 seats available, while Boutique has propeller planes that seat only 8 or 9.

Appearing before the Board of Supervisors on April 14, Airport Director Randy Hooper reiterated the BCRAA’s issues with Boutique’s proposal and that its request to the DOT to reject Boutique’s bid had more to do with continuing its relationship with Contour.

Hooper said the BCRAA also submitted similar requests for letters from the Curry County Board of Commissioners, Crescent City Council, Elk Valley Rancheria, Tolowa Dee-ni’ Nation and the City of Brookings, which make up the joint powers authority.

District 2 Supervisor Lori

Cowan, the county’s representative on the BCRAA Board of Commissioners, wanted it said publicly what was left out of the letter to the DOT — handicap accessibility played a part in why Boutique was turned down before Contour and again now.

Contour Airlines has provided non-stop service between Crescent City and Oakland since April 2018 through the Alternate EAS Program when its predecessor PenAir ceased its twice-daily flights between Crescent City and Portland in December 2017.

Mayor Blake Inscore added he found some attractiveness in flying in a charter flight with a small group of people when he initially looked at Boutique’s proposal.

“But you look at what Contour has been able to provide, like the Japanese delegations, no way would Boutique been able to handle that. The delegation would have had groups of people charter busses from Portland or San Francisco to get the rest of the way to Crescent City,” he said. “Boutique just can’t provide those things. That doesn’t mean they do a bad job, they just don’t meet the need of our community.”

Inscore added the DOT has responded well to community outreach.

He said while he was in Washington, D.C., he found them very receptive when hearing a combined voice and that’s what got the first approved alternate EAS with Contour.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/DefaultManagement/TrusteeServices.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2019-02594-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
