Coos Bay

Explore the gateway to Oregon's Adventure Coast.

While being the largest city along the Oregon coast, this spectacular destination still maintains that cozy small town feel.

Coos Bay has the perfect blend of natural wonders, historic charm, modern convenience and outdoor activities. The city, which was founded in 1853, is situated right next to several breathtaking beaches, jaw dropping sea cliffs, thrilling dunes and miles of amazing forest and coastal trails for hiking and biking. It is the perfect balance of forest meeting the coast.

The artistically vibrant community covers over 10 square miles and is home to the largest deepdraft port from San Francisco all the way up to the Puget Sound in Washington state. The town itself is a wondrous site to behold with its old theaters, galleries, fantastic local shops and restaurants and a large number of beautiful parks.

Points of Interest

Mingus park

This gorgeous park sits just a few minutes walk from downtown shopping. A stroll through its enchanting Choshi Gardens will leave you feeling as if you have been transported to somewhere else entirely. Beautiful flowers, lush foliage, statues and an arched bridge that provides the perfect photo-opt, fill the park. This Japanese inspired garden was created to honor Coos Bay's sister city, Choshi, Japan.

The park features a large pond at its center with an arboretum to the northeast and playgrounds to the south. The pond is home to year-round aquatic birds and other creatures, making it a relaxing place to just sit and watch.

If you venture off the paved path, you will come across the park's 18-hole disc golf course which takes you through the woods. The course is surrounded by tall evergreens and old cedars, giving the feeling of playing in a quiet forest far outside the city.

Three Rivers Casino Resort

Featuring 250 new games, this casino has plenty to keep visitors entertained on its 15,00 squarefoot floor. The casino is owned and operated by the Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua, and Siuslaw Indians.

The award-winning casino, which started in Florence, Oregon, decided to expand and build in Coos Bay, opening its doors at this location in May of 2015. As you walk across the vast casino floor, you can feel the excitement alive all around you.

The building hums as visitors play, thoroughly enjoying the experience. Hungry guests can find something

Hidden Gems

Cape Arago State Park

This breathtaking park sits at the end of the road, as the road out of Coos Bay does not go beyond this point, however it's the start to a spectacular day. Located at the end of Cape Arago Highway, it's about 15 miles southwest of Coos Bay and definitely worth the drive out.

This scenic headland juts out into the Pacific Ocean, offering amazing views of the waves crashing against the rocks and a great place to scan the horizon for migrating marine mammals.

While there, try taking the south cove trail down to the sandy beach and enjoy some of the best tide pools in the area. Afterwards, head to the north cove trail for fishing, beach combing and viewing off-shore seals and sea lions at Shell Island.

The trail closes from March 1 through June 30 in order to protect seal pups. However, the rest of the area is open for day-use year-round. For more information visit: www.StateParks.oregon.gov and search for Cape Arago State Park.

Egyptian Theatre

Built in 1925, this unique theater is one not to be missed. It was entered into the National Register of Historic Places on May 24, 2010. Great care is taken to maintain the beautiful theater which still actively shows movies.

Located downtown at 229 South Broadway in Coos Bay, this iconic theater is hard to miss, with its beautiful old signage and detailed Egyptian themed exterior. The details continue as you step inside, leaving you to feel as if you've been transported to another time and place.

Whether buying or selling, the caring hands at Mastco Properties are there to make your life easier

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

Coos Bay real estate agent, Dancia Mast, has been working hard to provide top-notch service to her coastal community for almost seven years now. She started her own brokerage, Mastco Properties, about half way through her real estate career when she realized that she could do more for her clients as a brokerage owner.

Motivated in her early twenties to do more with her life after finding out she was pregnant, Dancia sought out real estate. She quickly left waitressing behind, eager to provide a better life for the new life she would soon be bringing into the world. She set goals for herself and achieved each one, never backing down no matter how trying the challenges in pursuing her new career became. Her struggles motivated her to keep pushing forward with renewed determination.

Dancia had an unusual childhood, being raised aboard a 45-foot sailboat in Anchorage, Alaska where she was born. She was homeschool and spent her early years on the sailboat, Jack of Hearts. She didn't move to Coos Bay until it came time for her to attend 3rd grade. She has happily been in the area ever since.

Dancia's business has grown substantially in the years since she first started out all on her own. She now proudly has 11 brokers that work under her in the local Coos Bay office at 737 North Front Street and has been voted one of the best real estate offices on the south coast.

"It's not about the commission. That's what everyone thinks about realtors but it's not. The whole thing about real estate, for me, is to put the money aside. I really want to get to know who [the clients] are and I really want to know how I can find them the perfect house," she said when asked what part of real estate she finds the most joy in. Dancia loves learning about her clients and all their wants and needs.

"For buyers, I'll get a detailed list and I'll challenge myself to just find the perfect house for them...For sellers, I love marketing and I'll get in front of the camera [with a] videographer on the property and drone shoots and walk-throughs." She also added that she helps stage property when needed and assists clients with increasing curb appeal.

Dancia and her team always stay on top of the changing markets and are constantly looking over the laws regarding buying and selling. She also does competitive market analysis (CMA) on properties to help her accurately suggest selling and buying prices for her clients. Dancia is there every step of the way, making the whole process as easy as possible for all of the people that go to her for help.

When you put buying or selling your home in the capable hands of Mastco Properties you're not only getting top quality service but you're also get a friend. Dancia is there to help you however possible, even if that means showing you around the town and taking you to the beautiful local beaches for sightseeing.

Not only does Dancia Mast make her clients a priority but she also cares greatly for her local community. Her brokerage loves to be a part of "big events and sponsorships" whenever possible, frequently giving back to the community that in turn supports her ever growing business.

Dancia loves what she does and everyone she works with, from her clients to the agents who work under her. "We're all kind of like a big family. It's like I'm not even going to work. It's like I'm at home with them," she happily stated.

While managing a brokerage can be challenging at times, Dancia now could not dream of doing anything else. The joy she gets out of helping each and every client that reaches out to her is beyond fulfilling. From seeing the happy tears of a family as they accept the keys to their new home to the excited smiles of sellers who were able to get that offer they weren't sure was possible. Those are the moments that make every challenge, obstacle and late hour all worth it for Dancia Mast.

For more information about Mastco Properties or Dancia Mast visit their website: www.MastcoProperties.com.

Shore Acres

State Park

I heard about Shore Acres almost immediately after I arrived in the area, but I intentionally avoided it because I wanted my wife and children to experience it with me the first time.

So, we made our way through Charleston and went to Shore Acres as a group. During the cooler months, it is not overly crowded, so there was plenty of parking and plenty of space to avoid others.

After getting out of the car, you immediately see the Pacific Ocean pounding against rocks. During whaling season, you can also apparently catch glimpses of the whales as you walk by.

As we walked through the trail, we followed my youngest son, who often takes the trail less traveled. Every one of his trails ended with another view of the ocean, with waves pounding into the rocks below.

When we reached the botanical gardens, Shore Acres is most known for, we eagerly went inside. Early March is not the best time to visit the gardens, but it was still amazingly beautiful. Many of the flowers, and the rose garden, will be in full bloom in May, but even in early March there was a lot to see. A variety of trees, complete with signs explaining what they are, stand proudly in the garden. Even in March, some of the flowers were starting to bloom. A group of deer grazed just outside, adding more mystery to the air.

For me, the highlight of the gardens was simply the peace. It was quiet, with only the occasional bird chirping to break the silence.

After walking through the gardens, we continued down the trail only to find what on that day was our own little private beach. Simpson Beach is just a short walk from the gardens, but it opens a new world to explorers, especially little explorers.

We hit the beach at low tide, which I highly recommend. With the water out, we got to climb around rocks and find a variety of tide pools to explore. Inside the tide pools, my children found living sea anemones that moved around as the water moved nearby.

There were sea snails and hermit crabs on the edges of the pools and small fish left behind waiting for the ocean to return. A whole area was covered in mussels, which we did our best to avoid as we explored.

My wife and son even ventured up to a cave, looking inside a little, although slippery rocks and the darkness inside drove them away before going in much.

In a brisk March morning, it was chilly with a steady breeze, but we had a hard time leaving. After about three hours, we made our way back out of Shore Acres fully content.

While many areas around are free, there is a $5 per car charge to visit Shore Acres. Believe me, it's money well spent.

Talking to those who work there, it sounds like the best time to visit it probably late May through the summer as the flowers are in full bloom. But even in the winter, it was well worth the visit. If you can, shoot for low tide. It's worth it. To reach Shore Acres from Coos Bay, follow the signs for state parks and beaches through Charleston. Follow Cape Arago Highway past Sunset Beach and the park will be on your right.

The beautiful Second Street

Art Gallery

Photos contributed by Carrie Kreutzer

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

40 years ago a group of local artists decided to open a gallery in which they could sell their artistic creations, starting Second Street Gallery in Bandon, Oregon. However, it didn't take long for the co-op to become privately owned. After moving to its current location in 1995, the gallery changed hands several times.

The most recent change of ownership took place in 2018 when current owner, Carrie Kreutzer bought the gallery. Having been a frequent customer of it since high school, Kreutzer had a deep love for the shop. In late 2017, after being given several gift certificates for the gallery, she decided it was time to spend them, not knowing she would be doing a lot more than just buying a few pieces of art.

After having seen the for sale sign, Kreutzer made the life changing decision to purchase the gallery, leaving behind her job with Coos County. "I'm not an artist. I've tried. ... I don't know why I thought I could own a gallery but I did. I quit my 18-year job and bought the gallery. It's one of the best decisions I've ever made," she happily stated.

The gallery is home to artwork from over 100 artists, most of which are local Oregon residents. Kreutzer said that she's doing her best to keep the artwork in the gallery local by being very selective on any new art brought to her. "I've really been trying to bring it back to as local as I can. We have some fantastic artists here in the area," she said. However, she did keep artwork from artists who have been a part of the gallery since long before she purchased it, regardless of them being local or not.

Fun fact, while the previous owner did retire, he is still actively involved with the gallery, as is his wife. "The husband does art. ... The husband comes in probably once a week just to chit chat and drop off a new piece or see what I've sold and the wife is here every Sunday [to] work," said Kreutzer. "His wife still works for me one day a week. ... I think the success of the gallery is really contributed to my employees because they're very wonderful and very knowledgeable." She also said that she kept on all the previous employees, not just the previous owner.

"I have mostly paintings. I have wooden sculptures, pottery, jewelry, candles, silks, tables from local woodworkers, mirrors. I have these gorgeous copper pieces. I have everything. I like to keep a really wide range of mediums," Kreutzer said, describing what the gallery carries. She also added that she makes an effort to keep her prices ranging from "lower end things" to the higher end stuff, that way anyone could come in and be able to make a purchase.

The gallery has around 3,800 square feet of floor space, with two rooms. "It used to be a theater back in the day. So where the stage used to be is my office and our storage space," said Kreutzer. Every available space in the gallery is packed with beautiful art, making it the perfect place to find what you've been looking for or to just stop by and look around. "People come in and look around all the time and don't buy anything, which is totally fine. A lot of people come in because they ... want to get inspired. So they come in to look at the artwork and then they're going to go home and paint. So it's kind of cool when we're able to inspire people," she said.

Every month from April through December, Bandon has an event called, Alive After Five Wine Walk, which Second Street Gallery participates in. They are also part of the new local Bandon Art Walk, taking place during the summer months. When speaking about the Bandon Art Walk event, Kreutzer stated that her gallery brings in artists to demonstrate what they do. "[People] can walk around and look at art and talk to the artist and see what they are doing. People really like doing that. They like buying a piece and they love it when the artist is here."

Prior to COVID, Second Street Gallery used to host Meet and Greet events regularly for guests to come in and meet the local artist. Kreutzer said that she hopes to bring back the event next year.

Owning Second Street Gallery has been a wonderful change for Kreutzer, who is loving every second of her new career. "[It's] so much more calm and relaxing. This [job] is not hard at all. COVID was a little stressful because I was worried being a new business owner and everything, and then we shut down. I was concerned about that but we made it through and we're still doing really good," she stated.

While the gallery does have a Facebook page and website, artwork cannot be purchased online. Customers who are unable to stop by the gallery may call or email to inquire about artists or current work available. According to Kreutzer, they will take photos of available art pieces and send them to customers along with measurements and anything else needed, in order for them to determine which item they would like to buy. They do ship internationally if necessary.

Craft-brewing at its finest

7 Devils Brewing Co.

Photos contributed by Annie Pollard

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

Craft-brewing with an environmentally friendly approach is one of the many things that sets 7 Devils Brewing Co. apart from its competitors. Started by former Marine Biologist, Annie Pollard and her husband, Carmen Matthews, they first opened their doors in 2013 after both having spent many years as home brewers.

They now have two locations in Coos Bay, the brewery and pub at 247 South Street and their waterfront restaurant location at 1240 North Bayshore Drive. They do all of their brewing at their South Street location.

The brewing company is big on community involvement. They also make a conscious effort to source things from within Oregon and as close to Coos Bay as possible. "It's not just all about us. It's about what our area has to offer. So we try to source locally and have local artists with their work on the walls and local food producers supplying our wholesale foods and stuff like that. So it's really more about what we all have to offer rather than what 7 Devils can do," said Pollard.

Environmentally conscious

In an effort to help keep our oceans healthy, Pollard said they try to use a program put forth by the Surfrider Foundation called, Ocean Friendly Restaurants. According to Pollard there are 10 points that restaurants are encouraged to adopt. She said 7 Devils Brewing Co. is attempting to adopt all of them.

"There's not creating waste. There's also sourcing things that are better for the ocean environment and so within that is buying locally, buying seafood that is sustainably harvested, and then reducing food waste, avoiding any kind of single use plastics. ... We use straws on request but they are all biodegradable. We use all biodegradable to go ware. It's expensive but it's something we believe in," said Pollard.

They also use something called PakTech, which is created using 100 percent post-consumer waste plastic. It is used to hold four and six packs of beer together. Pollard stated that while it is more plastic, animals can't get their heads stuck in them. Not only that but they hold so well that they are able to reuse them. "We encourage our customers to bring them back to us and reuse them. We also encourage customers to bring them from other breweries. If they're buying a sixpack at McKay's or something, they can bring their rings to us and we'll keep reusing them," she said.

7 Devils also takes all their food waste from their pub location and sends it to the local ranch where they buy their beef from, to be composted. Pollard also said that they send their "spent malt" to the same ranch. "It's this big pile of plant protein ... we send that ... and they feed it to their cattle. So it's grass-fed beef that also gets all these extra calories and protein from the malt. So the quality of the beef is delicious." She also said they learned that their yeast byproduct is another thing they can feed to the cows, stating that "It's really good for their gut flora."

The brews

7 Devils Brewing Co. typically has 9 to 10 different beers available at any given time, sometimes increasing the number when they have barrel-aged brews available. They keep a total of seven staples on hand that do not normally change. They offer a seasonal lager, ales, stouts, a porter and several IPAs. They like to have some fun with their seasonal beers and often do them in partnership with nonprofits in the community, donating 10 percent of the proceeds to the non-profit. In the spring they will do a Chinook Redd beer. "Red is spelled Redd, which is actually what a salmon nest is called and it's the color of salmon eggs. We use Chinook hops and they're grown ... locally here in Oregon," Pollard said, adding that 10 percent of the proceeds go to local watershed associations to help with enhancing salmon habitats.

Later in the spring, the brewery will collect spruce tips with the help of volunteers from the South Slough. They use them to create a spruce tip ale, using them in place of hops. "It's a delicious beer that you really can't get in very many places. It's not harvested commercially. So you can't buy spruce tips. It's a lovely fruity flavor," said Pollard. 10 percent of the proceeds for the ale go towards trail maintenance and a stewardship program at the Sought Slough.

Another unique beer the company creates is fig stout. "We do a collaboration with a brewery in Astoria, named Reach Break Brewing. [It's] owned by a gentleman who is originally from Coos Bay. ... We do a fig stout with him each year. He comes down and brews with us. ... It's delicious. It's so decadent and luxurious," said Pollard.

About the brewery

7 Devils Brewing Co. is constantly brewing. Since they brew in-house at their pub location, it allows them to keep the freshest beer on hand. Their hop beers are typically consumed in one to three months after brewing, in order keep them tasting just as good as when they were first brewed. In their warehouse, about one block away from the brewing location, they store their malt beers that improve with age. "You get this different, kind of subtle thing that happens over time. Like two years might be the perfect point. Sometimes we might warehouse stuff intentionally for a year before we release it because we anticipate it improving with age," Pollard stated.

The company employs 85 people, however only around half of them are full-time workers. They also choose to self-distribute their beers along the Oregon coast, going as far north as Florence. "We love [the] ability to talk directly with our whole sale buyers, restaurant owners, bar owners, little mom and pop convenience stores, things like that. It's really cool to have that rapport with people and I think that it allows us to stay innovative too because they can tell us what people want and we can try to fill that for them," said Pollard.

They are also constantly working with the local community, sponsoring various events and programs throughout the year. They buy all of their pretzels from the students in the culinary program at the local college, which in turn helps the kids raise the necessary funds to attend important conferences and competitions.

The brewing company also takes multiple steps to help keep them on the top of the craft-brewing industry. Pollard and Matthews attend large brewing conventions every other year and hire consultants to help them improve during the years they are not attending the convention. "We hire different consultants to come down and look at our process and try to find ways we can improve. [They] taste our beers, help us find ways to make our beers a little more innovated," Pollard said.

Step back in time at the Sawdust Theatre

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

Be prepared to step back in time as you enter the Sawdust Theatre, located at 120 North Adams Street in Coquille, Oregon. Upon first arriving to the theater, you can just tell that you are in for an experience unlike any other to be found in the area. The building's exterior is reminiscent of times of old, setting the scene for the play you are about to experience.

The theater will delight viewers with its fantastic melodramas, which showcase characters who have larger than life emotions. You are sure to be entertained by the fun music that accompanies the exciting and humorous events taking place before your eager eyes. This long-standing theater has been captivating audiences since it first started more than five decades ago.

A dream was envisioned for the small town, a dream of opening a theater. In 1966, that vision was made known to the community and by 1967 the Sawdust Theatre had been born and was putting on its first play. The name for the theater was a result of the prevalent logging industry that was going on in Coquille at the time.

From its inception until present day, the theater has always been heavily involved with the local public. Without the community the theater would not have been possible as it relies heavily on their support, donations and volunteer work.

For nearly 30 years, the Sawdust Theatre put on performances out of the same building it had all started in. Sadly, in 1994 that all changed when a devastating fire broke out in the middle of the night. The theatre was completely burnt to the ground, leaving behind virtually nothing but the tin roof which once set atop it.

Through dedication and a love for theater, a committee was formed to raise 1.2 million dollars to rebuild the theater. Many generous donations came in from all over the place and by 1997 the community once again had its beloved Sawdust Theatre up and running, just down the street from where the original one once stood.

According to building manager, Michael Thurman, the outside of the new building is very reminiscent of the old theater. They also have a few "odds and ends" from the old theater but were not able to salvage much, Thurman stated.

The theater, which is still run by volunteers, puts on a couple plays a year. Beginning the first weekend in June and running until Labor Day in Sept., the theater performs its predetermined play every weekend. They also put on a Christmas play for three weekends in the December.

Prepare to take a trip down memory lane, to a time that is no more, when you attend a show at the Sawdust Theatre. Enter into the cozy room and take a seat, forget your electronic devices and enjoy the experience you are about to have. Watch as the performers, or "Sawdusters" as they like to refer to themselves, move across the stage, captivating every eye in the room.

Governors, senators and people from all over the world have traveled to Coquille to visit the iconic Sawdust Theatre, each one being enthralled by its amazing performers. As a member of the audience, you may even be expected to participate a bit in their unique plays, with an "Ahh" here or a "Boo" there.

According to Thurman, the theater puts on both well-known plays and originals written by some of their very own cast members. Auditions for the plays are held every year well in advance of show times and are open to the community. During auditions the theater is not only looking for actors and actresses but also olio's, which perform song and dance routines while the scenes are being reset.

People from all walks of life enter the Sawdust Theatre's doors, in the hopes of being able to take part in one of their shows. With a limitless love for the arts and entertainment, these volunteers gladly take applause as payment for their performances.

The unique West Coast Game Park Safari

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

The West Coast Game Park Safari, located in Bandon, is the largest self-supporting wildlife attraction in Oregon. The money earned from visitors, along with donations, is enough to fund the entire park, which works to aid in the propagation, preservation and wildlife education. They hope to help prevent further animal extinctions from occurring. The park also believes in an "all- natural" approach to its breeding program. Through this approach, they have seen many endangered species bring new life into the world.

With over 450 animals to see, the park offers a unique experience that you do not normally get from zoos. As soon as you enter the park you will immediately notice the difference as hundreds of free-roaming animals move about all around you. Goats, sheep, deer and peacocks are free to walk the park alongside visitors and may even be fed if

different animal species. You are free to meander the paths, observing the tigers, leopards, camels, lemurs, zebras, skunks, capybaras and a large variety of other animals. Nearly all of the animals at the park were hand-raised by staff and are therefore used to being handled, having grown up with constant public interaction. With so many animals to see it would be easy to spend an entire day here.

The park also has what they call "ambassador" animals. Handlers will bring the ambassador animals out for specific interactions with visitor groups in a designated presentation area each day. This allows for multiple interactions with visitors. Guests may take these opportunities to gently touch one of the exotic animals, take some up-close photos with them and learn about their conservation.

Ambassador animals are only viewable during show times. Each presentation that takes place is tailored to the specific number of visitors at the park, therefore they do not have specific times available for them. Announcements will be made over their intercom system when they are having shows, allowing all visitors present to attend the events should they wish. There are no extra fees to view the presentations and interact with the animals as they are already included in the admission price.

The West Coast Game Park Safari was first established in 1968 as a small roadside attraction, featuring just a few deer. The park was then acquired by Bob and Mary Tenney four years later. They decided to transform the park into what it is today, expanding it beyond just a simple deer park. When the couple retired in 2009, they gave the park over to their son, Brian. Brian has further updated and renovated the park since that time.

Most of the employees at the park are year-round staff who have been working for the game park long-term. Some staff have been with them for over 20 years, allowing for a very knowledgeable group of employees caring for each animal on the grounds.

The game park is wheelchair accessible but does not have any to provide to guests. West Coast Game Park Safari is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., however, at 4:30 p.m. they cut off entry into the park for the day. Hours are subject to change due to weather conditions. Calling ahead of time to check is encouraged.

The park does have changes to its hours during certain seasons. January and February they are only open on the weekends. From March through November, they are open daily, except for being closed on Thanksgiving. December 1-25 they are closed for the holiday and open back up daily at their regular hours for December 26-31. Weather could cause changes to these days and times so be sure to call and check before visiting. Children under 2 years will receive free entry into the park. The admission fee for Kids 2-6 is $11 and children 7-12 is $14. Anyone over 13 years old is $21 and visitors over 60 are $18.50. The park also offers a 10 percent military and veteran discount. Prices are subject to change so checking their website or calling beforehand is advised.

West Coast Game Park Safari is located approximately seven miles south of Bandon's town center at 46914 U.S. Highway 101. Visit their website for more information: www.WestCoastGameParkSafari.com or call: (541) 347-3106.

Coastal whale watching

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

Every year, many travel along the coast with high hopes of seeing the majestic whale. However, not everyone is able to catch a glimpse of the breathtaking creatures. Those that do stand in awe at the sight, going home with an unforgettable experience.

Many factors can contribute to one's success in spotting a gray whale, mainly the time of year and the location in which one finds themselves while searching. Thankfully, the Southern Oregon coast and Northern California coast are full of amazing locations for watching these gentle giants as they migrate throughout the year.

While the gray whale is most easily spotted, other species can also be seen migrating south along the Oregon and California coast during the end of the year and north when the weather begins to warm in spring. Killer whales and humpback whales are among some of the migrating whales that people may be able to see.

Tips for spotting a whale

- The higher up you go above the ocean the better chances you'll have to spot something.
- Bring binoculars.
- Pick a day and time when the fog is out.

- Smaller waves mean better chances of spotting a whale.
- Look for the blow, or spout. Gray whales surface frequently, usually blowing water five times. They can shoot it up into the air around 12 feet high as they replenish their oxygen supply.
- Look for them breaching the surface. Humpback whales breach more often than gray whales. However, young gray whales tend to do it more frequently.
- Watch for "spyhopping." Whales may lift their heads above water to getting a better sense of what is around them.
- When whales deep dive, also known as fluking or sounding, they lift their tails out of the water. The turbulence caused by the dive leaves behind a circle of smooth water, called a flukeprint.

When to watch in Southern Oregon

During the winter months, around 20,000 gray whales travel south to the warm lagoons of Baja Mexico. They are most easily seen migrating between mid-December and mid-January.

For those on the lookout in spring, gray whales can be seen around the end of March, all the way through May. The roughly 25,000 whales journey north, traveling towards Alaska in search of colder water. During this time of year, gray whales can be spotted migrating with their new calves alongside them. Approximately, 200 gray whales stay along the Oregon coast year-round. Typically, during the summer and fall months, these resident whales will swim close to the shore in order to feed. This makes them more easily spotted from June until the middle of November. Due to resident whales sticking around, visitors may be able to see them daily in the same areas.

Traveling 9,000-12,000 miles, round trip, gray whales migrate past the shores of Northern California as they head to and from the Gulf of Mexico and the Arctic. The prime times to spot most whale species that travel through the area is from May until October.

Gray whales head on their southern migration from around November to February and travel northward from February through June, mostly in April.

While, the gray whale is the most commonly spotted species off the coast, humpback whales can also be viewed, typically from April to October. Although, they are most often spotted towards the beginning of fall.

From August through September, people might be lucky enough to catch a glimpse of a killer whale on the hunt for salmon. killer whales, also known as orcas, may be spotted by themselves or in pods. This species of whale might also make an appearance in the spring from April to June.

Cedar Bend Golf Course

Cedar Bend is unique among coastal courses because it not only offers great golf on a tidy 9-hole course, it has 11 RV campsites, so it is easy to stay-and-play.

Twice around the layout plays to 6,288 yards from the back tees and 5,231 from the front. Dual tees are available for 18-hole play.

The nicely manicured course, owned by its club members, crosses Cedar Creek several times. It features fairly wide, flat fairways, an anomaly for most coastal valley courses.

The course hosts several popular seasonal tournaments. Among them are The Crab String Scramble, the Stampede Tournament, and the Popeye and Olive Oil Tournament, a man and woman blind-draw event. Call for event dates and information.

Port Orford

You could easily spend a day or two ...
...in the quaint communities of Port Orford and nearby Langlois during your trip along the Wild Rivers Coast.

Nestled along Highway 101 about an hour north of the California border, Port Orford and Langlois offer a wealth of experiences for the outdoorsman, artisan, traveler and treasure-seeker.

Points of Interest

Port of Port Orford

Picture a port without a harbor. The Port of Port Orford is one of only six “dolly docks” in the world, where vessels are lifted out of the water by two enormous cranes and then housed on custom made dollies. You would be hard pressed to find another place on earth where you can get such an up-close look at a fleet of fishing boats currently in use. Check out the boats in drydock, then stop in to Grif’s on the Dock, the local dock museum, gift shop and eatery. Directions: If you are coming from the south follow Highway 101 north, turn left on Washington Street and follow it down to the dock

Redfish Restaurant

Diners can view historic Battle Rock and coastline from this renowned oceanfront gourmet restaurant on Highway 101. The restaurant has won national acclaim from Tripadvisor and Wine Spectator and serves up vegetarian, seafood, meat and poultry dishes. When ever possible Redfish buys local produce and fresh fish directly from Port Orford. Visit their extensive wine gallery and check out Hawthorne Museum of contemporary art next door! Reservations are recommended. Call 541-366-2200

Battle Rock Park

Step into history at Battle Rock Park, home of the historic Battle Rock, where Captain William Tichenor and his men used the prominent sea stack to stave off waves of native combatants to eventually settle Port Orford. Directions: Approaching from the south on Highway 101, it’s on your left as soon as you get into town.

Battle Rock Wayside

Stuns the senses.

By David Ruphalvis Country Media, Inc.

If you say the name Battle Rock Wayside Park, I would expect few people would know exactly where it is. But if you have ever driven south on Highway 101 to Gold Beach, I promise you have seen it.

When you make that drive from Coos County, almost the entire trip is through the forest. As you move through Port Orford, near the end of town, you make a left on Highway 101. And then to your right, the Pacific Ocean emerges. No matter how many times you have made the trip, the view is breathtaking. That is Battle Rock Wayside Park.

Here's my advice. Stop and spend some time at the park. First, the city of Port Orford, which has the Battle Rock as a city park, does an excellent job maintaining and telling the story of Battle Rock Park. The city has placed extensive signage in the area telling the story of the park, the beach and the animals that live in the area.

There is plenty of parking, clean bathrooms and paved trails to and from the beach. In the spring, the trail down to the beach is surrounded by flowers, adding to the surprise. But the real treat is down on the sand near the water.

A sign I saw leading down to the sand talked about the sea life in the area, listing no less than 26 different kinds of sea life that can be seen in the area. I didn't see them all, but it would be almost a treasure hunt to search for the species one by one.

The different animals, birds and grasses can be seen at different times and locations depending on the tides. They range from surf grass and sea cabbage to anemone, urchins and sea cucumbers. The 26 on the list doesn't even include the birds that are flying in the area.

If you visit the park, go to both sides of Battle Rock. When you walk down to the beach, you will likely be on the left of the rock. On that side, there are miles of beaches in front of you and water as far as you can see.

But on the other side it feels almost like a private beach. Battle Rock serves as a protector, slowing the waves and the water. A small cove has been created, which offers a quiet place to sit or even play in the water.

Every time I visit the rocky beaches, I am surprised by the smooth rocks and pebbles on the beach. As rocks bounce around the ocean, moving the sand and salt, it smooths them almost to a polish. It reminds me of the rocks I used to purchase to put in fish tanks.

Getting to Battle Creek Wayside Park is easy. From Coos County, head south on Highway 101 and drive for about an hour. When you see the Pacific Ocean, you have arrived. From most of Curry County or Northern California, head north on Highway 101. As soon as you hit Port Orford and go down the hill, it will be on your left.

Prehistoric Gardens

Story by Linda Pinkham

Dinosaurs lurk in an old-growth rain forest with 350-year-old trees, lush ferns and foliage plants

Kids, trailed by parents taking photos, excitedly follow a hand-drawn map from 40 years ago through the park that contains 23 life-size, prehistoric reptiles tucked amidst and sometimes towering above the abundant growth of native plants.

Both plants and dinosaurs have a long history at this place located halfway between Gold Beach and Port Orford on U.S. Highway 101.

Prehistoric Gardens, after 65 years in business, is still a famous roadside attraction that is now owned and managed by Kiki McGrath. The site is a labor of love of McGrath's family since opening in 1955. Her grandfather, Ernie Nelson, at the age of 47, and his wife Kari sold his accounting business and their Eugene home in the early 1950s to purchase the original 77 acres, according to the documentary "Strange Inheritance: Dino Park."

Nelson dreamed of creating a roadside attraction filled with dinosaurs.

"When you have an absolute passion for something, you think other people feel the same way you do," said his daughter Bennie Worthington in the documentary.

The gamble paid off as the U.S. highway system was developed, travel by auto became popular, and roadside attractions were prolific and popular. McGrath says during the summer season, visitors still number 200 a day.

The life-size dinosaurs are constructed with steel frames with metal lathe that is molded over the frame, then they are plastered with cement and painted. The first sculpture Nelson made, and the largest, is a Brachiosaurus that is 46 feet tall and 86 feet long. It took him 4 years to build it and required constructing a scaffold to do the work. "The Brachiosaurus was his pride and joy," said McGrath, pointing to a framed photo of him standing beneath the creature between its front legs.

An interpretive sign informs guests that the largest dinosaur's live weight was estimated to be 85 tons, and he was a plant-eater from the Cretaceous period — about 125 million years ago.

The park signage provides fun facts about each of the sculptures, as well as all the indigenous plants. A spring-fed creek meanders through the grounds, with an accessible path that winds past each vignette.

Nelson engineered the sculptures based on his drawings of skeletal remains and fossils found and placed in natural history museums.

"He always drew," Worthington said in the documentary. "He came out of the womb with a pen."

Over 30 years, Nelson constructed 23 dinosaurs.

While the sculptures are scientifically correct, the paint colors were designed to be fanciful, attractive and photogenic as a tourist attraction.

"People would ask him 'How did you know what colors they were?' and he said, 'Well no one knows. It's the artist behind the paintbrush.' Birds are very colorful, lizards are very colorful, but we don't know," McGrath said.

With an average rainfall of between 6 and 10 feet per year, ferns grow to gigantic size and even the common skunk cabbage develops huge tropical leaves. Known as a temperate zone rainforest, this primeval garden developed because of its location; nestled in a valley pocket and therefore protected from the fierce winter storms that sweep the Pacific.

The landscaping requires a lot of upkeep.

"You don't have to water anything but we do have to cut things back when it starts growing," she said. "Some of the skunk cabbage leaves get to be about 7 feet tall."

The dinosaurs also have upkeep. During a wind storm over the winter, one of the giant trees fell in the park on two of the sculptures. They are in the process of being repaired.

A small gift shop on the property has souvenirs for dinosaur lovers of all ages, from plush toys and coloring books for kids to fossils, agates, apparel and more for "kids" of all ages.

Over the years, family members have helped operate the park. McGrath's mother worked in the gift shop for a long time, and her uncle helped with building some of the park's features. McGrath has worked at the park for 40 years.

"It's a lot of work," she said. Her grandparents have been gone for 21 years.

According to "Strange Inheritance," Nelson passed away in 1999 at the age of 91. His wife Kari died soon afterward. The property was left to McGrath, her mother and her uncle. The property was listed for sale, but Kiki decided she didn't want to sell the park. The acreage was split up, with 33 acres containing the park going to Kiki. The other 44 acres sold for $1.6 million.

"I'd like to keep the legacy going," McGrath said. She is confident that her daughter and son would keep it going after she retires.

The park is open daily in winter (except during extreme weather) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and until 6 p.m. in summer. To learn more, visit www.prehistoricgardens.com.

Scenic Rivers

of Port Orford

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

Just a few miles to the north of Port Orford are two beautiful rivers, full of outdoor recreational opportunities. Elk River and Sixes River are both perfect locations for a variety of activities, like fishing, swimming, boating and more. The two rivers wind through Rogue River-Siskiyou National Forest, eventually entering into the Pacific Ocean.

ELK RIVER

Roughly three miles north of Port Orford, the protected Elk River flows freely through the stunning old-growth forests. It is nationally designated as "Wild and Scenic". This designation is part of the National Wild and Scenic River System which was created by the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act of 1968. This Act came about in order to ensure certain rivers are preserved due to their amazing natural qualities, as well as their cultural and recreational values.

Elk River is known for its fisheries and spectacular water quality. Originating at Salmon Mountain and Grassy Knob Wilderness, the river spans for about 30 miles through the Rogue River-Siskiyou National Forest before it meets the Pacific Ocean, spilling out one mile south of Cape Blanco, near Port Orford.

The striking emerald-green water of the river, surrounded by the scenic landscape, make this one unbelievably beautiful location. While the lower portion of the river is private land, the upper segment has been classified as recreational, allowing for visitors to enjoy its natural beauty any time they wish.

A mixture of wild and hatchery salmon can be found in the river. The Elk River Hatchery was built in 1968 and is operated by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife. The hatchery produces salmon and steelhead smolts, and rainbow trout. After the first heavy rainfall of the season, fish move into the mouth of the river and can be caught by fishing on the banks or by drift boat.

Swimming locations along the river can be found at recreation and campground sites. Besides swimming and fishing, Elk River is also a great place for rock hunters. White quartz, green and red jasper, agate and petrified wood can be found along the banks and river bottom.

The US Forest Service allows for people to collect only small amounts of rocks and minerals for personal use. People can also only collect on the 17-mile portion of the river, starting at the confluence of the North and South Fork, to the Elk River Fish Hatchery.

SIXES RIVER

This pristine river is located about five miles north of Port Orford, and is a favorite for fishing and mining. Two-thirds of the river is on private land, leaving a small portion for public use. Access can be found by going through the Cape Blanco State Park at the Edison Creek Campground.

The scenic Sixes River runs through the Rogue River-Siskiyou National Forest, flowing for over thirty miles before it opens up into the Pacific Ocean. This gorgeous river is relatively calm, so it's perfect for swimming, boating, and kayaking or if you're just wanting to spend the day to reconnect with nature on the river's serene water.

Fishing season officially begins once the season has had its first heavy rainfall and closes at the end of the year. Sixes River is home to Chinook and coho Salmon, as well as steelhead and cutthroat trout. Fishing can only be done on the lower 16 miles of the river and bank access is limited. Regulations and deadlines must be followed at all times when fishing on the river.

The Sixes River is known to have traces of gold, as well as copper, silver, iron and pyrite, that have washed down from Iron Mountain. So for those who love gold panning, you're going to want to spend some time here, just make sure you're in the proper location to do so and not on private land.

Recreational mining is restricted when salmon are actively spawning in the river, which occurs from fall to mid-summer. Double checking with the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife is advised before doing any mining.

Like Elk River, Sixes River also has white quartz, green and red jasper, agate and petrified wood along its banks and the river's bottom. This river will be a delight for rock lovers of all ages to explore and hunt for those precious rocks.

Gold Beach

Gold Beach was named for the sparkling nuggets that were found on the beaches here in the mid-1800s after the mighty Rogue River left the gold as souvenirs. The rush was on!

Today this beautiful seaside town boasts more sandy beaches than any place else in the state of Oregon and is a must see destination point for fishing, hiking, biking, and camping.

Points of Interest

Isaac Lee Patterson Bridge walk

Park at the Port of Gold Beach near the historic Mary D. Hume shipwreck and follow the paved path that skirts the edge of the Rogue River and offers breathtaking views of the river and the bay, and a unique perspective of the majestic Patterson Memorial Bridge, built in 1932.

Visitors will spy mud swallow nests on the underneath side of the bridge and catch a glimpse of sea lions basking in the sun, gulls diving for dinner, and proud fishermen holding up their catch of giant salmon.

Agness

Motorists can take a right on Jerry's Flat Road at the Isaac Lee Patterson Bridge and head 35 wandering miles up river to the small rural town of Agness located near the confluence of two Wild and Scenic rivers—the Lower Rogue and the Illinois.

Stop by the historic Cougar Lane Lodge and Store where tasty barbecue and blackberry cobbler await visitors.

Take several trails down to the Rogue River for a swim or to watch kayakers and jetboats zoom by.

The Agness-Illahe Museum, 34470 Agness-Illahe Road, open from May through September, offers petroglyphs and Native American artifacts, and information and displays about the history of the Civilian Conservation Corps, fishing, mining and settlement. Call: 541-247-2014.

Play hide-and-seek and enjoy a barbecue. The popular park at 94255 Caughell St. is a perfect place to escape the chilly breeze and enjoy amenities such as covered and open picnic facilities, tennis courts, walking paths and a "Kid Castle" play structure.

JET BOATS

Experience the very definition of the Wild Rivers Coast

on jet boat tours of the Rogue and Klamath rivers.

Jerry's Rogue Jets & Rogue River Mail Boats Embark on a Gold Beach-based jet boat tour on the mighty Rogue River — one of the original eight Wild Rivers designated in 1968 for federal protection — with Jerry's Rogue Jets and Mail Boats.

In the 1940s and '50s, the original Rogue River boat tours traveled only 32 miles upriver to the town of Agness. A lunch break at one of the Agness lodges was routine; then the boat traveled downstream back to Gold Beach. In the mid-1960s the advent of Hydro-Jets enabled boatmen to test their nerves in the 20-mile wild section, which is filled with boiling white water rapids.

Jerry's Rogue Jets has been in operation since 1958 and Rogue Mail Boats has been in operation since the 1930s. The two companies joined forces in 2010 and now offer three river tours: the original 64-mile scenic tour to Agness and the more action-filled 80- and 104-mile white-water tours. The 104-mile trip takes the river traveler to the rugged, boulder-filled Blossom Bar rapid, the end of the power-boat-navigable portion of the river.

All excursions return to the small hamlet of Agness for the daily lunch and dinner stop and rest breaks. Three lodges — Cougar Lane, Singing Springs and Lucas Lodge offer a variety of meal service options.

The Rogue River canyon abounds in a variety of native wildlife. All river tours are hosted and narrated by veteran river pilots who spot wildlife and will maneuver the boat for prime photo opportunities. Hydro-Jet technology allows the fully loaded vessels to skim the shallow riffles effortlessly.

Jerry's Rogue Jets and Mail Boats operate between May 1 and Oct. 14 and their office and 60,000-square-foot asphalt customer parking lot is located along Highway 101 at the north end of Gold Beach at 29985 Harbor Way at the Port of Gold Beach. Also featured on their property is a free Rogue River museum, open year-round, which captures the rich history of the Rogue canyon.

For information, call (800) 451-3645 or visit <http://www.roguejets.com>.

Klamath Jet Boat Tours
During the 45-mile, two-hour round-trip excursion along the Klamath River, an experienced captain and narrator describes the river's rich history, local Native American culture, and thriving wildlife. See if you can spot a bear, blacktail deer, elk, soaring osprey, eagles, hawks, otters, mink and many other varieties of wildlife by looking carefully along the riverbanks.

From May 1 to Sept. 30, tours run daily from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m., 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Tickets are $47 for adults, $42 for seniors and military, $37 for teens, $27 for children 4 to 11, children under 4 years old are free. Registration is available by phone at (800) 887-JETS or www.jetboattours.com. It also offers shuttles upriver to the Rivers West Lodge.

The journey begins at the Klamath estuary called "Rekwoi," the Indian name for where the fresh water meets the Pacific Ocean.

Captains will provide a fully narrated river trip with plenty of stops to photograph spectacular vistas and wildlife. Bears are often seen feeding along the banks of the river on berries, fish and grubs. Ospreys return in April to their nesting area of the Klamath River from as far south as Brazil.

Klamath mornings and evenings are typically cool or overcast near the coast, so dress warmly in layers. As you travel upriver, be prepared to shed some clothing as the day heats up; hats and sunglasses are recommended.

Information provided by www.jetboattours.com. Blue Creek Guide Service Blue Creek Guide Service does cultural jet boat tours in addition to fly fishing for salmon and steelhead on the Klamath River. Pergish Carlson will take people about 25 miles upriver to Coon Creek. Along the trip, people can see eagles, bear, deer and turtles.

BRIDGES OF CURRY COUNTY

Bridges can be utilitarian - connecting one place to another over an obstacle of water - or they can be timeless, like the Bridges of Curry County.

"People are drawn to beautiful places," said Spirit Meller, a Brookings-based architect who drives over one of the nine Curry County bridges on his way to work each day.

"These bridges, most of them built in the late 1920's and early 1930's, are almost 100 years old," he added. "They remind us that multi-generational structures are not just about function, they are an investment."

According to the site Bridgehunter.com, there are nine functioning bridges in Curry County, dating as far back as 1924 and the most recent to 1998.

From the Reinhart Creek Bridge with its warren deck truss bridge - which is an industry-specific way of saying it employs weight-saving design elements based upon equilateral triangles - to the Isaac Lee Patterson Bridge over the Rogue River in Gold Beach - the varying design styles don't disappoint. "The bridges are an undiscovered part of the Oregon Coast," said Robert Hadlow, a historian with the Oregon Department of Transportation and author of Elegant Arches, Soaring Spans: McCullough, Oregon's Master Bridge Builder.

Much of the credit to the impressive design styles of many of Oregon's bridges goes to Conde B. McCullough. The Dakota-territory native moved to Oregon in 1916, where for 18 years he was head of bridge design and construction for the Oregon State Highway Department, and is credited with building hundreds of custom-designed spans using efficiency, sound economics and architectural elegance, according to Hadlow.

"He was a force to be reckoned with," said Hadlow. "In terms of engineering, he was really pushing the envelope."

Four of the nine Curry County bridges were designed by McCullough. They include the bridges of Euchre Creek; Hunter Creek; Myers Creek and the Isaac Lee Patterson Bridge - sometimes referred to as the Wedderburn or Rogue River Bridge.

According to Hadlow, the Isaac Lee Patterson Bridge is considered to be among the six major bridges designed by McCullough, and was part of a broader push to span the three bays and three river estuaries that relied on outmoded ferry service along the highway.

A quick read on the Bridgehunter.com website describes the bridge as: Consisting of seven reinforced concrete deck arches. It was the first structure in the US constructed with the Freyssinet method of arch ring decentering and stress control, named after its French inventor. The American Society of Civil Engineers designated the bridge a National Historic Civil Engineering Landmark in 1982, and the success of the bridge led to the widespread use of prestressing techniques in concrete construction. The structure is dedicated to Isaac Lee Patterson, the Oregon governor who promoted its construction.

The Isaac Lee Patterson Bridge also features obelisk monuments - design styles that can best be described as the Art Deco included in the construction of the New York Empire State Building.

Driving along the idyllic coast line, where Redwood trees meet rocky, turbulent shores, it might be easy to go over the crossings of the other five, lesser-known bridges of Curry County with hardly a notice. But that, said Meller, would be a mistake. Take, for instance, the Thomas Creek Bridge - which bills itself as the highest bridge in Oregon at 345 feet - and is located eight miles north of Brookings.

"It's a super cool bridge," said Meller. "My girls say that when we cross it, it feels like we are driving to the end of the world."

The Thomas Creek Bridge includes a triple span deck truss that sits over the ocean, along coastal route 101, and is often covered in a blanket of heavy fog. The Bridge was built by engineer Ivan D. Merchant, who also designed the North and South Umpqua River I-5 bridges and the Astoria-Megler bridge over the mouth of the Columbia River.

The only drawback is that the Thomas Creek bridge can be difficult to photograph from below because most of the trails end towards the end of a precarious cliff. There is parking on both ends of the bridge, however, with trails to the south side.

There is also the Bush Creek Bridge, which is the work of engineer Robert Kaspari and is located in Humbug Mountain State Park. As the most recently-constructed of the Curry County bridges, it is the first bridge in Oregon to use stainless steel reinforcement in the deck and beams, and microsilica modified concrete for general construction - a plus considering the debilitating salt-winds that can rust and crumble apart some of the older bridge designs. Lastly, there is Lobster Creek Bridge, which was designed by senior engineer Henry R. Angwin in 1959 utilizing a riveted, 10-panel Parker through truss reminiscent of an elevated railroad crossing.

Author Robert James Waller wrote in his book, The Bridges of Madison County, "First you must have the images, then come the words."

Words...whether they describe elegant arches with soaring spans, Gothic or Art Deco-infused designs, or stainless steel reinforcement, the images of the Curry County Bridges are spectacular from one to the next.

Journey along the Samuel H. Boardman

State Scenic Corridor for an adventure unlike any other

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

You may have heard of the Samuel H. Boardman State Scenic Corridor before or maybe you're hearing it for the first time. Either way, chances are that you're among the many who have never actually been there, but let's change that.

The 12-mile corridor is a linear park, named in honor of Samuel H. Boardman who was the first Oregon Parks superintendent. Located just north of Brookings, along Highway 101 on the southwestern corner of Oregon, this park will quickly capture your heart.

There are a few ways you can experience the corridor, start at either the north or south end and hike them all or stop at the parking areas along the way to enjoy what each location has to offer.

Regardless of how you decide to take on this adventure, you're going to want to give yourself a full day to explore. The trails vary in difficulty and length so make sure to plan ahead, so as to not find yourself on a trail beyond what you were looking for.

Starting at the north end of this scenic corridor is the natural choice for anyone driving down to it. So if you're like me, you'll find yourself beginning this unforgettable journey at Arch Rock.

The short path out leads through the trees and gives you views beyond their branches of the iconic Arch Rock as it sits a distance out in the ocean below.

From there head down to Secret Beach or use the pull out at Thunder Rock Cove to hike down to this beautiful sandy hideaway. Be sure to follow the trail that takes you down to the actual beach if you'd like to experience more than just the views from above.

As you continue on your exploration, you will eventually find yourself at one of the most beautiful parts of the corridor and one of the most well-known areas, Natural Bridges. The short trail can be steep in places, making it challenging for some. For those able to make the hike, it will be more than worth it.

Once you make it out to the Natural Bridges, you will see why this is one of the most popular areas on the corridor. It almost feels magical looking out at the ocean and the rocks carved by it. It would be easy to just stay in this one place for hours, as a sense of peace and wonder settles in and time no longer matters.

If you're able to bring yourself to leave this amazing place, then continue on to China Beach before making your way to the Indian Sands Trail. The sand here is unique as it comes from the sandstone instead of the ocean. You can continue on a gorgeous trail down to Whaleshead Beach.

Whaleshead Beach has spectacular views and a nice flat path to the beach, making it the perfect location to relax for a bit. The oceanfront picnic area is also a great spot to sit and have a snack. You will be sure to enjoy the views while you satisfy the hunger you're undoubtedly feeling at this point.

You're nearly at the end of the corridor, with just a few beautiful stops left to make. House Rock will be the next area you come across. Here a memorial commemorates Samuel H. Boardman. A four mile trail leads you on to Cape Ferrelo. This trail has many small paths along the way that take you down to secluded beaches so be sure to watch out for these hidden gems.

If you take the mile-long hike out to the rugged coastline at the Cape Ferrelo Viewpoint you will find yet another breathtaking view and if timed right, you might just see the most beautiful sunset over the ocean you've ever seen. If you're hiking in the fall or spring you could also catch a glimpse of the migrating whales.

The final destination on this scenic corridor is Lone Ranch. This lovely beach stroll is an easy yet alluring walk, mostly along the beach. It's a great way to end your adventure along the corridor.

There are so many other wonderful stops along the way that it's hard to list them all. Each step seemed to open up a new amazing view surrounded by enchanting forests or a hidden path down to another dazzling beach. This is easily one of the best places to visit if you're up for some hiking and adventuring along the coast.

For more information call: 800-551-6949 or visit: www.StateParks.Oregon.gov and search for the Samuel H. Boardman State Scenic Corridor. On the site you will even be able to find a brochure outlining the trails as well as plenty of important additional information.

Marine Mammals

always a delight

By David Rupkalvis Country Media, Inc.

Exploring the southern coast of Oregon and the northern coast of California allows those of us lucky enough to live here the opportunity to see some amazing things.

We are fortunate to live in one of the most amazing places in the world, a place where Mother Nature makes every day look like a work of art.

As my family and I drive around, it is still common to hear us oohing and awing just because of the scenery. Where else in the world can you see deep into the forest and be on the beach only minutes later?

While I have written repeatedly about the amazing things we can see here, one thing I've seen a few times has left me in awe. As I've traveled the area, I feel fortunate that I've been able to see some amazing marine mammals. Seals, sea lions and more always make me stop every time I see one.

Days after I moved to Oregon, I made a trip to Brookings and Crescent City, California with my boss. While showing me around Crescent City, we stopped at the harbor, and I heard the distinct sounds of sea lions. But despite looking for 10 minutes, I never saw one.

That just made me determined to get closer to the marine mammals. After talking to some people at my office, I was told to the top of Cape Arago and look around. So, of course, I did. At the very top, if you park and go to the right, following the trails as far they go, the trail ends overlooking some rocks in the ocean.

The day I went up, the rocks were covered with seals and sea lions. I admit, I jumped the fence to get a closer look, and it was pretty amazing. While many of the animals were sunning on the rocks, there were many jumping in and out of the water. I stood there for 20 minutes, just watching and listening to the animals living their lives.

But even then, the creatures were a long ways off. I could see them, I could hear them, but I didn't get a close-up experience.

A few weeks later, I was back in Crescent City, so I went back to the harbor and back on the hunt for the marine mammals. This time, I found them. At the edge of the harbor, the animals, mostly California sea lions, congregate on man-made rocks to sun. They could be seen clearly, but they were still a ways off.

Since then, every time I go to Crescent City, I head back to the harbor, just in case.

Persistence paid off two times. Once I went to the harbor and got out and started walking around. As I moved around the harbor, I noticed something was in the water, and it was something big.

Before long, I learned what it was. Seals were swimming through the water around the boats in a hunt for fish in the harbor. For close to an hour, I walked around watching as the seals, lots of seals, went up and down in the water. The only bad part is actually getting a good picture of the seals was difficult.

I tried repeatedly, but it felt like every time I hit the button to snap a photo, the seals went down into the water. I tried to guess where they might come up and failed every time there, too.

I was able to get some photos from the top of the harbor, but if the seals noticed I or anyone else, was close by, they quickly disappeared into the depths.

I found out later, schools of fish swim into the harbor as a way of evading larger fish that are hunting. In doing so, they swam right into a trap, with the seals waiting to eat.

It was quite an experience to be that close as seals gorged themselves.

A little while later, I was back in Crescent City and I went back to where I first noticed the sea lions. This time I was in for quite the surprise. Whereas the sea lions had been out in the water before, this time they were sunning on a pier right on shore.

I was able to get so close to the animals, I could even smell them. For the record, it is not a pleasant smell.

But from that distance, I and others stood in awe watching creatures bigger than I am moving easily in and out of the water and scrambling quickly onto the pier. I enjoyed every minute of it, and send dozens of photos to my wife.

I can't give you a specific spot to find marine mammals for certainty, but they are out there. Crescent City seems to have a steady dose, they can be seen and heard around Coos Bay, one time we even saw a bunch of seals sunning in Gold Beach.

If you want to see marine mammals for yourself, just keep your eyes peeled when moving around the ocean. One time I saw a whole herd sunning on the beach between Gold Beach and Port Orford. I would suggest listening, too. You often hear them before you can see them. If you're lucky, you might even get close enough to smell them.

We all know there are animals in the ocean that are bigger than we are. But seeing one is rare, with the exception of the sea lions that seem to enjoy showing off in close proximity.

Lighthouses of Southern Oregon and Northern California

Out of Mother Nature's fury along these 100 nautical miles of beautiful, rugged coastline has arisen a string of lighthouses so diverse and compelling in nature that they annually attract hundreds of thousands of admirers.

These lighthouses include the St. George Reef Lighthouse and Battery Point Lighthouse at Crescent City, Cape Blanco Lighthouse near the Sixes River north of Port Orford, Coquille River Lighthouse at Bandon, and Cape Arago Lighthouse near the entrance of Coos Bay.

ST. GEORGE REEF LIGHTHOUSE

Neither cozy nor readily visible, St. George Reef Lighthouse sits precariously on a rock 6 miles off the coast of Crescent City in some of the most treacherous waters on the West Coast. Its construction was inspired by the Brother Jonathan disaster, which claimed the lives of nearly 200 passengers and crewmen. It took 11 years to complete in 1892.

Built on a 70-foot-high concrete pier and equipped with a tower stretching upward to 134 feet, the lighthouse was considered one of the least desirable and most dangerous assignments for lighthouse keepers.

Decommissioned in 1975 and left for a time to fend for itself against battering seas, the lighthouse has now been rescued in stages by lighthouse and history buffs of the region.

Its French-made Fresnel Lens was removed and housed in the Del Norte County Historical Society Museum in 1983. In October 2002, a new light was installed in the rebuilt lantern room atop the lighthouse. The light is powered by a solar panel and wind generator.

Once manned and supplied by boom, derrick and prayer from lifeboats often bobbing dangerously in the sea, the lighthouse now is accessible only by helicopter. On a clear day, it's visible from points all along Pelican Bay, including Brookings, as a gray dot against the horizon.

The Del Norte County Historical Society Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday and Saturdays. Call (707) 464-3922.

BATTERY POINT LIGHTHOUSE

Much closer to shore in Crescent City is the Battery Point Lighthouse, which is accessible on foot when the tide is low. At high tide, Battery Point becomes an island.

Built in 1856 when Crescent City was becoming a bustling center for export of lumber to San Francisco and import of miners to Oregon gold fields, the lighthouse held its ground against seismic waves from the 1964 Alaska earthquake, which claimed 11 lives in Crescent City and wiped out 29 blocks of commercial and residential structures.

These days Battery Point Lighthouse houses exhibits from its storied past such as artifacts from the Brother Jonathan, the 1964 tsunami and a boat torpedoed in World War II.

Battery Point Lighthouse is open to visitors 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekends, tides permitting. The lighthouse is at the foot of A Street in Crescent City. Call (707) 464-3922.

CAPE BLANCO LIGHTHOUSE

Back on the Oregon side of the border, Cape Blanco Lighthouse holds distinction as the state's oldest continuously operated lighthouse since 1870, and its highest at 245 feet above sea level. The beacon's 59-foot tower beams signals 21 miles out to sea.

The lighthouse opens for tours on selected days from May through October, and volunteer guides from the Bureau of Land Management like to point out magnificent ocean vistas, including seven arch rocks on nearby Blanco Reef and Port Orford Reef.

Back in the pre-electricity days of diesel-fired lighting, Cape Blanco Lighthouse once had a keeper named James Langlois who spent 42 years lugging fuel up a 63-step spiral staircase to the tower. He retired in 1918, taking with him a state record for tenure that still stands.

COQUILLE RIVER LIGHTHOUSE

The Coquille River Lighthouse near

Bandon sits just a few feet above the waterline not far from the point where the river meets the Pacific. It had a brief but exciting history of operation. Commonly known to mariners of the day as the Bandon Light, the Coquille River Lighthouse was one of the state's last to go into operation in 1896 and one of the first to leave service in 1939. But during its years of operation, the Coquille River Lighthouse survived a fire in 1936 that wiped out Bandon, and was nearly rammed in the wreck of the C.A. Klose in 1903.

The low-slung lighthouse structure stood abandoned for more than 35 years until restored as a museum in 1975. Because of its picturesque setting, the lighthouse is a popular subject for photographers and landscape painters. It is easily reached by visitors through the entrance to Bullards Beach State Park north of Bandon.

Brookings

Find fantastic fun things to do in and around Brookings in spring and summer. Beachcomb, river swim, shop, hike, fish, surf, golf, birdwatch, picnic and ...

You could take at least a week to enjoy what the area has to offer. If you don't have that much time, here are a few places to go and sights to see that can be accomplished in one day.

Points of Interest

CHETCO POINT PARK

It's tucked behind a sewage plant, but don't let that deter you — Chetco Point Park has one of the most scenic views within Brookings city limits.

A 20-minute walk from city hall, the park's main path winds down the side of a steep hill, where explorers can choose from different options. Those who go to the beach can wander among the tide pools filled with sea anemones and hermit crabs. Adventurous visitors can head up a short wooded trail that will take them across a bridge and onto a bluff that juts out over the ocean, offering a unique look at the rocky coastline.

HARRIS BEACH

A favorite for tourists and locals, Harris Beach has something to do for everyone.

Beachcomb or explore the unique rock formations dotting the sand or hike the short, beautiful trails surrounding the park — including the steep Harris Butte, which overlooks the entire beach. The park also has ample space for both tent and RV camping, as well as picnic space for daytime visitors.

PORT OF BROOKINGS HARBOR

It's hard to pick one just attraction here — but you can make a day out of exploring them all. At the south end of the harbor, Sporthaven Beach has ample space for RV camping and is a popular surfing destination. You can stand on the jetty and watch both fishing and sport boats enter and leave the harbor, or take a leisurely stroll on the boardwalk. It's also a good place to view many different kinds of wildlife — whales, seals and sea lions, pelicans and osprey, to name a few. The port has a variety of restaurants and bars, and plenty of hotels for overnight visitors. Visit www.portofbrookingsharbor.com for more details.

Oregon Beaches

The Wild Rivers Coast has some of the best beach access anywhere in the world. Not only are the waves and surf a breathtaking experience, incomparable sunsets and beachcombing treasures abound.

Prior to heading for the beach to visit tidal life, check the tide tables. When possible, it's best to arrive an hour prior to low tide, as the water is still going out. Once the tide begins to come back in, it seems to return quickly. Be cautious of waves. You don't want to be stranded on a rock.

The waters off of this coast are not only cold, but there are areas with strong undercurrents. Care too, should be taken with your footing when traversing across the rocks. Many are slippery with seaweed.

The tidepools' environment is delicate. Remember, you're visiting another living society's home. If you lift up a rock to look underneath, return it to its original spot — that minimizes the effect you will have on the tidepool's life.

To find a good spot to explore, search for the rocky areas —there are many in the Wild Rivers Coast.

BANDON STATE NATURAL AREA

Located along Bandon's Beach Loop Road, there are several locations with beach access, picnicking, horseback riding and unsurpassed views. Parking is ample at all locations.

FACE ROCK SCENIC VIEWPOINT

There is an American Indian legend about this spot. Some say they hear a maiden's voice on the wind, and standing on the cliff overlooking the ocean you can easily pick out the face on Face Rock. There is a well-kept trail to the beach, and several rocky intertidal areas to explore at low tide.

BULLARDS BEACH

This large park, located just two miles north of Bandon features a campground nestled among shore pines and protected from the strong ocean breezes. Take a walk or bike ride on the mostly paved pathways to the beach that weaves through the open, grassy fields and lowland forest across a plain to the sandy dunes. All along the path are views of the Coquille River. Across the river is Bandon Marsh National Wildlife Refuge, sporting a variety of wildlife. The historic Coquille River Lighthouse is nearby.

ROCKY POINT

(Two miles south of Port Orford): Rocky Point features good access to tidepools and a clamming area. Be aware of potential red tides when harvesting clams and always check the local rules and regulations.

HUBBARD CREEK

(One mile south of Port Orford): This is a popular spot for surfers who are often seen in their wetsuits in the surf.

BATTLE ROCK

(Location of the Port Orford Visitors' Center): Battle Rock features a wayfinder with plenty of parking and easy trails to the beach. There is also some picnicking available in this day use area as well as restrooms.

PORT OF PORT ORFORD

The fishermen's memorial and a small, protected beach is offered here, framed by the port docks and Point Orford.

PARADISE POINT

(On the north side of Port Orford): Another part of Oregon's State Parks system, Paradise Point has a nice beach for walking.

CAPE BLANCO STATE PARK

(Six miles north of Port Orford): beach access, RV and tent camping spots, cabin rentals and even an equestrian camp are located here, in addition to the lighthouse and historic Hughes House.

HUMBUG MOUNTAIN STATE PARK

(South of Port Orford): Beach access through a trail which traverses under Highway 101. Camping spots, day use area and trail to the top of Humbug Mountain.

FLORAS LAKE

(Located north of Port Orford): This area features a trail which begins at Floras Lake and continues until an expanse of ocean beach is accessible. A county park is located at the area for those wishing to camp.

OLD COAST ROAD

(Five miles north of Gold Beach): There are several areas for beach access along this stretch of one-lane road. They include Otter Point, with trails to the beach and a phenomenal view from Otter Point itself, several segments of the Coast Trail and a trail to Bailey Beach.

BEACH ROAD

In Gold Beach, west of the airport): The beach road area offers multiple areas to access the beach and highlights the Port of Gold Beach Memorial.

NORTH AND SOUTH JETTIES OF THE ROGUE RIVER

Both of these areas have beach access with surfers trying their luck near the south jetty. Driftwood is abundant here.

SOUTH BEACH PARK

(South end of Gold Beach): A small city park with handicapped beach access, this area also features plenty of parking, swings and barbecues, picnic tables and a sand volleyball court.

PISTOL RIVER STATE PARK

(At the mouth of Pistol River): Access to the beach, plenty of parking and a view of Crook Point.

MYERS CREEK BEACH

(Seven miles south of Gold Beach): Part of the Oregon State Parks system and one of the most photographed beaches in the world, Myers Creek features prominent sea stacks, tidepools, several turnouts for parking, windsurfing and access through several trails to the beach.

SAMUEL H. BOARDMAN STATE PARK

Just north of Brookings, this 11-mile stretch of coastline offers stunning views and developed park areas. The area includes sections of the Oregon Coast Trail, with smaller trails leading down to isolated, pristine beaches.

HARRIS BEACH STATE PARK

Offers good parking, picnic tables and restrooms, a shower to wash sand off shoes and feet, and long stretches of scenic beaches. A well-marked park entrance at the north end of Brookings provides vehicle access to the beach.

CHETCO POINT

Is an unlikely location behind the city wastewater treatment plant, but offers some of the most interesting, accessible and little-used exploring areas. Good trails lead from a parking area to a quiet beach or to windswept bluffs above the ocean. To get there, take Wharf Street off Railroad Avenue.

OPHIR REST AREA

(Eight miles north of Gold Beach): Beach access, picnicking, restrooms.

SPORTHAVEN BEACH

At the Port of Brookings-Harbor is a favorite of local residents. It's a good place to watch boat activity at the Chetco River bar, or to check ocean conditions. The beach also fronts a busy RV park during summer months, and many area visitors enjoy walking the beach there. Local surfers also favor ocean waves in the area of the south jetty. To get there from Brookings, turn right at the south end of the B.A. (Dot) Martin Bridge across the Chetco River. Follow Lower Harbor Road about a mile to the beach.

MCVAY PARK

Is on Oceanview Drive in Harbor, approximately 3.5 miles south of Port of Brookings Harbor. The park features a grassy field with a trail leading down a steep bluff to the beach. A dog park, with a large, fenced area, is available, as are disc golf opportunities. To get to McVay Park, drive south of Brookings on Highway 101 to West Benham Lane. Turn right on Benham Lane, and then left at Oceanview Drive. Follow Oceanview Drive south through lily fields until you see a couple of massive rocks on the right. A gated drive provides vehicle access.

CRISSEY FIELD

Just a half-mile north of the Oregon/California border is the Crissey Field Welcome Center, where trails lead across sand dunes to a wide, sandy beach. To get there, drive south from Brookings on Highway 101 approximately five miles.

Hiouchi

Hiouchi lies in the heart of Del Norte County's tallest redwoods.

Situated on the north bank of the Smith River, a vast expanse of redwood forest park land lies to its south and west.

Some of it straddles U.S. 199 while the rest is opposite Hiouchi on the other side of the Smith, where Howland Hill Road meanders through old-growth stands with numerous trailheads along the way. At the west end of Hiouchi on U.S. 199 there is a Redwood Parks visitor center, and just a short jog down the street is the entrance to one of the larger campgrounds in the Redwood Parks.

Lying just below the Hiouchi Forks, where the Smith River and South Fork Smith River converge, Hiouchi serves as the gateway to the many wonders lying in South Fork Canyon and the secluded wildlands beyond. Below the Forks, the mainstem river widens considerably. Here there is easy tubing and drift boats can put in to fish for salmon and trout.

Points of Interest

Jedediah Smith Redwoods State park

This park, like the river that runs through it, gets its name from Jedediah Smith, the first European known to have crossed the Sierra Nevada to the Pacific Coast. Smith and a group of fur trappers who journeyed with him reached the Smith River in 1828. 101 years later, the state park was established, protecting 10,000 acres of ancient forest.

SMITH RIVER

Locals prize the pristine, undammed Smith River for its fishing, summer swimming, kayaking, rafting and tubing. There are a number of beaches located around the Forks, one off the highway, others on South Fork Road, and are marked with road signs.

SOUTH FORK AND BEYOND

Turn off U.S. 199 a mile east of Hiouchi onto South Fork Road to find a more secluded river experience, with several swimming holes and kayak put-ins along the 13-mile, 30-minute drive through the South Fork Smith River's steep canyon.

At the end of South Fork Road, a left turn onto French Hill Road will take visitors through the lush forests along Hurdygurdy Creek and up into the mountains. Near the turn is Big Flat Campground, the kind of place where the night sky is filled with brilliant stars and the only sounds are of breezes caressing the trees and creek water babbling through an adjacent ravine.

Hidden Gems

Historic Hiouchi Cafe

Nestled between the forks of the Smith River and majestic redwood groves of Jed Smith State Park lies the local dining favorite Hiouchi Cafe.

Serving plate-dwarfing pancakes since 1931, the Cafe is the perfect pit stop for travelers of scenic U.S. 199. Local Favorite: Smoked pork chop and eggs. Smoked 30 miles north at Taylor's Sausage in Cave Junction, Oregon, these chops have been converting ham and egg followers since they were added to the menu.

A classic local eatery for a weekend brunch with friends. Fishers of the mighty Smith River often begin and end their day here, complete with tales about the ones that got away.

G-O Road

Was intended to be a two-lane, paved segment of a 55-mile road between the towns of Gasquet and Orleans to provide logging access to the area; however its construction was opposed by Native Americans on the grounds that it violated sacred lands, and they took their case to court, ultimately losing an appeal by the federal government in the Supreme Court. Sympathetic legislators then secured wilderness designations that barred the area from logging, and the road was never completed. Nevertheless, there are 16 miles of paved road that begin near the end of South Fork Road and follow a series of ridgetops with mountain views in all directions.

The delicious Hiouchi Cafe

Photos contributed by Kevin Findlay

By Sarah Kelly for Country Media, Inc.

The historic Hiouchi Cafe in Hiouchi, California, just 10 miles east of Crescent City, is a local staple. The iconic red painted building, located at 2095 on Highway 199, has gone through many changes over the years since it was first built in 1931. When it was originally built the building served the area as a gas station with a garage, grocery store and bait shop. This all-purpose business was eventually converted into a bar when they removed the gas pumps and built stills in the back.

Over time, the bar came to an end and the Hiouchi Cafe took its place. The cafe sits among the beautiful Redwoods in Northern California, just down the road from the popular Smith River. According to General Manager, Kevin Findlay, the cafe was remodeled in 2020. Due to COVID lockdowns the cafe was not able to have customers inside. As a result, they decided it was the perfect opportunity to renovate.

"We added a bigger prep kitchen with walk-in coolers. ... We [also] increased the dining space. It used to be a 6-foot kitchen and now we have a 20-foot one and then just a 6-foot counter and now we have 36 feet of counter space," said Findlay. The larger spaces allow for the cafe to better accommodate the large volume of customers the cafe regularly sees.

The cafe has both indoor and outdoor seating available to customers, with picnic tables for their outdoor dining guests. The pet-friendly cafe has plans to enclose their outdoor dining area, creating a new more comfortable environment. "We're going to build a back deck area with fire pits and cozy outdoor seating," indicated Findlay.

A unique event that Hiouchi Cafe hosts quarterly, by reservation only, is their wine dinners. For these special dinners they close down the restaurant, keeping it a private event. They partner with a local, or out of the area winery, where a representative brings seven of their wines. "[We] have them come talk about their seven wines and then we pair it with seven of our foods," Findlay said. The cafe also does catering for events on request.

What the cafe is most known for though is their large portions and 16-inch pancakes. Often feeding loggers and fisherman, the cafe likes to make sure they serve up dishes big enough to fill up all the hardworking people of the area. "Hardy good-sized country breakfasts with thick cut bacon... We make our gravy from scratch using Taylor Sausage. It's freshly made every morning. We make biscuits every day. We use Rumiano butter for our biscuits," said Findlay. "Fresh home cooked meals made from scratch, large portions, breakfast served all day... We're known for big hearty breakfasts up here."

Nothing showcases their large portions quite like the platter-sized pancakes they serve up to those wishing to conquer the enormous fluffy breakfast item. Many daring people come to try and finish the large pancake, not as a competition but as a personal achievement they can go home and brag about.

Each week, on Friday and Saturday night from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m., Hiouchi Cafe treats guests to dinners. The cafe does not take reservations, so be sure to get there quick in order to grab a table. On these days, they do still serve their regular breakfasts and lunches, opening at 7 a.m. Sundays through Thursdays they are open from 7 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Those wishing to eat the mouthwatering dishes may either dine in or get it to go by ordering over the phone or in person. Guests lucky enough to be staying at the Hiouchi Motel will receive a 10 percent discount on their meals at the cafe.

For more information check out their website: www.HiouchiCafe.com or call: (707) 458-3445. Information, as well as their menus, may also be found on their Facebook page: www.Facebook.com/HiouchiCafe.

Redwood Forests

of Del Norte and Humboldt counties

The region's rich history is inextricably tied to these ancient giants through the timber industry. Now, the trees are being preserved for current and future generations to inspire awe and wonder at any age. Compared to these aged, towering forests, we are all mere children.

Here's just a sampling of the adventures that await you:

Stout Grove

This easy trail boasts some of the largest and most impressive redwoods to be seen. The trailhead is located off Howland Hill Road east of Crescent City. Parking and restroom available.

The loop trail meanders alongside the sparkling blue-green Smith River. Ferns and clovers blanket the ground, giving the grove an other-worldly feel. The trail is short, but some longer options are available.

Check at a park information station for ranger-guided walks through Stout Grove.

Simpson-Reed Grove

This easy and highly accessible trail is one of the first that drivers come to after leaving Crescent City on U.S. Highway 199. Be cautious when driving this stretch about 5 miles from U.S. Highway 101, because there are often people crossing the road here.

In fact, the area is so congested that park officials have moved the Simpson-Reed Grove trailhead to a location off nearby Walker Road, which also leads to other old-growth redwood trails and a stretch of the Smith River.

Informative placards along the path educate hikers about redwood trees and other vegetation found there. The Peterson Memorial Loop can be taken to extend the hike through Simpson-Reed Grove. After crossing bridges over a babbling brook and experiencing the wonders of an ancient redwood forest, hikers can join back up with the main trail and finish the trek.

Boy Scout Trail

Off Howland Hill Road, the Boy Scout Trail (5.6 miles round-trip) is known for its forest of majestic redwoods as far as the eye can see.

And like a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow, Fern Falls treats hikers who make it to the end of this trail with the sight of cascading waters (more or less, depending on the season). The rainy winter season provides more of a rushing waterfall than the drier summer.

The Boy Scout Trail is not an easy trek, but it's well-maintained, making the hike only moderately difficult.

The feather in the cap of the Boy Scout Trail is the Boy Scout Tree, which is located off a short, unmarked side trail at 2.4 miles into the hike. So keep a sharp eye, because hikers do not want to miss this double-trunked giant! A small wooden sign is nailed to the tree, labeling it as "Boy Scout Tree."

Back on the main trail, hikers will enjoy (besides redwoods) the many varieties of fern, bigleaf maple, vine maple and Douglas firs.

Hiouchi Trail

This easy hike (4.2 miles round-trip) through Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park follows the pristine Smith River. The trailhead can be found just before the Hiouchi Bridge heading away from Crescent City on U.S. Highway 199. Parking is beside of the road.

The Hiouchi Trail explores some of the most beautiful old growth redwoods in the park while giving the hiker prime views of the turquoise waters of the Smith River.

Redwoods from your car

How can you see the best of the redwoods on one short drive that'll barely nudge your gas gauge? Three words: Howland Hill Road.

This unpaved but relatively sedan-friendly roadway is your route to old-growth redwood bliss whether you're looking for long, medium or short hiking paths. Or, don't even bother getting out of the car. The views from the road are that good.

South of downtown Crescent City but north of the harbor, turn east off of U.S. Highway 101 onto Elk Valley Road. Then turn right on Howland. The region's rich history is inextricably tied to these ancient giants through the timber industry. Now, the trees are being preserved for current and future generations to inspire awe and wonder at any age. Compared to these aged, towering forests, we are all mere children.

Fishing

OCEAN FISHING — California

Sport fishermen without a slip in Crescent City Harbor can get into the water from Citizens Dock and can head out to sea in search of whatever is in season from there.

Bottom fishing for rockfish and lingcod is generally one of the most reliable fisheries in Northern California, where black snappers in particular are always plentiful. The bottom fishing season in California generally runs from about May until the end of the year.

As bottom fishing opens every spring, the ocean salmon and pacific halibut seasons are quick to follow, usually starting in early May.

Usually both salmon and Pacific halibut seasons remain open through September, but in recent years regulators have elected to add in periodic closures (and a full closure for ocean salmon fishing in 2017) to help ease the fishing pressure on both species of fish.

Check with the California Department of Fish and Wildlife for current information on both fishing seasons.

Additionally, several other species of ocean fish are open year round, including California halibut, sharks (except for white sharks), surfperch, sturgeon and tuna (although tuna are generally only in the area for a few weeks in the fall).

Crabbing is also open year round in California but the most popularly targeted species of crab, Dungeness crab, are only open to recreational crabbers from early November until late in the summer.

For information about current and upcoming fishing seasons visit www.wildlife.ca.gov/Fishing/Ocean/Regulations/Fishing-Map/Northern

OCEAN FISHING — Oregon

There is always something in season for ocean anglers out of Oregon, with bottom fishing open all year long. Anglers out of Brookings Harbor can target rockfish and lingcod all year long and the fishing is generally pretty productive.

In 2017, the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife issued a rare closure of bottom fishing statewide due to the quota for several species being caught much quicker than expected, but the OFDW has since revised the daily catch limits with the hope of once again allowing year-round bottom fishing.

Pacific halibut seasons generally run from about May until November, but can be closed at any time during that season if the area's yearly quota is met.

The ocean salmon season (closed for all of 2017) usually starts sometime in May and runs into the fall.

Ocean seasons for Pacific halibut are usually set in March, while the ocean salmon season is announced sometime in April.

For more information about Oregon's ocean fishing seasons and regulations, visit www.dfw.state.or.us/re_sources/fishing/saltwater.asp

RIVER FISHING

Coquille River

Crabbing for Dungeness can be phenomenal in the Coquille bay at Bandon from the local crab dock in Old Town and near the Bullards State Beach boat ramp. Crabbers use crab pots, crab rings and Pineapple Butterfly Traps.

Chinook salmon start migrating upriver in robust numbers on the first full-moon cycle toward the end of August. This is an upriver trolling fishery. Anglers launch from Bullards State Beach at low tide and start trolling upriver using a Fish Flash and a cut-plug herring. The Rocky Point Boat Ramp is another popular boat launch facility to put in and take out.

A wild coho river fishery has also grown in popularity in recent years, starting in September. Be sure to check the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife for current bag limits.

Fantastic rockfish, lingcod, halibut, tuna and salmon fishing can also be found outside the Port of Bandon, with the primary charter boat operation being Prowler Charters, located in Old Town Bandon.

Crab gear, bait, tackle and excellent seafood dishes are provided at Tony's Crab Shack in Old Town Bandon.

Elk and Sixes Rivers

At the northern end of Curry County are two gems of the Pacific Northwest in the land that time forgot. The Elk and Sixes are sister streams that flow so close together, it would be hard not to mention one without the other.

The Elk River empties into the ocean south of Cape Blanco, while the Sixes River flows into the Pacific just a few miles north of Cape Blanco. Both are relatively short, but don't let their size fool you. Both rivers are known for having some of the latest runs of salmon on the Oregon Coast.

Generally speaking, the first salmon enter the river mouths in September and will progress upriver depending on the amount of rainfall.

Steelhead enter both systems around Thanksgiving and the runs peak around February.

The main float in the Elk is to put in at the Elk River Hatchery and take out at the RV park or float all the way down to Ironhead.

The main drift on the Sixes is to put in at Edson Creek and take out at either Mid-Drift, the Grange, or drift all the way downriver to the Hughes House. But if the winds are blowing downriver, do not drift below Highway 101. Instead, take out at the Grange. To check Elk River water conditions, call (541) 332-0405.

Lower Rogue River

There is something to fish for in the Lower Rogue River almost 12 months out of the year, from Foster Bar down to the mouth.

The first spring Chinook begin entering the mouth in late February and the run gradually builds, peaking into April and May.

The Rogue is famous for its large fall chinook, caught from July to October.

The traditional method used here is trolling a Rogue Bait Rig or a comparable spinnerbait rig, using an anchovy on the back two hooks. Coho salmon are frequently caught in the lower bay in September and October.

Boat launches are available at the county ramp, Jot's Resort and at Lex's Landing.

The winter steelhead run is quite prolific, as well. They enter the Rogue around Thanksgiving, depending on the water level.

Chetco River

Perhaps best known for its trophy chinook from 50 to 60 pounds, and for both wild and hatchery winter steelhead exceeding 20 pounds, the Chetco is also known for having the safest bar on the Oregon Coast.

In September, anglers in the estuary below the Highway 101 bridge begin trolling spinnerbait rigs and plug-cut herring for salmon averaging 28 pounds.

The salmon run starts petering out around mid-November, when winter steelhead begin dominating the river. By December a handful of anglers have usually landed several steelhead over 20 pounds. The run peaks in late February, but good numbers can be caught through March.

The wild and scenic section of the Chetco, above Ice Box, will leave you breathless. The best floats are from the South Fork down to Miller Bar, from Miller Bar down to Loeb State Park, or from Loeb State Park down to Social Security Bar.

Winchuck River

Fishing for salmon and steelhead is seasonal. Check ODFW regulations for updates. www.dfw.state.or.us

Smith River

Barbless hooks are mandatory when fishing the Smith. If the Chetco River gets blown out at about 10,000 cfs and has a chocolate-brown appearance, California's Smith River has an emerald green appearance and is plunkable the same day.

The Smith and Chetco rivers are similar in many ways. Both kick out trophy salmon and steelhead, and both empty into Pelican Bay. Salmon fishing usually picks up around September in spots like The Sand Hole, Cattle Crossing, The Piling Hole and at the mouth of Rowdy Creek.

Bobbers and sand shrimp/cocktails can be deadly. Early in the season, fish the north bank off of the Mouth of the Smith River Road, off Highway 101. Here, it is best to fish the outgoing tide and through low slack, where the river makes a slot.

Klamath River

Barbless hooks are also mandatory on the Klamath River. The Klamath starts fishing well around May for spring Chinook heading for the Trinity River. There is little bank access, so please don't launch here unless you have a sled with a full tank of gas.

Gasquet

Nestled in a green canyon along the banks of a tumbling river, Gasquet (pronounced “GAS-key”) is the gateway to the Smith River National Recreation Area, which encompasses much of the mountainous Smith River watershed.

Although Gasquet began as a mining community in the 19th Century, its value as a travel destination was quickly realized, and its founder, Horace Gasquet, built up the town as a health resort.

Gasquet continues to draw nature lovers to its beauty: to hike and bike the many trails that cross steep and scenic Siskiyou Mountain ridges and descend into the range’s characteristically lush, narrow canyons; to kayak and raft down the Smith River’s rapids and swim in the river’s pristine waters; and to take driving tours into its secluded wildlands.

For those wanting to get the most out of their exploration of the Smith River NRA, stop at its visitor center on U.S. 199 in Gasquet to find information and maps, enquire about campsite availability and acquire campfire permits

Points of Interest

THE RIVER

Fed by clear mountain streams, the Smith River is the only undammed river in California, and it is prized by visitors and locals alike for its recreation opportunities: fishing, boating and swimming.

Because the Pacific Ocean remains cold year-round due to prevailing currents from the Gulf of Alaska, the best place for swimming and sunbathing on the Wild Rivers Coast is at its rivers, where summer temperatures in the canyons are typically in the 80s and 90s, and the waters provide a refreshing delight. No river in the region offers more campgrounds, swimming holes and kayak/raft launches than the Smith.

River accesses, many of which have restrooms, are marked with U.S. Forest Service signs at numerous places along U.S. 199 both east and west of Gasquet.

Interested in more than swimming? The river is a great place for tubing, rafting and kayaking. If you don't have your own boat, local company Redwood Rides offers kayak rentals and guided kayaking excursions to experience the river's many rapids. Redwood Rides also offers mountain bike rentals. Find out more at redwoodrides.com or call (707) 951-6559.

SMITH RIVER

Locals prize the pristine, undammed Smith River for its fishing, summer swimming, kayaking, rafting and tubing. There are a number of beaches located around the Forks, one off the highway, others on South Fork Road, and are marked with road signs.

SCENIC DRIVES

Sweeping mountain vistas can be found in every direction from Gasquet, and though some roads may be in rough condition, most are navigable by two-wheel drive vehicles.

Little Jones Creek Road is the best of the bunch for accommodating vehicles with low ground clearance.

The drive offers close views of the Siskiyou Crest with the Marble Mountains in the distance, and you can visit the Ship Mountain Fire Lookout, which has commanding views in all directions, including the ocean to the west. Little Jones Creek Road intersects U.S. 199 12 miles east of Gasquet at a marked exit. Take the road for 10 miles to Ship Mountain. Vehicles without 4-wheel drive will need to park at the toilet and walk up the last few feet to the lookout.

Hidden Gems

Carnivorous plants

Due to the area's seismic history, the Siskiyou region has an unusual "serpentine" geology that makes it home to a number of rare and endemic species of flora, the most notable being the carnivorous darlingtonia. Also called cobra lilies, it's not hard to see how they got this nickname: the pitcher plant stands upright with a flared neck, head-shaped cap and forked flowers hanging down, resembling fangs. The easiest place to see them is by taking a short wheelchair-accessible trail that leads to a bog (darlingtonia's habitat) surrounded by cedars and azaleas. Find it 3.5 miles east of Gasquet where a sign says "Botanical Trail."

Patrick Creek Lodge

Eight miles east of Gasquet on U.S. 199, this historic lodge in operation since 1926 is a sight to behold with its log beams large stone fireplace. It offers fine dining and private cabins. If you can't stay long, the excellent bar at least is worth a visit for your passengers.

Elk Prairie Campground

is located a few miles north of Orick in a redwood forest within Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park. The campground is just off Newton B. Drury Parkway (accessible from U.S. 101). This campsite is a great choice for hikers — trails through some of the largest redwoods in the world abound in this area; some have trailheads at the campsite, others are short trips away up Drury Parkway.

There are 69 sites, including four cabins and 21 for tents only.

The campground features restrooms, showers, ADA-compliant toilets and campsites and a visitor center.

Gold Bluffs Beach Campground is on a beach northeast of Orick in Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park, accessed by exiting U.S. 101 onto Davison Road 2.5 miles north of Orick and following an unpaved road for 6 miles. No trailers are allowed due to the rough condition of the road.

The campground has 24 tent-only sites. There are restrooms, showers, ADA-compliant toilets and campsites, fire rings and a campfire center.

Wildlife

Creatures that fly, crawl on land, swim in the sea or roam the forests and meadows can be found on the Wild Rivers Coast, for those who know where to look.

ELK

Roosevelt elk are among the largest deer in the world, second only to the moose in size. Overhunting nearly decimated the herds on California's North Coast, but since an elk reserve was established at Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park in the 1930s, their numbers have rebounded.

Elk are among the most hazardous animals to the public at Redwood National and State Parks, Park Ranger Michael Poole said. Visitors should admire them from a distance.

Elk can be especially dangerous during the fall rut when males grow their antlers and fight each other for females. In the spring, female elk can also be dangerous if they have calves to defend.

About 450 elk roam Redwood National and State Parks. The best place to view them is at the junction of Davison Road and U.S. Highway 101 north of Orick and at the end of Davison Road near the trail to Fern Canyon.

Closer to Crescent City, a herd of about 53 animals can sometimes be seen wandering south of town near U.S. Hwy 101 along Humboldt Road and Enderts Beach Road.

Another elk herd can be found in the town of Smith River, often hanging out at a field near Ship Ashore Resort on U.S. Highway 101.

Spotting elk in Curry County is challenging. Most herds stick to the county's forested areas. But some herds have been spotted occasionally near the Brookings Airport, at 17330 Parkview Drive and the Salmon Run golf course up the south bank of the Chetco River. Elk may also be spotted on the north bank of the Rogue River east of Gold Beach.

TIDEPOOLS

During minus tides a garden of sea life can be seen clinging to the rocks and trapped in the tidepools on Del Norte County's rocky beaches.

The best place to explore tidepools within Redwood National and State Parks is at Enderts Beach, said Park Ranger Michael Poole.

Critters include the Pacific sea anemone, which are found from Alaska to Baja California and resemble giant flowers. The purple and orange ochre sea star, webbed bat stars and the occasional sunflower starfish, which can have 16 to 24 limbs, can also be seen. Mussels and barnacles adorn the rocks and folks may even see tiny fish swimming in the pools, Poole said.

People should also be careful not to crush anything when moving rocks around, Poole said.

"What you really want is a minus tide during daylight hours," he said, explaining that a minus tide is an especially low tide that occurs roughly twice a month around the full and new moons (tide tables can be found on pages 8-10).

Folks should park at the Enderts Beach overlook 3 miles south of Crescent City at the end of Enderts Beach Road off U.S. Highway 101. They can then hike down the trail to the beach and turn right to find some of the best pools.

Other good places to view tidepools include the rocky beach north of Battery Point Lighthouse, the coastline northwest of Crescent City between Pebble Beach and Point St. George, and northwest of Klamath at False Klamath Cove off U.S. Highway 101.

North of the Oregon border in Curry County is McVay State Beach, another good place to see tidepool denizens.

Other good places to tidepool in Curry County include Mill Beach, a hidden beach in the heart of Brookings behind Fred Meyer.

Tidepools at Harris Beach State Park can be accessed from the first parking lot by taking the South Beach Trail to the beach and turning south toward the sea stacks and hiking on the beach for about a quarter of a mile.

At the campground entrance, before descending to the lower parking lot take the Rock Beach Trail. It's a short trail requiring some exercise, but has tidepool life in abundance around the arch rock and rocky shores.

However, tidepooling is not without its hazards. Folks should keep an eye on the ocean, expect sneaker waves and take a friend – two- or four-footed.

BIRDING

With the area's pristine rivers, lagoons, rocky shoreline and lofty forests, even a novice birder can spot something interesting.

Oregon's Curry County hosts 376 bird species, according to the Kalmiopsis Audubon Society. Birding hotspots include the New River near Langlois, Cape Blanco State Park north of Port Orford, Floras Lake and the Sixes, Chetco and Rogue rivers.

Since the Southern Oregon Coast is the state's balmiest spot, birds normally only seen in California can often be spotted in Curry County too.

For example, the Allen's hummingbird, once rare in Curry County, is now abundant. These birds can be viewed at New River near Langlois, Cape Blanco State Park, Euchre Creek between Gold Beach and Port Orford and the mouth of the Rogue River in Gold Beach.

Short-eared owls, who hunt mostly at night, but can be seen during the day and at dusk, can also be seen at New River. They can also be seen at Lake Tolowa in Del Norte County hunting low over the fields.

Vagrant warblers on their way from the eastern U.S. to South America sometimes wind up at Cape Blanco.

In Del Norte County, ducks, loons, grebes, gulls, terns, the endangered marbled murrelet and other shorebirds can be seen at the Crescent City Harbor.

At Point St. George there are rock sandpipers, harlequin ducks, shearwaters and marbled murrelets.

The Castle Rock National Wildlife Area west of Pebble Beach houses the second-largest seabird colony in California, according to Brug.

From Pebble Beach Drive, folks can see tufted puffins, common murres and pigeon guillemots with a spotting scope or binoculars. Castle Rock also hosts Aleutian cackling geese, which roost in the thousands before making their way to Alaska.

The geese also congregate on pastureland between Lake Earl and the Smith River. Wetlands in that area are habitat for gulls, ducks and raptors like bald eagles, peregrine falcons, merlins and the rare golden eagle.

Mountain birds like quail, Cassin's finches, Townsend solitaires, sooty grouse and white-headed woodpeckers can be seen on the GO Road in the Smith River National Recreation Area.

SEALS & SEA LIONS

Visitors to Wild Rivers Coast can see four species of pinniped – harbor seals, elephant seals, California sea lions and Steller sea lions – though they should keep their distance.

In Southern Oregon, seals and sea lions can be spotted at the various ports along the coast. They often sun themselves on the docks and swim among the fishing boats at the Port of Brookings Harbor.

In Gold Beach, seals and sea lions can be spotted on docks and along the shoreline and can be seen surfing the waves at the mouth of the Rogue River.

In Port Orford, favorite viewing sites include Battle Rock Park, Port Orford Heads State Park and on the docks.

The many sandy beaches near Bandon and the port itself offer good vantage points to view sea mammals.

They can also be spotted in coves and isolated beaches from viewpoints along the Oregon Coast Trail within the Samuel Boardman State Park, between Brookings and Gold Beach.

Harbor seals are the most commonly seen, can reach 6 feet in length, weigh up to 300 pounds and have spotted coats ranging from a silver-gray to a black or dark brown.

The second largest seal in the world, the northern elephant seal, so named because of the proboscis found in the male, are only on land during breeding season.

Males can reach 13 feet in length and weigh 4,500 pounds, while females grow up to 10 feet in length and weigh in at 1,500 pounds. The best way to view elephant seals is through a spotting scope or on binoculars as they breed on offshore islands.

California sea lions, which use their large flippers to propel themselves on land, frequent the Crescent City Harbor near the Chart Room on Anchor Way. Ranging in color from chocolate brown to a lighter golden brown, males can grow as large as 7 feet in length and weigh 1,000 pounds. Females grow up to six feet in length and weigh up to 220 pounds.

Larger than the California sea lion, Steller sea lion males reach 11 feet in length and weigh 2,500 pounds while females grow to nine feet and weigh 1,000 pounds. Steller sea lions spend much of their time offshore and only breed on unpopulated beaches. Steller sea lion pups are born from mid-May to mid-July.

Folks may be able to catch a rare glimpse of Steller sea lions on Castle Rock through spotting scopes and binoculars.

Smith River

The Smith River valley unfurls along Highway 101

near two eponymous communities — a small farming town and a tribal nation that runs a casino 3 miles south of the Oregon state line.

Halfway between the state line and Crescent City, the highway crosses the largest completely undammed river in California. Seven miles north at the mouth of the Smith River, there's a good vantage point to see its cold, clean current make its final plunge to sea.

Points of Interest

MOUTH OF THE SMITH

Popular with picnickers and anglers, the mouth of the Smith River also attracts a wild menagerie — diving sea lions, seals, salmon, otters, sharks, crabs, geese and shorebirds.

On one side of a long sandbar the river fills fingers of a meandering slough, while on the other side ocean tides spray wildly, even on calm days.

To access the mouth, turn west off 101 onto the Mouth of the Smith River Road, which runs through the heart of Smith River tribal nation, 3.5 miles north of the townsite and 3.5 miles south of the state line. The road ends at a parking lot overlook with access by staircase to a sand and pebble beach.

BEACHES AND BREACHES

Edging north from the river mouth and still two miles south of the state line, Clifford Kamph Memorial Park is a stellar spot for beachcombing, surf fishing and whale watching.

With three parking spots on a bluff overlooking the ocean, this unassuming county park has drive-up views and convenient facilities nearby, including wheelchair accessible restrooms and a ramp leading to a sandy beach. The campground is hosted year-round, with 12 tent camp sites rented on a first-come first-served basis.

ONE FISH, TWO FISH...

Salmonids are a family of fish famous for their miraculous migration patterns: from freshwater streams out to the ocean depths and back upstream again, to spawn and die where it all began. Glimpse these revered creatures up close at Rowdy Creek Fish Hatchery, which raises steelhead trout and chinook salmon to supplement sport fishing stocks in the Smith River.

Strict regulations protect the Smith's wild stock from overfishing. Hatchery fish, on the other hand, are always fair game, distinguishable from the wild fish by a clipped adipose fin.

The Rowdy Creek Fish Hatchery welcomes visitors during regular business hours and is situated just west of the highway behind the Smith River Post Office on 255 North Fred Haight Drive. Tours are free, though donations to the non-profit enterprise are accepted.

TOLOWA DUNES

More than 4,000 acres of lush forests, rolling dunes, wetlands, meadows and 11 miles of undeveloped beach make up Tolowa Dunes State Park.

The park encompasses Dead Lake, lakes Earl and Tolowa and the mouth of the Smith River. Visitors can explore more than 30 miles of hiking trails. It's also rich in opportunities for surfing, fishing, beachcombing and birdwatching.

Visitors to the park can even get hands-on experience in restoring the dunes to its original habitat. The Tolowa Dunes Stewards and the Redwood Parks Association host excursions to eradicate invasive European beach grass on the first and third Sundays of every month.

For more information visit: redwoodparksassociation.org/tolowa-dunes-state-park or tolowacoasttrails.org.

Surfing/Rafting

Despite the growing popularity of surfing and kayaking worldwide, the Southern Oregon and Northern California coastal shores and rivers remain relatively undiscovered by thrill-seekers.

Those who do take to the chilly water will experience an adrenaline rush like no other, not to mention up close and personal contact with the area's natural beauty and array of wildlife.

In fall/winter, the coast is pummeled by powerful storms and giant waves ideal for the more experienced surfer; meanwhile the higher flow in the rivers provide excellent rapids for kayaking.

SURFING

There are many surf spots along Curry County's coastline. Some are easy to get to, such as Sporthaven Beach at the Port of Brookings Harbor and the mouth of the Rogue River in Gold Beach. Others involve a lengthy hike or scramble down a hillside.

South Beach in Del Norte County is widely regarded as the best all-around beach to surf. The flat beach just south of Crescent City is located off of Highway 101, providing a convenient place to park while riding the waves. The long, sandy beach is a fit for surfers of all abilities, including beginners.

Farther north along the California coast, more experienced surfers can try Pebble Beach or Point St. George, which can be rocky and rougher than South Beach.

There are several beach breaks located just north and south of the Oregon/California border, and several more located between Brookings and Gold Beach.

KAYAKING AND RAFTING

As the name implies, the Wild Rivers Coast boasts some of the most pristine and undeveloped rivers in the country, if not the world. The crystalline and jade waters of the Smith River are a holy grail for whitewater rafters and kayakers during the higher flow season from October through May, offering beginner-friendly class I-II and class III runs, Class IV wilderness canyons, expert Class V gorges and everything in between. Drift boats, rafts and kayaks are great craft for floating world-class scenic sections of the Smith that bring boaters under ancient redwoods at any time of year.

Whether you're an outdoors enthusiast just in need of some rental gear or a family of beginners wanting a guided river trip experience, Redwood Rides Adventure Outfitters has you covered for your epic outdoor adventure on California's Wild Rivers Coast. Explore the crystal clear waters of the Smith River, bike through the ancient redwood forest, or paddle an ocean kayak past wild sea lions and a historic lighthouse on Crescent City's scenic coastline.

"We often hear that our Redwoods by River boat tour is the overall highlight of our guests' vacations, which usually cover a substantial chunk of the West Coast from Seattle to San Francisco," said Adam Spencer, co-owner/operator of Redwood Rides.

The Redwoods by River trips are beginner- and family-friendly scenic paddles on the main stem Smith River, where rafters and kayakers float beneath the towering old-growth redwoods of Jedediah Smith State Park, part of Redwood National Park. The tour includes a short hike into the old-growth redwood groves, a stunning transition from the sunny river corridor to the lush rainforest. This river run has class I - II rapids, mild enough for beginners and families, adding more excitement to paddling by the tallest living things on Earth. The Redwoods by River trip is perfect for everyone ages 3 and up, giving you a small taste of whitewater while enjoying incredible redwood views — an unmatched opportunity.

If you're looking for more thrills, Redwood Rides also offers class II-III rafting and kayaking on the Middle and South Fork Smith. Boating trips on the Smith are available year-round, since the coastal temperatures stay much warmer than inland areas in the winter time. When the weather is cooler, Redwood Rides offers drysuits to keep you warm and dry.

The outfitter's most adventurous trip is on the North Fork Smith, which has been called the best one-day wilderness rafting trip in the country.

Also available are guided bike tours and bike rentals with shuttle service. Enjoy a beginner to intermediate-level, 9-mile ride on Last Chance Coastal Trail, surrounded by jaw-dropping ancient redwoods and cliff-side ocean views, or an easier ride on Howland Hill Road, a 19th century stagecoach route, traversing the magical redwoods of Mill Creek. For downhill mountain biking, you can be shuttled to the top of a few different single-track options, while riders wanting a good climb and descent can see the unique forest diversity of Little Bald Hills Trail.

The dramatic coastline of Crescent City is perfect for ocean kayak tours. Enjoy paddling near the giant sea birds, seals and sea lions of Castle Rock National Wildlife Refuge or explore the scenic headlands surrounding historic Battery Point Lighthouse, built in 1856.

Crescent City

U.S. Highway 101 bypasses some of Crescent City's most beautiful places — rugged beaches and ancient redwood groves, islands alive with birds and sea lions, historic lighthouses and epic murals. Most pass unseen unless you stray from the beaten path.

Points of Interest

POINT ST. GEORGE

Turn seaward from the north end of Pebble Beach Drive to Point St. George Heritage Area, the third-most western promontory in the lower 48. Infamous for shipwrecks, St. George Reef juts out to sea from these high grassy bluffs and an off-shore lighthouse marks the edge of reasonable navigability. Panoramic views of reef, open ocean and coastal mountain ranges make this area a local favorite. A trail from the parking lot leads to grassy paths and the beach.

To access Pebble Beach Drive's northern section and Point St. George Heritage Area from the north end of Crescent City, exit Highway 101 at Washington Boulevard and go 3 miles. At a stop sign surrounded by ocean views and pastureland, go straight another mile for the Heritage Area parking lot. From central Crescent City, turn west on 5th Street or 9th Street and go one mile to Pebble Beach Drive.

THE HARBOR

Famous for fueling Californians' love of Dungeness crab, Crescent City Harbor produces the highest commercial value of seafood of any California port north of Monterey. Situated on the south side of town among numerous hotels and restaurants, the harbor hosts over 200 commercial fishing boats — and lots of brash sea lions and seals.

These bulbous creatures laze over the docks and walkways in the harbor. Slipping into the water, they become swift and elegant. To view sea lions and harbor seals up close (but not too close!), turn west on Anchor Way at the harbor's south end. Look for a pile of pinnipeds on your right, near the Chart Room restaurant.

Klamath

The Klamath area is home to many things:

the headquarters of California's largest Native American tribe and the place where a 263-mile-long river flows spectacularly into the Pacific, to name a couple.

The village — relocated after a devastating flood in December 1964 — and Yurok tribal headquarters are both on the inland side of U.S. Highway 101 just north of its bridge over the Klamath River. The most spectacular scenery, however, is reached by turning west off the highway onto Requa Road.

Points of Interest

HISTORIC REQUA INN

On your right less than a mile up Requa Road is the Historic Requa Inn, which you could consider either a big bed-and-breakfast or a small hotel.

To access the mouth of Redwood Creek, turn west off of Highway 101 two miles south of Orick, toward the Thomas H. Kuchel Visitor Center. From there, follow a boardwalk to view the creek's slough and go north $\frac{1}{4}$ mile across the flats to view the mouth.

MOUTH OF KLAMATH OVERLOOK

Continue up Requa Road to a parking lot on your left that overlooks the Mouth of the Klamath River to the south. During salmon season, fishermen amass on the water and sandy spit.

If you think the view is good from here, walk down the Coastal Trail about half a mile, and turn left on another trail that meanders for an additional half-mile to a wooden observation platform jutting over the ocean. From here, the Mouth of the Klamath can be seen in all its splendor, and if you're lucky you might see the spouts of gray whales at sea.

Retrace your steps to the parking lot, or continue north a little farther on a memorable stretch of the Coastal Trail.

Hidden Gems

World War II relic

If they look sharp, visitors exploring Redwood National and State Parks' coastal drive will come across an old radar station from World War II.

The U.S., fearing an attack from the Japanese, built a series of these stations on sloping hillsides, said Park Ranger Michael Poole. Because of their exposed locations, the stations were often disguised. The radar station off Coastal Drive appears at first glance to be a farmhouse.

"They had two buildings, the power station and the operations station, but they're just cinderblock concrete," he said. "Around one of them they built a fake farmhouse and around the other one they built a fake barn."

Coastal Drive can be accessed at the end of Klamath Beach Road off U.S. Highway 101. Visitors should then travel down Alder Camp Road, which will reconnect them with Klamath Beach Road, forming a one-way loop..

Newton B. Drury Parkway
Visitors taking this scenic drive will plunge through an old-growth forest of coast redwood, western hemlock and Douglas fir.

Prairie Creek protects some of the world's tallest trees, including Big Tree. Accessed from the parkway via a short paved trail, Big Tree is 304 feet tall and 21 feet wide.

Near the south end of the 10-mile drive, folks will travel through a grassy meadow where Roosevelt elk often graze; a visitors center and campground lie to the west.

The main road through Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park, the parkway connects to U.S. Highway 101 4 miles south of Klamath and again 5 miles north of Orick.

Klamath Glen

Up for a little side trip? Head east on Highway 169 for about 5 miles to the village of Klamath Glen, where you can enjoy some upriver views of the Klamath.

California Beaches

Not only are the waves and surf a breathtaking experience, incomparable sunsets and beachcombing treasures abound.

CLIFFORD KAMPH PARK

Just south of the Oregon border, is a Del Norte County facility. Long sandy beaches stretching almost as far as the eye can see are there for visitor enjoyment. The park also offers limited camping and bathroom facilities.

POINT ST. GEORGE

Four miles northwest of Crescent City is the westernmost point on the California side of the Wild Rivers Coast. Several trails lead away from a large parking lot, some to coastal bluffs with commanding views of the coastline, mountains and St. George Reef Lighthouse offshore to the northwest. Walk down a gated road to Kellogg Beach, which stretches all the way to the mouth of the Smith River, several miles away. Much of the beach is within protected areas, which feature miles of dunes, coastal forests and lakes Tolowa and Earl.

PEBBLE BEACH DRIVE

In Crescent City, the oceanfront is often overlooked by visitors whizzing through town on U.S. 101, but the spectacular beaches, from rocky to sandy, are available to the public all along this drive. To get there turn west on almost any street from downtown Crescent City and follow your nose. You will soon be rewarded by scenic craggy rocks jutting up from the swirling Pacific. Here and South Beach periodically offer excellent whale watching opportunities.

SOUTH BEACH

The long crescent beach which gives Crescent City its name and is located just south of town. U.S. 101 runs within a stone's throw of the beach here for people who don't want to walk far to get their feet wet. The beach is a popular spot for surfers, who often can be seen riding the waves.

CRESCENT BEACH

A broad beach nearly two miles long at the foot of redwood-covered hills south of Crescent City. At its northern end it doglegs into South Beach. Much of Crescent Beach is within Del Norte Coast Redwoods State Park, and it is accessible from Enderts Beach Road, which intersects with U.S. 101 approximately 2 miles south of Crescent City. There is a picnic area with bathrooms. The beach is set back far enough from the road to offer a pristine, secluded experience, particularly the farther south one wanders, where tall cliffs rise above the beach.

ENDERTS BEACH

Accessed from the southern end of Enderts Beach Road, it is all but unknown to visitors but a place locals treasure.

At the end of the road is parking lot atop Crescent Beach Overlook. At the southeast end of the area is the gateway to paradise. Embarking on the scenic one-half mile trail leads the visitor along a high bluff to the bottom of the hill where a sign at a fork in the path gives directions to the location and a campground.

Once at Enderts Beach, the beauty of it all is overwhelming. Standing on top of the small, rocky bluff that juts onto the sand, a glance to the east reveals a small, narrow canyon lined with ferns and trees. Nickel Creek, cluttered with huge drift logs that winter storms have crammed into the ravine, slowly filters through the mighty tree trunks, winds around the bluff and merges with the sea.

FALSE KLAMATH COVE

Two miles northwest of Klamath, U.S. 101 passes right by this small, scenic beach, which offers up-close views of heavy surf, rocks and sea stacks around the edges of the cove. There are turnouts at the north and south ends of the beach, which is divided during high tides. Park at the front of the northern turnout during high tide to have the unique experience of feeling like your automobile is over the water. Not far past the southern turnout as the highway turns inland, there is a rest area with flush toilets, picnic tables and benches. along the edge of a picturesque pond.

KLAMATH BEACH

Is a driftwood-strewn sandbar at the mouth of the Klamath River. Providing a protected entrance to the river, it's a popular site for fishing. The lower Klamath River is home of the Yurok Tribe, and according to their religion a large rock on the north side of the river overlooking Klamath Beach is the spirit Oregos, who took the form of a woman wearing a basket cap and carrying a baby basket on her back.

Oregos likes people, so each year she swings her leg — the sandbar — to let fish enter to feed the people. To get there, exit U.S. 101 just south of the river onto Klamath Beach Road. After passing two RV parks, the road narrows, so RVs and vehicles with trailers are not advised. Park at the gated road and pass through the gate.

Several traditional Yurok plank houses, part of a ceremonial grounds, are adjacent to the road. Visitors are welcome to look but asked to treat the sacred grounds with care and respect.

GOLD BLUFFS BEACH

Is well off the beaten path. After exiting U.S. 101 onto Davison Road, 2.5 miles north of Orick, there is a winding 4-mile drive on unpaved road to get from U.S. 101 to the beach (RVs and trailers are prohibited). But for those who make the effort, there is ample reward at the other end. The road follows the beach for 3 miles, flanked on the inland side by steep bluffs. The beach is a great place to find elk in a particularly photogenic setting. At the far end of the road lies Fern Canyon, a narrow ravine with vertical walls completely covered in ferns.

A stream runs through the ravine, so expect to get your feet wet if you visit. Gold Bluffs Beach also features a campground with 24 sites. Note: Gold Bluffs Beach requires a day use fee, payable at a booth where the road meets the beach.

FRESHWATER LAGOON BEACH

West of Orick is a mile-long beach adjacent to U.S. 101 with sweeping views of the ocean and Redwood Coast. At its northern end can be found the Redwood National and State Parks Thomas H. Kuchel Visitor Center, which offers exhibits, a bookstore and backcountry permits. Near the visitor center is the Redwood Creek Picnic Area, with covered tables and restrooms. The shoulders along the highway are broad, offering plenty of room to park cars and RVs. On the other side of the highway is Freshwater Lagoon, which has a boat launch at the northern end.

Orick

Situated halfway between Eureka and Crescent City on Highway 101,

Orick is a former logging town that became the heart of Redwood National and State Parks 40 years ago.

Orick boomed and busted along the banks of Redwood Creek, which is more like a raging river than a babbling brook. Its 282-square-mile basin contains much of the world's remaining old-growth coastal redwoods, trees that can grow taller than 30-story buildings.

Besides superlative height, coastal redwoods can live nearly 2,000 years, longer than the Roman Empire existed. Old-growth trees around Orick have been quietly growing since Roman armies were marching across Mesopotamia. Here are some highlights:

Points of Interest

MOUTH OF REDWOOD CREEK

Like the mouth of the Smith River 60 miles north, Redwood Creek plunges dramatically into the Pacific along an easily accessible beach. Gargantuan logs sent out to sea during high creek flows are strewn across the sand by tides, offering a different view of the redwoods.

To access the mouth of Redwood Creek, turn west off of Highway 101 two miles south of Orick, toward the Thomas H. Kuchel Visitor Center. From there, follow a boardwalk to view the creek's slough and go north $\frac{1}{4}$ mile across the flats to view the mouth.

ELK VIEWING

Orick's human residents are outnumbered by Roosevelt elk, the largest species of elk in North America. Most often seen grazing contentedly in dewy meadows near the coast, elk attitudes change radically during the "rutting" season in late summer and early fall, when 1,000-pound bulls armed with six-, seven- and eight-point racks spar one another for dibs on the does. It's a spectacular display.

Elk are many things. Majestic. Powerful. Graceful. Wild. Friendly they are not. Elk do not appreciate paparazzi and have been known to charge overzealous people. They can be spotted all over the Orick Valley.

REDWOOD TRAILS

Davison Road is an access point for some incredible trails as well as the only tent camping spot in the area, Gold Bluffs Beach, located 6 miles down a dirt road that connects to Davison Road at Elk Meadow. For those interested in a short jaunt, the 2-mile Trillium Falls loop can be accessed by a foot path south of the Elk Meadow parking lot, winding through giant redwoods and culminating in a waterfall. Lady Bird Johnson Grove is another easily accessed and popular spot for viewing old growth redwoods. About a mile north of Orick and a mile south of Davison Road, turn east on Bald Hills Road for 2 miles. The trailhead parking lot is on the right after a footbridge.

Hidden Gems

VERDANT WALLS

Entering Fern Canyon, it's easy to imagine a stegosaurus picking its way over the fallen trees that litter the creek bed. With 50-foot walls draped in seven different kinds of ferns, the ravine provided a prehistoric backdrop for Steven Spielberg's "The Lost World: Jurassic Park." Visitors with sharp eyes will be able to spot a plethora of creatures including giant Pacific salamanders, banana slugs, garter snakes and birds. Turn west on Davison Road, 3 miles north of Orick and go 7 miles to the end of Gold Bluffs Beach Road.

RARE MINERALS

The Orick hills have other secrets, such as rare minerals found nowhere else in the Western Hemisphere. Orickite is a rare mash-up of copper, iron, hydrogen, oxygen and sulphur. Only a few grams have ever been found. The first sample came from Coyote Peak, overlooking Orick, and was sent to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., for further study and safekeeping.

Preston Island

A hidden gem

By David Rupkalvis

Crescent City, California is rightly known as a tourist destination. With miles of beaches to the west, giant redwoods to the east, sea lions and seals that can be seen every day and plenty of things to do between, it is no surprise people plan their vacations around trips to Crescent City.

I have been to Crescent City more than a dozen times over the last six months, and every time I am drawn to something amazing. I have visited the beaches, stared at the sea lions, taken pictures of redwoods and always been amazed at what I can see.

But I am always looking for hidden spots that are a little off the radar. And sometimes you get lucky.

In January, I visited Crescent City during king tides, so I was looking for a place to take pictures of the highest tide of the year. As I drove along with the beach to my side, I stopped a couple of times to take pictures. And then I noticed this little road off to my left that drove down to the beach. So, I followed it down and found a little wonder land.

Known to locals as Preston Island, what I found was different than anything else around. There's a small parking area at the bottom, with beaches on both sides. But directly west, heading out into the ocean is something I've seen nowhere else.

For hundreds of feet, what looks like volcanic rock moves out into the ocean. As you walk out, you have to find your own way as tide pools are everywhere. Many are small, just a few feet across, but some are big enough you have to find a new direction to stay dry.

The tide pools are different than those nearby. While filled with crystal-clear water, there seems to be little in them. I saw no crabs, no fish, no sea anemones, just water. I'm sure someone with an eye better trained than mine could find life in the pools, but for me it felt like walking into a different universe. The real treat was along the edges. During king tide, and again on subsequent visits, the waves crashed into the rocks, creating massive splashes of water pouring onto the rocks.

I desperately tried to take great pictures and mostly failed. Patience is probably not my greatest virtue, so I was always spinning and snapping photos just after the waves hit. For someone with more patience, and a willingness to wait with a camera trained at one spot until the wave hits, there is probably great photos to be taken.

I wandered around the rocks for more than hour before I realized it. Just the sound of the waves crashing, the feeling of the power of the water and the belief that something amazing was just ahead kept me going.

Like many along the South Coast, I am drawn to the ocean. And this spot in Crescent City has drawn me back many times. You feel like you're in a different world when you're surrounded on three sides by waves crashing into rocks. It reminded me how small we all really are in comparison to the greatness of nature.

Preston Island has a long history in Crescent City. Originally Preston Peak, the area was a sacred site for the Tolowa Nation. Years ago, the peak was mined, and the rocks removed from it became the jetty in Crescent City. What was left was Preston Island, its many tide pools and a place that has a allure of its own today.

A couple of notes. While there are sandy beaches on both sides, you will need good shoes to go out onto the rocks. The rocks are sharp and require some scrambling to move around on. I would also advise against getting too close to any of the edges. The power of the waves kept me from getting too close myself.

To get there, follow Highway 101 from Coos Bay through Bandon, Port Orford, Gold Beach and Brookings. After you reach California, continue on Highway 101 into Crescent City. Turn right on Front Street, which has signs for beaches, and continue until the road ends. Turn right onto Pebble Beach Drive and keep a close eye out for the small road that juts off to the left.

Crescent City is a little more than three hours away, but there is enough to do to keep you entertained for hours.
